Department of Energy, Mines and Resources

April 2005

This fact sheet explains the process of applying to the Yukon government for a grazing agreement. It also covers the continuing occurrence of multiple public use within a grazing agreement.

Introduction

In order to meet the grazing needs of Yukon livestock owners, the Yukon government grants grazing rights on designated areas of public land to eligible applicants. Grazing rights are given to the applicant in the form of a grazing agreement. The Yukon grazing policy provides for multiple use of and public access to grazing agreements. The Agriculture Branch accepts applications for grazing agreements.

May I apply for a grazing agreement?

You may apply for a grazing agreement if:

- you are a Canadian citizen or have permanent resident status;
- you have resided in the Yukon for one year prior to application; and
- are at least 19 years of age.

Also eligible for grazing rights are:

- companies where Yukon residents hold the majority of shares; and
- grazing associations where the majority of members are Yukon residents.

How do I apply for a grazing agreement?

Before you apply for a grazing agreement, contact the Agriculture Branch for information about the grazing program and policies. Staff will also confirm if the area you are interested in is available.

Application forms are available at the Agriculture Branch or online at www.gov.yk.ca/forms/#a. If you decide to apply for a grazing agreement, you must give the Agriculture Branch:

- a completed grazing application form. This will include information on your proposed use and operational need for the grazing land, as well as a map showing the location and size of the requested grazing area; and
- an application fee of $25 plus GST.

How is my application for a grazing agreement processed?

All reviews are subject to environmental assessment as required by the Yukon Environmental Assessment Act/Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Act.

The Agriculture Branch will make an assessment of the suitability of your chosen grazing land. This includes determining grazing capacity and preparing a Grazing Management Plan, which will outline management practices you must follow for the sustained use of the grazing agreement area.

The Agriculture Branch will distribute your grazing application form to the Agricultural Land Application Review Committee (ALARC). ALARC includes representatives from Yukon government agencies with responsibility for resource management. ALARC makes a recommendation to proceed with further review, defer if more information is needed, or deny your application. You will be advised in writing of the government's decision based on the committee's recommendation. You have 60 business days to accept or appeal the decision.

If ALARC recommends that your application proceed to further review, the Agriculture Branch undertakes consultation with the public, First Nations and municipalities.

Your grazing agreement application will next be considered by the Land Application Review Committee (LARC). This committee, which includes representatives from government, First Nations, and community agencies, also conducts public consultations.

You will be advised in writing of the government's decision based on the LARC recommendation. You or any intervener may appeal the decision. Applicants have 60 business days to accept or appeal the decision; interveners have 20 days to appeal the decision.

After your grazing agreement application is approved, the Agriculture Branch will grant permission for you to have a Canada Lands Surveyor prepare a certified sketch that accurately describes your grazing agreement site.

The Agriculture Branch will grant you a grazing agreement once you submit the certified sketch.

How long will this process take me?

The time it takes depends on the complexity of your application and whether or not other land use issues are involved. Assessment of grazing capacity must be conducted during the growing season, so the date your application is submitted can affect overall timing.

Most applications will be dealt with between 12 to 24 months.

How much will a grazing agreement cost me?

In addition to an annual administration fee of $50 plus GST, you must pay an annual grazing fee of $1 per animal unit month. Animal unit months are a measure of grazing capacity determined by the Agriculture Branch. They are forgiven for the first and second scheduled payments.

As a grazing agreement holder, you must also pay Yukon land taxes.
