1. Starting Your Business

Do it right: from initial concepts through planning to a firm foundation

BUSINESS

Starting a business can be daunting. The Government of Canada provides a wide range of programs, services and tools to help you meet that challenge. By consulting Canada Business, you can:

- Get valuable information about business planning, market research, taxation, financing and e-commerce from the Business Start-up Assistant.
- Access the network of Community Business Development Corporations throughout Atlantic Canada, and obtain local investment funds to finance your small business for start-up, receive business advice and help with your business plan, get exporting tips, attend entrepreneurial training workshops and more.
- Prepare three-year business plans using the Interactive Business Planner.
- Enrich your business plan with detailed financial and employment data on small businesses by industry for Canada, the provinces and territories from Performance Plus.
- Evaluate your proposed or existing business with the Online Small Business Workshop, a self-directed learning tool.
- Learn about starting a small business, registering for a GST/HST account, administering payrolls, preparing T4 slips and more by attending Small-Business Information seminars.

- Register for a business number with the Canada Revenue Agency and with four participating provinces using the Business Registration Online service.
- Gain practical information, tools and advice for just-in-time solutions to management challenges by using the Managing for Business Success program.
- Capitalize on business planning resources, customize benchmarking tools, make use of cost calculators and complete many business-related tasks online, such as filing for a patent. These are just some of the interactive applications that Strategis offers you.
- Learn more about intellectual property — its importance and strategic value to your business — and get answers to questions most often asked by entrepreneurs.

2. Understanding Taxes

Stay on top of reporting requirements, access secure online services, or apply for tax credits for scientific research and experimental development

You can run your company better when you know how your business decisions will affect your taxes. By taking advantage of the tax information and services available from the Government of Canada, you can:

- Find answers to virtually all tax-related questions, as well as forms, tax packages, guides, schedules and information circulars.
- File your corporation information (T4, T4A, T5, etc.) and GST/HST returns electronically over the Internet.

- Pay your taxes electronically through your financial institution's telephone or Internet banking service.
- Ask the government to electronically process certain financial and non-financial actions, such as money transfers or the reissuing of lost statements, on your account.
- Calculate the Canada Pension Plan, Employment Insurance, and federal, provincial and territorial tax deductions for all pay periods using downloadable software called Tables on Diskette.
- Fulfill reporting requirements by advising the government that you (or your client) have no payroll deductions to submit by using the TeleReply system.
- Apply for scientific research and experimental development investment tax credits for expenditures such as wages, materials, machinery and equipment.

3. Capitalizing on Sector Information

Unearth support and contacts specific to your business

Whether you're looking for information on potential customers or your competitors, you can mine a rich vein of useful business data from the Government of Canada, all conveniently organized by sector.

Here's a brief look at some of the sector-specific programs and services available:

Manufacturing industries

- If your business deals with advanced manufacturing technologies — or would like to — look into the Solutions for Advanced Manufacturing program. You can get information on how to combine innovative manufacturing techniques and machines with information technology, microelectronics and new organizational practices. It's all about staying competitive globally by boosting productivity and quality and cutting costs.

Resource industries

- If your business is in forestry, agriculture, fisheries or another resource industry, consult Canada Business to discover the latest technology...find out about business opportunities...locate industry conferences...and much more.

Construction industries

- Stay up-to-date with Canada's National Construction Codes through National Research Council Canada's (NRC's) national code centre, an indispensable source of information for building, fire and plumbing officials, educators and construction professionals.

Service industries

- If your company operates in the arts and cultural industries, you may be eligible for funding from Canadian Heritage. The Canada New Media Fund can assist you in researching, developing and marketing Canadian new media products.

Technology industries

- The technology industry is changing faster than any other, but you can stay on top of these changes by getting the latest annual figures on the Canadian information and communications technology sector: revenues...employment...gross domestic product...research and development expenditures...capital outlays... trade...salaries...and more.

Tourism

- Access the tools and strategic information you need to succeed in tourism — including detailed research and information, industry news delivered to your inbox each day, early access to new programs, and marketing opportunities and tools — and capitalize on this country's potential as a high-demand travel destination.

Programs supporting sustainable development

Regardless of what industry sector your business is in, energy costs represent a substantial portion of business overhead and can directly affect your bottom line. Take advantage of programs and information, rebates and incentives designed for industry from Natural Resources Canada's Office of Energy Efficiency:

- Commercial Building Incentive Program — for the design of energy-efficient buildings
- EnerGuide for Existing Buildings — for energy audits, feasibility studies and retrofits
- Dollars to $ense Energy Management Workshops — for building-operation advice
- Vehicle Fleet Initiative — for information and assistance on reducing fleet operating and maintenance costs through energy-efficient practices

4. Learning about Regulations

Understand the regulations that apply to your business

The Government of Canada can help you manage a number of activities related to regulation:

- Complying with Canada's tax legislation and regulations.
- Abiding by the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act. If you're demolishing a building...remediating contaminated land...opening a public campground... dredging a harbour...or undertaking any number of projects that require an environmental review, you'll be able to find out how to meet the requirements of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act.
- Protecting intellectual property such as products, processes, logos or songs. The Government of Canada grants and registers ownership for six types of intellectual property: patents, trademarks, copyrights, industrial designs, integrated circuit topographies and plant breeders' rights.
- Deciding whether to incorporate your business or operate it as a sole proprietorship or partnership.
- Dealing with the wild animal and plant trade and the export or import of hazardous wastes.
- Guarding personal information from identity theft. By law, businesses must protect personal information collected from customers and use it only for approved purposes.

- Dealing with an individual or a corporation that has filed for bankruptcy or has been put under receivership by a creditor.

5. Innovating

Develop, exploit and protect your ideas

When you innovate, you stay a step ahead of your competitors. The Government of Canada offers a number of programs and services to foster innovation and sharpen your competitive edge. These programs and services will help you to:

- Expand your innovation capacity by adopting new technology or by investing in research and development projects that generate new products, processes or services. The Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency's Business Development Program and Atlantic Innovation Fund can provide you with advice and financing to help turn your innovative ideas into profits.
- Turn your innovative research and development projects into commercially successful products and services. NRC's Industrial Research Assistance Program offers technical and business advice and funding to help your business reach its full potential.

6. Financing

Find and manage money for your business

If you're looking to finance your small or medium-sized business, contact Canada Business. You can get an extensive directory of Canadian financial providers and quickly locate providers that fit your needs. You'll also find information on different types of financing and financial providers, as well as tips to help you secure the financing you need.

Below you will find some of the funding opportunities and programs that the Government of Canada offers to eligible small and medium-sized businesses. Government financial institutions and programs can provide the kind of local economic development and financial and consulting services that private sector financial institutions are not equipped to offer.

- Obtain local investment funds to finance your small business by contacting one of the Community Business Development Corporations located across Atlantic Canada.
- Receive unsecured, interest-free loans to help you set up, expand or modernize your business — as well as improve your competitiveness — through the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency's Business Development Program.
- Take advantage of business resources for women entrepreneurs — including advice, training and financing — with the support of the Women in Business Initiative from the Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency.

7. Managing Human Resources

Recruit, employ, train and manage your staff

Need information on recruiting, hiring, managing or training employees? The Government of Canada can provide solutions to help you tackle any number of common human resource activities:

- Registering employees with the Canada Pension Plan
- Meeting federal minimum hourly wage regulations
- Hiring foreign workers
- Posting job openings
- Finding qualified employees
- Providing job opportunities for persons with disabilities
- Enrolling employees in the Employment Insurance program
- Keeping proper records of employment

Here are some of the other ways that your company can benefit from the Government of Canada's human resources programs and services:

- Understand labour and workplace regulations, take advantage of employee-training programs and capitalize on wage subsidies. Service Canada lists your primary sources for all human resource-related services and programs.
- Match the right employees to your job openings by searching a database of more than one-quarter million job seekers.
- Access a comprehensive network of online training and funding programs, as well as partnership initiatives.

- Hire specialized graduates and have their salaries paid. The Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency's Export Internship for Trade Graduates allows you to hire trade graduates who can help you develop an international marketing plan. NRC will pay the salaries of specialized graduates for certain periods to help your small or medium-sized business conduct research and development.

8. Exporting

Spread Canada's reputation for quality and innovation around the globe

Selling your goods and services in the international marketplace can be a challenge, but the rewards can be great. There are a variety of useful tools and resources available that can help:

- Start on the right track with the popular Step-by-Step Guide to Exporting and the Roadmap to Exporting. Available online and in print, both provide clear, useful information for every stage of the export process and include contacts and resources.
- Sharpen your skills by taking advantage of training offered in various locations across Canada. Courses and workshops cover key aspects of international trade: export-readiness, market research, international marketing, financing, logistics and more.

10. Doing Business with Governments

Use the right tools for the job

The Government of Canada buys about $13 billion worth of goods and services from thousands of suppliers annually. The government makes most of these purchases through Public Works and Government Services Canada, which buys everything from flu vaccines to paper clips.

- Improve your access to government business. The Office of Small and Medium Enterprises collaborates with industry associations and individual businesses on training, information, development of support tools and participation in Government of Canada procurement policy changes.
- Stay up to the minute with government-contracting opportunities. The Government Electronic Tendering Service is an online system that advertises contracting opportunities. Operated by an independent contractor, the system is commonly referred to as MERX™.
- Find information on purchasing practices, contracting opportunities and key contacts. Business Access Canada offers purchasing information for buyers and sellers.
- Get tax information on contracting with the Government of Canada and learn how to report contract income. Canada Revenue Agency provides information for businesses and self-employed individuals.
