CANADA SMALL BUSINESS FINANCING PROGRAM

Buy or lease – now the choice is yours

Canada

One of the Government of Canada's best programs for small businesses has just become a whole lot better. And that means more opportunities for you.

Since 1961, hundreds of thousands of small businesses have obtained financing that might not otherwise have been available to them — thanks to the Small Business Loans Program and its successor, the Canada Small Business Financing (CSBF) Program.

Today the Program continues to help Canadian small firms get business improvement loans. But as of April 1, 2002, it also helps them access financing to lease new or used equipment under the five-year Capital Leasing Pilot Project.

How it works

The Canada Small Business Financing Program seeks to increase the availability of loans and capital leases for establishing, expanding, modernizing and improving small businesses. It does this by encouraging financial institutions and leasing companies to make their services available to small businesses.

Under the Program, a small business must apply for a loan or lease to the financial institution (bank, credit union or caisse populaire) or the participating leasing company of its choice. If the application is granted, the federal government will guarantee 85 percent of the lender's losses in the event of default.

Is your business eligible?

Most small businesses starting up or operating in Canada are eligible for CSBF loans and leases, as long as their estimated gross revenues do not exceed $5 million during the fiscal year in which they apply. Sole proprietorships, partnerships and incorporated companies all qualify. Not eligible are farming and charitable or religious enterprises.

How the financing can be used

Commercial term loans can finance up to 90 percent of the cost of:

- ✓ the purchase or improvement of real property and immovables;
- ✓ the purchase of leasehold improvements, or improvements to leased property; and
- ✓ the purchase or improvement of new or used equipment.

Capital leases (containing an option to purchase) can finance the cost of various types of new and used equipment, including:

- ✓ vehicles;
- ✓ hotel and restaurant equipment;
- ✓ medical and health services equipment;
- ✓ computer hardware and software;
- ✓ telecommunications equipment; and
- ✓ manufacturing equipment.

How much financing is available?

The maximum amount a small business can access under the Program is $250 000. This is the combined total it is allowed for all its CSBF loans and capital leases, including any loans under the earlier Small Business Loans Program.

Security

For loans and capital leases alike, the same security requirements apply: both financial institutions and leasing companies are required to take security in the assets financed, in accordance with provincial law. They may also require corporate and/or personal guarantees; however, personal guarantees cannot be secured or exceed 25 percent of the total financing amount.

What does it cost?

Interest rates on loans may be either floating or fixed. The floating rate cannot be more than 3 percent higher than a lender's prime lending rate. Fixed rates cannot be more than 3 percent higher than the lender's residential mortgage rate for the term of the loan.

Lease payments include an interest rate of up to 13.25 percent plus the Government of Canada bond rate for the term of the lease.

The interest rates include a 1.25 percent administration fee. In addition, at the time of registration all participants must pay a 2 percent registration fee. The fees cover the costs of the CSBF Program, which is self-financing. All loans and leases must be paid in full within 10 years.

A win-win-win situation

The CSBF Program benefits small businesses, the lending community, the participating leasing companies and all Canadians:

Small businesses gain access to financing that might not otherwise be available to them.

The lending community and participating leasing companies can broaden their client base and meet the needs of emerging businesses.

Canadians benefit because the CSBF Program helps businesses grow and create jobs — and the result is a more dynamic Canadian economy.
