Northwest Territories Community Wellness in Action: 2003-2004

Summary Report of Community Wellness Initiatives

Message from the Minister

I am pleased to present Community Wellness in Action 2003-2004: A Summary Report of Community Wellness Initiatives. This document outlines community-based prevention and promotion initiatives implemented across the Northwest Territories during the past fiscal year.

Supporting communities in improving wellness is a key role of Government. In 2003-2004, the Government of the Northwest Territories and Health Canada provided more than eight million dollars for community wellness programs. This funding was spent on a variety of wellness initiatives, particularly in the areas of early childhood development and community mental health.

I encourage communities to continue their journey on the path to wellness and take advantage of the many funding programs available to them.

Introduction

The Northwest Territories Community Wellness in Action Report is published annually by the Department of Health and Social Services, Government of the Northwest Territories. The 2003-2004 Wellness in Action report provides detailed information of 13 federal and territorial wellness programs implemented in 32 communities across the Northwest Territories between April 1, 2003 and March 31, 2004.

The following wellness programs are included in the report:

- Brighter Futures
- Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (First Nations and Inuit component)
- Aboriginal Diabetes Initiative (Prevention and Promotion component)
- Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) Program
- Health Promotion Fund
- Healthy Children Initiative
- Aboriginal Head Start
- AIDS Community Action Program
- Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (General Population component)
- Community Action Program for Children
- Community Animation Program
- Hepatitis C Prevention, Support and Research Program
- Population Health Fund

Ten wellness programs supported initiatives in selected communities only, while three wellness programs – Brighter Futures, the Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (First Nations and Inuit Component), and the Healthy Children Initiative – had budget allocations for every community in the Northwest Territories.

Eight wellness programs targeted the general population while five wellness programs – Brighter Futures, Aboriginal Head Start, the Aboriginal Diabetes Initiative (prevention and promotion component), the Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (First Nations and Inuit component), and the Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) Program – provided funding targeted to First Nations and Inuvialuit.

This report lists wellness funding and wellness initiatives according to region. The information provided has been derived from community reports. Funding under all wellness programs, except the Health Promotion Fund, is representative of dollars committed to projects in contribution agreements. Funding under the Health Promotion Fund is representative of actual expenditures. A chart outlining all wellness programs and their funding agencies has also been provided.

Description of Wellness Programs

Brighter Futures is designed to assist First Nations and Inuit communities in developing community-based approaches to health programs. The purpose is to improve the quality of, and access to, culturally sensitive wellness services in the community. These services will in turn help create healthy family and community environments that support child development. While the program is intended specially for First Nations and Inuit children from ages 0 to 6, it is recognized that children's needs cannot be separated from those of their families and communities. There are a number of components to Brighter Futures: mental health, child development, injury prevention, healthy babies, solvent abuse and parenting skills. The communities determine their priorities and allocate their resources accordingly.

Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program (CPNP) ¹

The Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program is a universally accessible program that helps communities to develop or enhance comprehensive services for pregnant women. Projects promote breastfeeding, both initiation and continuation; aim to improve the diets of pregnant and breastfeeding women; and attempt to help women feed their infants appropriately for their age. The program has a component for First Nations and Inuit women.

Aboriginal Diabetes Initiative (ADI/P&P) ²

The Aboriginal Diabetes Initiative is one of four main components of the Canadian Diabetes Strategy (CDS) announced by the Government of Canada in 1999. Prevention and health promotion activities should increase awareness of diabetes and its complications, create awareness of the benefits of healthy eating, active living, and encourage the integration of traditional methods and practices with western-based approaches.

Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD) Program ³

The FASD Program has two goals: To reduce the number of babies being born with FASD (prevention); and to help make life better for children who have FASD and their families (intervention). The FASD program funds activities that:

- Help those who may be at risk of having a baby with FASD
- Will support parents, families, or caregivers of children with FASD
- Will help to identify, assess, and diagnose children with FASD
- Will provide education and training about FASD

Funding is targeted to First Nations and Inuvialuit.

Aboriginal Head Start (AHS) ¹

Aboriginal Head Start is an early intervention program for First Nations, Inuit and Métis children and their families. It is primarily a preschool program that prepares young Aboriginal children for school by meeting their spiritual, emotional, intellectual and physical needs.

AIDS Community Action Program (ACAP) ⁴

The AIDS Community Action Program is a component of the Canadian Strategy on HIV/AIDS, the federal government's framework to respond to AIDS in Canada. ACAP aims to (i) prevent the spread of HIV; (ii) ensure treatment, care and support for people living with HIV and AIDS, their caregivers, families and friends; (iii) minimize the adverse impact of HIV/AIDS on individuals and communities; and (vi) minimize the impact of social and economic factors that increase individual and collective risk for HIV infection.

Description of Wellness Programs

Community Action Program for Children (CAPC) ⁵

The Community Action Program for Children funds community-based coalitions to establish and deliver services to meet the developmental needs of children under age six living in conditions at risk. These children are living in low-income families; or teenage-parent families, are at risk of, or have, developmental delays, social, emotional or behavioral delays and/or are neglected or abused.

Community Animation Program (CAP) ⁵

The Community Animation Program is a joint Environment Canada and Health Canada program that increases communities' understanding of health and environment links and strengthens communities' ability to take action on these issues.

Hepatitis C Prevention, Support and Research Program

The program has four goals: to contribute to the prevention of hepatitis C infection; to support persons infected with and affected by hepatitis C; to provide a stronger evidence base for hepatitis C policy and programming decisions and advance prevention, treatment and cure options by expanding the body of available research and research capacity; and to strengthen the response of the Canadian population to hepatitis C through increased awareness and capacity.

Population Health Fund (PHF) ¹

The goal of the Population Health Fund is to increase community capacity for action on or across determinants of health. Through project funding, the fund supports initiatives that facilitate coordinated action among voluntary organizations, service providers, governments and the private sector to improve population health.

Healthy Children Initiative (HCI) ⁷

This initiative supports the development of children from prenatal to age six. It focuses on prevention and health promotion and supports a wide range of programs and services from primary intervention to therapeutic services. The initiative is based on a more family-centered model. Earlier child-centered models were treatment driven - focusing on correcting and treating weaknesses and deficits. The family-centered approach places more emphasis on family needs and strengths.

Health Promotion Fund (HPF) ⁸

The Health Promotion Fund supports community-based projects that improve the health of prenatal women, infants, children and youth. The goal of the strategy is to improve health and wellness through community development, the promotion of healthy lifestyles and the reduction of preventable diseases.

First Nations and Inuit Tobacco Strategy Funding

The purpose of this funding is to reduce smoking rates and tobacco related illness and death among First Nations and Inuit populations.

Nutrition assessments were conducted occasionally by the program coordinator and regional CPNP nutritionist. Approximately six prenatal, postnatal, and/or breastfeeding women and three non-pregnant women of childbearing age attended each session/activity. Breastfeeding activities were offered. Other services offered included food supplements/meal bag program, childcare, transportation, games, and prizes or incentives.

Aboriginal Head Start

Inuvialuit Regional Corporation

- Isaksaqtuak Inuvialuktun Paulatumi Mikiyuayaat
 - This half-day program ran 5 days per week and provided an early childhood preschool program that is based on the Inuvialuit language, culture and spiritually. Elders, parents and extended families were involved closely in the program activities. Extended programming offered a Saturday parents' day out and a monthly nutrition bingo that helped support and educate families in the community. Materials and sewing space were available for parents and elders who supported the traditional sewing and helped ensure children had adequate clothing for the harsh winter.
- Little Bear Society AHS
 - The core program was an early intervention program for 3-5 year-olds, offered in half-day sessions to maximize the number of spaces for children to access. A "learning through play"-based program was implemented using best practices for remote northern communities. Support and education were offered to children and their families around the core components of education, health and nutrition, with a strong focus on community organizations to ensure a variety of social support to empower families. Ongoing evaluation and community input were a key part of the program to ensure the project stayed focused on the needs of Inuvik families.

Healthy Children Initiative

The program coordinator occasionally conducted nutrition assessments. Other services offered included food vouchers, food supplements/meal bag program, home visits, and prizes or incentives.

Community Action Program for Children

Yellowknife Catholic Schools

- The objective of the toy lending library was to provide young children with the opportunity to play with others and to have exposure to educational toys, while increasing parental awareness of how they could participate in their child's development. It also provided opportunities for caregivers to identify children at risk and to make special needs toys and books accessible to parents who otherwise would be unable to afford them. Workshops for parents were offered on a variety of topics.

Yellowknife Association for Community Living

- This project promoted the health and social/intellectual development of children with developmental disabilities associated with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder. The intent was to promote understanding, education and community action for the prevention of FASD/FAE and to facilitate the development of an effective community-based support system. Audio-visual materials and other resources were developed to promote the prevention of FAS/FAE and to support families who were dealing with this issue.

N.W.T. Council of Persons with Disabilities

- This is an early childhood intervention program which assisted 14 per-school children with disabilities and their families. Child Intervention workers assisted children with their development in community early childhood programs and/or in their home environment.

Healthy Children Initiative

Yellowknife Catholic Schools

- Preschool program – Funding assisted with operational costs associated with the Four Plus program, a fully integrated early intervention program for children 4-6 years of age. There were 59 children enrolled in the program this year.

Centre for Northern Families

- Family support – The Family Support Program provided families with children from 0 - 6 years of age with in-home support (home management, parenting and life skills development), respite, group parenting sessions, literacy programs, crisis management, and referral services.

NWT Council of Persons with Disabilities

- Early intervention – This program provided support to children under the age of six to access early childhood programs. Each child received one-to-one assistance for a minimum of five hours per week, attending a community based early childhood program or a private family day home. The children were able to integrate with their peers while working on their developmental goals in the areas of fine and gross motor, cognitive development, speech and language, social and life skills, and behavioral strategies.

Garderie Plein Soleil

- Funding was used to replace books that were damaged at the Garderie Plein School due to a flood.

Yellowknives Dene First Nation

Northern Nutrition Association and Yellowknife Health and Social Services Authority

- Hands on Health Conference – CPNP workers across the NWT participated in this conference focusing on nutrition and early childhood development.

AIDS Community Action Program/Hepatitis C

Status of Women Council of the NWT

- This project sponsored a joint community/federal/ territorial initiative implemented in September 2000. The model includes a Funding and Support Team (FAST) responsible for the development, implementation and monitoring of the fund that promotes and administers HIV/Hepatitis C prevention and awareness projects in NWT communities.

Population Health Fund

NWT Recreation and Parks Association

- The goal of this project was to reduce the health risks related to diseases including type 2 diabetes by promoting healthy lifestyle choices. Community workshops, town hall sessions and school sessions were used to reach a broad range of target populations. The workshops focus on increasing community awareness about healthy living choices and included information about nutrition, physical activity, and tobacco use. Presentations were also delivered in schools to provide a forum for discussion about healthy living amongst youth, and to promote the use of the toolkit with teachers.

Health Promotion Fund

Northern Nutrition Association

- Hands on Health Conference-Active Living Session – Funds supported an active living session with front-line NWT community health workers to develop facilitation skills to incorporate physical activity into community-based programs.
- Arctic Winter Gamers-Healthy Snacks – Active living resources and healthy snacks were distributed in conjunction with Nutrition Month for 350 Arctic Winter Games athletes.

NWT Council of Persons with Disabilities

- FASD Prevention – Bumper stickers promoting the prevention of FASD were designed, printed and distributed throughout the NWT via the Aboriginal FASD Partnership (Dene Nation, NWT Native Women's Association, and G Division, RCMP).

NWT Regional Projects

Yellowknife Health and Social Services Authority

- Active Living Kits – This pilot project involved distribution of active-living kits to elementary/middle school classrooms in six communities in the NWT. Teachers were given an orientation session on how the contents of the kit could be used in their programming.
- Community Gardening North of 60 – Community gardens were developed in Trout Lake and Hay River (West Point), in cooperation with CPNP project participants, to plan, maintain and harvest the gardens. Produce was to be used in cooking classes or as part of teaching in food preservation.
- NWT Breastfeeding Promotion – Funds supported a breastfeeding training conference for approximately 90 NWT community wellness workers and 90 NWT health professionals: and an evening breastfeeding session for breastfeeding families, hosted by the Yellowknife Breastfeeding Support Group. Dr. Jack Newman, a well-known Canadian breastfeeding expert provided the training and information sessions.

Sport North

- Get Your Groove On – Funds supported a series of healthy lifestyle events for girls in several NWT communities. The pilot program promoted active living, healthy eating, and self-esteem through some 'fun' events. Communities visited included Inuvik, Fort McPherson and Fort Simpson.

Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder Program

Aboriginal FASD Team of the NWT

- Funds supported the development and distribution of FASD awareness materials
- Aboriginal trading cards were developed and distributed throughout the NWT.

Native Women's Association of the NWT

- A family violence workshop was held March 25-26, 2004. Several speakers from across the NWT and other jurisdictions talked about family violence, how to address it, how to build healthier communities, and how to support Aboriginal women's healing processes.

Deh Cho Friendship Centre, Fort Simpson

- A three-day FASD conference “Secondary Disabilities – Supporting the Environment” was held in Fort Simpson in February 2004.

Dene Nation

- A three-day capacity building retreat for Dene Elders who provide care to grandchildren with FASD was held in Ndilo. Twenty-four individuals and couples attended to share their experiences, to support each other and to explore the legal, medical, educational and community justice issues in a traditional Dene manner.
