INTRODUCTION

This finding aid is classified as a numerical list because it describes the files in the fonds. Descriptive notes have been prepared for the overall presentation of the fonds as well as each series. The various levels of description thus enable researchers to find information by going from the general to the specific.

The descriptive note for each file contains a file code, the title, the inclusive dates, the type of record (texts, sound recordings, photographs, etc.), the number or linear quantity of textual records and the number of iconographic, a description of the file's contents when it contains different types of records, and a section for notes. In addition to these elements, the introductions to the fonds and the series also contain biographical information (only in the fonds introduction), a section dealing with the scope of the records and comments on the classification peculiarities of a few series.

This finding aid does not contain any files marked "undated". Whenever we encountered records with no date, we dated them in one of the following ways: [1959?]: probable date; [ca 1950]: approximate date; [197-]: decade known; [197-?]: decade unknown.

File numbers, which enable files to be located quickly and accurately, are structured as follows:

MUS 165/A4/2,16

- MUS: Repository (Music Division)
- 165: Fonds (Mathieu Family fonds)
- A: Series (Rodolphe Mathieu)
- 4: Sub-series (Musical works)
- 2: Sub-sub-series (Chamber music)
- 16: File (Quatuor à cordes no 1 - Plaisir)

For easier use, the numerical list also features an index of proper names and titles, and an index of files. The proper name index contains mostly names of individuals and musical groups, titles of works and names of radio or television programs. The references in the index are to file numbers, not page numbers. For greater simplicity, the first two components of the file number have been omitted in the index (e.g. MUS 165/A4/2,16 becomes A4/2,16). We have also compiled a file index matching file codes with box numbers.

The structure of this finding aid is based on the standards prescribed in Rules for Archival Description, prepared by the Bureau of Canadian Archivists.

Biographical Notes

RODOLPHE MATHIEU (1890-1962)

Son of Olivine Arcand and Octave Mathieu, Rodolphe Mathieu was born in Grondines, a village near Quebec City. He was introduced to music by his sisters. At the age of 16 he left his birthplace and moved to Montreal, where he studied piano with Alphonse Martin and singing with Céline Marier. Fired with youthful enthusiasm and creative zeal, he went on to study harmony, counterpoint and composition with Alexis Contant. At 17 he was appointed chief organist at Saint-Jean Berchmans Church, at the same time beginning a career teaching music.

In 1920, with financial assistance from friends, he left for Paris to complete his musical studies. On the advice of Albert Roussel, he enrolled at the Schola Cantorum, where he would study composition with Vincent d'Indy and orchestration with Louis Aubert. During his seven years there, he also studied conducting under Vladimir Golschmann and took Pierre Janet's course in experimental psychology at the Collège de France. His training in psychology would prove useful when he came to write his work on teaching entitled Tests d'aptitudes musicales. After many requests, he received the first scholarship awarded to a composer by the Quebec government in 1923 while living in extreme poverty.

In 1927 he returned to Montreal and devoted himself to teaching and composing. After teaching at the Institut pédagogique, directed by the Dames de la Congrégation, and also at the Révérendes Soeurs de Sainte-Anne convent in Lachine, he founded his own music school in 1929: l'Institut canadien de musique. The school soon became well-known, as did the Soirées Mathieu, informal concert evenings organized by Rodolphe Mathieu to showcase young composers and Canadian talent.

“And one day, Rodolphe Mathieu abandoned all his activities to look after a new arrival: André Mathieu”. (translation) This sentence, written by Rodolphe Mathieu shortly before his death, gives us a glimpse if not of nostalgia, of hope and sacrifice. The hope of a father and teacher about the talent of his child and the sacrifice of a man who, little by little, moves over to make room for this other person, his son. Needless to say, Rodolphe Mathieu did not, as he put it, abandon all his activities; he continued to compose, write and direct l'Institut canadien de musique. But from 1929 on, his life would change direction and be divided between his own career and his son's.

Rodolphe Mathieu has left us many works, including a string quartet, trio and quintet, 22 Dialogues for violin and cello, sonatas and an impressive array of vocal music. In addition to Tests d'aptitudes musicales, his writings include a treatise on creativity (Problèmes - Aperceptions), a book of thoughts (Pensées et Anecdotes) and various articles about music and art in general (L'Étatisation de la musique, Le Sentiment amoureux en art). Both innovative and original, Rodolphe Mathieu's music has often been misunderstood, even dismissed. Today it waits in silence, waiting to be revived...

ANDRÉ MATHIEU (1929-1968)

The son of Rodolphe Mathieu and Wilhelmine Gagnon-Mathieu, André Mathieu was born in Montreal. From birth, he was plunged into a musical environment. At an early age he was fascinated by the world of music and the object that, curiously enough, he was forbidden even to touch: the piano. Despite Rodolphe's efforts to turn André away from music, which he regarded as a pauper's profession, one day the father had to admit defeat: André had just composed his first pieces (Les Gros Chars, Trois études); he was four years old and exceptionally talented, with a creative power still untouched by academic training. Resigned and defeated, Rodolphe went on to undertake the musical training of his son André.

At the age of five, André Mathieu gave his first recital at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel; the audience was ecstatic, enchanted by the works of this child prodigy. In 1936, conducted by J.-J. Gagnier, he performed his Concertino no. 1 on the CRBC network. In the same year he received a scholarship from the Quebec government. The young performer left Montreal for Paris with his family to study piano under Yves Nat and Mrs. Giraud-Latarse as well as composition and harmony with Jacques de la Presle. A few months later he won the acclaim of the Paris critics with his recital at the Salle Chopin-Pleyel. After a repeat performance at the Salle Gaveau in March 1939, the critics were unanimous: André Mathieu was a "little Canadian Mozart".

In 1939, André Mathieu returned to Montreal for the holidays, but the outbreak of war closed the gates to Europe. With no choice but to remain in North America, he began a series of concerts in Canada and made his debut at the New York Town Hall. From 1940 to 1943, he lived in New York studying composition with Harold Morris. In 1941, he entered the New York Philharmonic young composers' contest. He won first prize for his Concertino no. 2, confirming once again his talents as a composer. Back in Montreal from 1943 until late summer 1946, he gave many concerts and continued composing (Sonate no. 1 for violin and piano, Concerto de Québec).

Fall 1946 proved to be a turning point in the life of André Mathieu; he had to start leading his own life and leave for Paris alone, to study composition with Arthur Honegger and piano with Jules Gentil. Nothing seemed to go as he planned; he was disappointed by his teachers, short of money, bored, vulnerable, lonely and homesick. “Now that I am alone with myself,” wrote André Mathieu, “I can see that life is like a huge arena where we have to fight or be knocked out”. (translation). In another letter to his parents, he continues: “I can’t stand the atmosphere at the Conservatoire and the École normale”. (translation) Miserable in Paris, he returned to Montreal in 1947, depressed and exhausted. André Mathieu had lost his first, decisive fight to become independent. From 1947, he was no longer the same man. Over the years, he gradually succumbed to alcohol and abandoned his concert career. The most he did was to take part in a few absurd “pianothons”, playing furiously to break records at events that bore more resemblance to a circus than to music. However, he continued composing and also began teaching. In particular he wrote a trio for violin, cello and piano (1949), a quintet (1953), a symphonic poem: Mistassini (1954) and a Rhapsodie romantique for full orchestra. In 1960, he married Marie-Ange Massicotte but their happiness was short-lived, undermined by alcoholism and André Mathieu’s emotional problems. He died suddenly at the age of 39. This prolific composer left a wide range of music full of feeling.

WILHELMINE GAGNON-MATHIEU (1910-1976)

Wilhelmine Gagnon was born in Saint-Constant, the daughter of village physician Jean-Arthur Gagnon and Albina Proulx. She was educated by the Dames du Sacré-Coeur and also studied violin with Alfred De Sève. On December 10, 1928, she married Rodolphe Mathieu and the couple had two children: André and Camille (1931). Although she was a fine violinist, she devoted her life to her children and to teaching. In 1958 she founded L’Oiseau Bleu, a small private school.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FONDS

MUS 165/A RODOPLHE MATHIEU. – 1910-1976. – 78 cm of textual records. – 6 photographs: b&w; 9 x 22.5 cm or smaller.

This series consists of records illustrating the musical activities, thought and personal life of Rodolphe Mathieu. The manuscripts of his musical works reflect the composer's development over the years and illustrate his originality. Among them are the Quatuor à cordes no. 1 (Plaisir), the hymn Lève-toi Canadien, Douze études modernes for violin, Symphonie pour voix humaines, Trois préludes for orchestra, Les Saisons canadiennes for voice and piano and Deux poèmes for voice and string quartet. Rodolphe Mathieu's writings also reveal an author who was socially aware and closely followed the development of new methods of teaching music.

Among the items in this series are a baptismal certificate, correspondence, contracts, musical works, notarial deeds, counterpoint and harmony exercises, writings that include Pensées et anecdotes and Tests d'aptitudes musicales, concert programs, financial documents, a diploma, publicity materials, membership lists, invitations, press clippings and photographs.

The series consists of the following sub-series: MUS 165/A1 Official Records; MUS 165/A2 Personal and Professional Correspondence; MUS 165/A3 Academic Work; MUS 165/A4 Musical Works; MUS 165/A5 Concert Programs and Publicity; MUS 165/A6 Teaching and Directing at l'Institut canadien de musique; MUS 165/A7 Writings; MUS 165/A8 Press clippings; MUS 165/A9 Miscellaneous.

In order to standardize the description of the instruments in a work, we have used the coding generally accepted in the musical world. The figures "3. 2. 2. 2 - 4. 3. 3. 1" denote, for example, the following instrumentation: 3 flutes, 2 oboes, 2 clarinets, 2 bassoons, 4 horns, 3 trumpets, 3 trombones and 1 tuba. Blocks of figures separated by a dash correspond to the woodwinds and brass, and follow the traditional order in which the various instruments appear on a score. If the player of one instrument also plays another instrument, this is specified with the abbreviation for the second instrument appearing in brackets (e.g. 3(pic) = 3 flutes plus 1 piccolo played by one of the three flautists). Also, if the work requires another musician for an auxiliary instrument, this is indicated by the "+" symbol (e.g. 2+cbn = 2 bassoons plus a third musician for the contrabassoon). Many descriptions of musical works do not specify the auxiliary instruments, showing them only with an asterisk followed by a number (*3) or with an underlined number (4). In describing archival records, we chose to give auxiliary instruments an important place to reflect the fact that they enrich the orchestra with particular sound qualities.

The records in this series illustrate the musical career and personal life of André Mathieu. The many concert programs, posters and press clippings provide a wealth of information about his early career as a child prodigy and his subsequent development. The items of correspondence with his family and friends are also a valuable source of information about his state of mind and his music. The composer's various musical works reflect his talent as a composer and his romantic outlook. His many works include Concerto de Québec, Quintette en deux mouvements, Chant du Bloc populaire, the symphonic poem Le Chant des ténèbres, Rhapsodie romantique for orchestra and Fantaisie brésilienne for violin and piano.

Among the items in this series are a baptismal certificate, confirmation certificate, correspondence, contracts, musical works, diplomas, school notebooks and report cards, writings, concert programs, publicity materials, radio texts, financial documents, posters, brochures, concert tickets, press clippings and photographs.

The series comprises the following sub-series: MUS 165/B1 Official records; MUS 165/B2 Personal and professional correspondence; MUS 165/B3 Studies; MUS 165/B4 Musical works; MUS 165/B5 Concert programs and publicity; MUS 165/B6 Writings; MUS 165/B7 Radio; MUS 165/B8 Bloc populaire canadien junior; MUS 165/B9 Press clippings; MUS 165/B10 Miscellaneous.

In order to standardize the description of the instruments in a work, we have used the coding generally accepted in the musical world. The figures "3. 2. 2. 2 - 4. 3. 3. 1" denote, for example, the following instrumentation: 3 flutes, 2 oboes, 2 clarinets, 2 bassoons, 4 horns, 3 trumpets, 3 trombones and 1 tuba. Blocks of figures separated by a dash correspond to the woodwinds and brass, and follow the traditional order in which the various instruments appear on a score. If the player of one instrument also plays another instrument, this is specified with the abbreviation for the second instrument appearing in brackets (e.g. 3(pic) = 3 flutes plus 1 piccolo played by one of the three flautists). Also, if the work requires another musician for an auxiliary instrument, this is indicated by the "+" symbol (e.g. 2+contrabsn = 2 bassoons plus a third musician for the contrabassoon). Many descriptions of musical works do not specify the auxiliary instruments, showing them only with an asterisk followed by a number (*3) or with an underlined number (4). In describing archival records, we chose to give auxiliary instruments an important place to reflect the fact that they enrich the orchestra with particular sound qualities.
