

Insulation and Vapor Barriers In Potato Storage Buildings

Insulation in potato storage buildings limits heat gain in warm weather, limits heat loss in cold weather, and controls condensation. Insulating R-values discussed and charted for wood, polyurethane, galvanized steel, and aluminum foil. Author covers permeability of building materials and vapor barriers in table and text. To obtain a copy, contact:

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

Website: <http://pubs.wsu.edu/scripts/PubOrders/webListing.asp?category=274>