Useful Information

Useful Information

If you qualify for the postponement of the repayment of your student loan debt after having interrupted your full-time studies temporarily, the government will pay your financial institution the interest on the balance of any student loan granted to you under the Loans and Bursaries Program (full-time studies) or the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies.

If you qualify for the postponement of the repayment of your student loan debt after having interrupted your part-time studies temporarily, the government will pay your financial institution only the interest on the balance of loans granted to you under the Loans Program for Part-Time Studies. You must then continue to repay the balance due on any previous loan contracted under the Loans and Bursaries Program.

In both cases, you remain responsible for paying the quarterly interest on your computer loan, if applicable.

Eligibility Requirements

To qualify for the postponement of the repayment of your student loan debt, you must have been pursuing studies for at least one month during the six months preceding the event justifying your application.

If you do not resume your studies in the course of the month following the temporary interruption of your studies, AFE will consider that you have withdrawn as of the end of this period.

Duration of Postponement

A. Pregnancy

You are entitled to a postponement of 12 months as of the date on which you reach your 20th week of pregnancy.

B. Birth or adoption of a child

You and your child's other parent are entitled to a postponement of 8 months as of the date of birth or date of adoption of your child. However, you must both complete separate forms.

C. Incapacity to study for at least one month

You are entitled to a postponement of 8 months as of the date on which your incapacity begins.

D. Term as an elected executive officer within an organization consisting of student associations located in Québec.

You are entitled to a postponement during the months in which you serve as an elected executive officer, up to a maximum of 24 months at each level of education.

If your postponement ends between May and August inclusively, it will be extended until the following September 1.
