Montreal, PQ.: He may work in the pulp and paper industry, but Guy Tremblay prefers not to have stacks of documents and binders in his office. Today, the Forest Certification Coordinator at Abitibi Consolidated Inc. in Montreal keeps on top of all his compliance requirements with the Canadian enviroOSH Legislation Plus Standards service from CCOHS.

Wide scope and quality

With a simple mouse click, Guy can access the complete text of Canadian health, safety and environmental legislation, as well as critical guidelines and codes of practice. "I am very pleased with the comprehensiveness and quality of the Canadian enviroOSH Legislation Plus Standards service," says Guy, who coordinates woodlands certification for Canada. Abitibi Consolidated is the world's leading newsprint manufacturer.

"With operations in British Columbia, Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland, I need to refer to federal and provincial documents and environmental legislation for specific regions in Canada, which I can now do quickly and easily. And instead of managing paper files, everything is available on my computer. Searching is faster and information is current and complete."

Full text of standards

The complete text of all documents enables Guy and his colleagues to determine the context of the information and how it applies to their situation. They can download sections for compliance manuals and reports, and can click and go to the full text of related standards referenced in the legislation.
