

Cambridge Bay 2006

The regional centre for the Kitikmeot, Cambridge Bay is a centre for business in western Nunavut. The people in the community are active in business and government, catering to tourists visiting the area for fishing and outdoor experiences and exploration companies working on Victoria Island.

The Inuktitut name for Cambridge Bay is Iqaluktuuttiaq, which translates to "a good place with lots of fish"; outstanding fishing can be experienced in the lakes and rivers of the area.

For more information about Cambridge Bay, visit the Nunavut Handbook website at <http://www.arctictravel.com>.

Getting There: First Air operates flights from Yellowknife to Cambridge Bay on Sundays, Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Canadian North operates flights from Yellowknife to Cambridge Bay on Tuesday and Saturdays. Travelers from Rankin Inlet can fly Kivalliq Air to Cambridge Bay on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Journeys from Iqaluit require an overnight in Yellowknife, before going on to Cambridge Bay.
