Area Overview

The Town of Three Hills was named after three prominent hills located north of the town. The entire community was moved to its present site on the Canadian Northern Railway (CNR) in 1912 and was incorporated as a village in the same year.

The first settlers were ranchers who freighted their supplies from Didsbury, 48 miles (77.3 kilometers) east. Early ranchers were: Arthur Evans, Fred Brandly, and R.E. Morgan. The second wave of settlers to the area after the ranchers were mixed farmers. As homesteaders settled the region, Three Hills became a major service centre for the large wheat growing area.

In 1922, the Prairie Bible Institute was established on land north of the village limits. In time, the institute grew to a campus of 120 acres (48.6 hectares) in size with an enrolment of over 1,000 students.

In 1983 the town annexed a large area surrounding the town site, including the small hamlet of Grantville. This increased the population of Three Hills to more than 2,000 people. In 1984, the town expanded yet again to include the Prairie Bible Institute and Ruarkville, which increased the population to 3,375.

Recently, the town council has developed a business plan geared towards growth in population. The current population is 3,554 with a trading population of 11,000. Agriculture is the primary industry in the area followed by oil and gas production. The municipality also produces approximately 6.3 per cent of Alberta's wheat, 10 per cent of the barley, 3.9 per cent of the canola, 11.63 per cent of the poultry, 7.7 per cent of the hogs and 2.11 per cent of the dairy.

Location

Located in just about the center of the region bounded by Airdrie, Olds, Stettler, Drumheller & Strathmore, Three Hills is the largest commercial community in the County. Although the town is in a very prosperous agricultural district, it was primarily the discovery of coal that helped get the community off its feet. Today farming is still the mainstay while the discovery of oil and gas has shed a new light on the future growth and Development of Three Hills.

AIR SERVICE

The Three Hills Municipal Airport: is located approximately one mile east of the town of Three Hills. It has a 3,000 foot paved and lighted runway, a parallel taxiway, and a paved aircraft parking area with tiedowns. Avgas is available and the cost is very competitive. The terminal has a payphone, restroom, and room to relax. Land is available for interested aircraft owners to lease for hangar construction. The airport is listed in the Canada Flight Supplement.

 The airport is home to the Prairie School of Mission Aviation (PSMA), a ministry of Prairie Bible Institute. PSMA was established in 1992 to train highly skilled and responsible pilots for Christian Missions and humanitarian work around the world. Three Hills is an ideal location for the school, close to major centres for training in complex environments, the Rocky Mountains are nearby for mountain and survival training, and numerous unpaved strips in the area are employed in advanced training. Southern Alberta's typically sunny weather allows flying throughout the year. As time and resources permit, the school also occasionally trains local residents who are interested in obtaining a pilot's license. PSMA enjoys a solid reputation with Transport Canada, with flight and written test scores significantly higher than national and regional averages.

Red Deer Regional Airport: Built during World War II, The Red Deer Regional Airport was an Air Force training base until the City of Red Deer took over operation in 1965. Later, The ownership of the airport was taken over on September 1st, 1999 by the Red Deer Regional Airport Authority, which includes the City of Red Deer, Red Deer County and the Red Deer Chamber of Commerce as stakeholders.
