

Aliant New Media Prize

- Background: Through the generous financial contribution of Aliant, the Department of Tourism and Culture is able to present the Aliant New Media Prize. Beginning in October 2001, for five years, an annual prize of $10,000 is being offered. This prize is designed to support initiatives by artists or arts organizations of all disciplines that explore and develop the potential of new media technologies.
- The Prize: $10,000
- Frequency: Once a year
- Timing: Click here to visit the Culture Division online for funding deadlines.
- Purpose: To recognize artists and arts groups whose works illustrate creativity, exploration or presentation using new media technologies. For the purpose of this prize, the project is defined as an independent work, which includes an interactive component directly employing computing and communications technologies. The prize is open to not only creative projects, but projects that adapt existing works for presentation on the web.
- Eligibility: The New Media Art Prize will support established artists, emerging professional artists, arts groups or arts organizations living and working in Nova Scotia for at least one year prior to application (students are not eligible).
