

Transportation Technology and Solutions Reporter

The Institute of Transportation Engineers, an international educational and scientific association for engineers, planners and other transportation professionals, seeks a technical reporter to research and write about events, current issues and solutions, as well as the application of technologies as related to surface transportation. In addition the transportation technology and solutions reporter will identify topics and seek out relevant professionals to conduct interviews with and write articles on. The articles will be published in ITE Journal, and on the Internet. This position will also be responsible for the publishing of a bi-weekly newsletter.

Knowledge, skills and abilities required:

- Must have a BA in journalism, communications, or English; and
- Excellent writing and editing skills;
- Outstanding interpersonal skills;
- Self starter able to meet schedules;
- Willingness to do some travel;
- Ability to conduct and write objective interviews;
- Ideally has an interest in transportation and application of technology; and
- Significant experience to efficiently and effectively utilize the Internet and individuals as sources for content and leads.

Salary will commensurate with experience, knowledge, skills and abilities.

Position is available immediately.

Send resume and salary requirements to: Thomas W. Brahms, Institute of Transportation Engineers, 1099 14th Street, NW, Suite 300 West, Washington, DC 20005; fax: 202-289-7722. An equal opportunity employer. Celebrating our 75th anniversary.