

Repulse Bay 2006

Repulse Bay lies directly on top of the Arctic Circle in eastern Nunavut. One of the last places in the Arctic to join the modern world, Repulse Bay is full of traditional Inuit life.

The Inuktitut name for Repulse Bay is Naujaat, which means "nesting place for seagulls". Nesting grounds are located on cliffs five kilometers north of the community and every June the area is occupied by thousands of seagulls, as well as snow birds, loons, eider ducks, longtail ducks, and jaegers.

Repulse Bay is renowned for its excellent artisans, especially for its Inuit carvers who work in bone, ivory and stone. Community residents have formed the Aivilik Arts Society in an effort to promote Resolute Bay carvings and art to worldwide markets.

Getting There: Kivalliq Air operates flights from Rankin Inlet to Repulse Bay every day of the week except Saturday. Please check with the airline for schedule changes.
