Find the information you need to get that job and achieve your career goals — from one convenient on-line source for interactive tools and information

Are you

- looking for a job?
- considering a career change?
- thinking about learning new skills?
- seeking information on workers' rights and workplace issues?
- exploring the best course of action for your job future?

Jobs, Workers, Training and Careers offers a wealth of reliable and timely information and the interactive tools to help you find a job, make career decisions and achieve your career goals.

With four main categories, the site is organized to help you pinpoint the information you need. The interactive tools can be accessed via the feature bar at the top of each Web page or through links provided under the main categories.

JOBS gives you the information you need to find a job

- Search thousands of current job listings from across Canada, in the federal and provincial governments and the private sector, through links to job sites, specialty job sites and placement agencies.
- Find valuable information on job search techniques, such as how to market yourself, locating unadvertised jobs and wage subsidy programs.
- Explore other ways of working, such as self-employment, telework, international work or volunteer work.

WORKERS helps you manage your work life

- Find out all you need to know about workers' rights, workplace legislation, and workplace issues such as health, safety and workplace wellness.
- Get information about pensions, insurance and other support programs available to workers.
- See what's current in workplace innovation and research.

TRAINING/LEARNING gives you information on how to gain the skills you need

- Explore a range of training/learning options — from distance learning, to apprenticeship, to university programs.
- Get information on how to finance your learning, such as scholarship, bursary, loan and grant programs.
- Check out the database of training institutions across Canada to find the one that's right for you.
- Find the educational resources you need as an adult learner.

CAREER EXPLORATION helps you make informed career decisions

- Identify career options that suit your interests, strengths and skills.
- Explore whether self-employment is an option for you.
- Find out about the latest trends, employment prospects, salary ranges, skilled trades and occupations that interest you.
