National Coaching Certification Program (NCCP)

April 1, 2005 - March 31, 2006 Multisport Courses Nova Scotia

NCCP overview

The NCCP is a training and certification program for coaches, offered across Canada in over 60 sports. The program was designed to meet the needs of a wide range of coaches — from those who introduce youngsters to sport to those who work with Canada's high-performance athletes.

Since its inception, more than 875,000 coaches have taken part in NCCP activities, which have helped them to develop the skill, knowledge, and attitudes required to coach effectively.

The NCCP prepares coaches to

- better meet the needs of all participants in sport
- provide a positive sport experience to participants
- provide opportunities for participants to achieve their full potential in and around sport

The current NCCP

The current NCCP is a knowledge- and course-based program with five levels of cerification.

The new NCCP

The design of the new NCCP reflects the different types of coaches (coaching streams in the Canadian sport system and the specific environments (coaching contexts) they work in. It will be up to each sport to determine which streams and contexts apply to its development system. The abilities deemed important to coach in a given context determine the scope of training required.

How coaches achieve certification

In the current program, coaches achieve certification at Level 1, Level 2, or Level 3 by completing all three components (Theory, Technical, Practical) and by completing the required number of tasks for Levels 4 and 5.

The new NCCP makes a distinction between coach training and coach certification. Coaches who need training will have opportunities to acquire or refine the skills, knowledge, and attitudes deemed important to coach effectively in a particular context. Coaches who want to be certified will be required to demonstrate their ability to achieve the requirements identified for their coaching context in areas such as program design, practice planning, performance analysis, program management, ethical coaching, support to participants during training, and support to participants in competition.

During the transition

Elements of the new NCCP will be in place by 2005, but a number of sports and provinces/territories are already offering workshops and other learning opportunities using the competency- and outcomes-based approach. During this period of transition you would receive training and achieve certification in either the existing five-level program or in the new competency-based program, depending on the progress your sport and your province/territory have made toward converting to the new approach and structure.

For more information

For more information about the NCCP and the transition to a competency-based approach, please contact your Provincial Coaching Coordinator, Liz Pace (pacelt@gov.ns.ca, 424-3913), your provincial sport organization, or your national sport federation.
