

QUÉBEC OFFICES in the United States

AWARE of the paramount importance of its relations with the United States, the Government of Québec has established a network of seven offices across the United States: New York, Boston, Los Angeles, Chicago, Miami, Atlanta and Washington, D.C.

This network makes it possible to strengthen ties with our American partners in strategic fields such as trade and investment, security, energy and the environment. Québec is also eager to enhance political, cultural and institutional links and cooperation development with the United States.

Government House

A Government House is the most comprehensive form of Québec's representations abroad. It provides services in all sectors under Québec's jurisdiction—the economy, culture and immigration—as well as public affairs. It is headed by an Agent-General (or Delegate-General).

Government office

An office is the second most comprehensive form of Québec's representations abroad. It provides services in sectors under Québec's constitutional jurisdiction—the economy, education, culture and immigration—as well as public affairs. It is headed by a Delegate.

Government bureau

A bureau provides services in a limited number of areas, sometimes even a single sector. It is run by a Head of Post, generally a Director. Some of them are headed by a resident of the country where it is situated and provide service in one or more specific areas of activities (e.g., Trade Branch).
