Text: In Polish

Notes: Official organ of Associated Poles of Canada since May 1934.

Information included:

- Locations and history of some of the early Polish settlements in Canada, described or referred to in Polish immigrants' letters to the editor as well as in news articles and community announcements

- Names and addresses of Polish immigrants are included in:
 - ♦ Various lists of names such as lists of donors for different causes; prize winners; individuals sought by the Polish Consulates in Canada and abroad; children who received their first communion or who received the highest marks on exams; passengers on European ships arriving in Halifax; members of Polish clubs and organizations, subscribers of Gazeta Katolicka; Polish business people in the community; Poles killed or wounded during WWI while fighting in the German army
 - ♦ Reports of community events
 - ♦ Ads of Polish businesses and self-employed individuals, missing persons ads
 - ♦ Wedding, anniversary, birth, christening announcements, obituaries
- Community news, including detailed reports from community events
- Emigration experiences described in letters and articles
- News from the partitioned Poland, from Poland during WWI and WWII, and news about Poles fighting outside of Poland
- Some news about Poles and Polish settlements in the United States
- News from Canada and the world

Gazeta Katolicka is a unique source of information about the Polish community in Canada. Apart from making Polish, Canadian and world news available in Polish, this newspaper was also a communication link for Poles scattered throughout Canada and an invaluable source of information about Canadian laws and customs.

Letters from readers and community reports published in Gazeta Katolicka provide information about the development of Polish settlements in Canada; the process of assimilation of Poles into the Canadian society; the problems they faced; how they interacted with other immigrants and with the Canadian society at large; how they organized themselves; and how they struggled to have their voices heard.

None of the other Polish newspapers in Canada offer such a wealth of information about the lives of the early Polish-Canadians and the establishment of the Polish community throughout Canada.
