Housing

Saskatchewan Housing Corporation (SHC) provides quality housing and housing programs for low-income seniors, families, individuals and groups with special needs who could not otherwise afford safe, adequate and secure accommodation.

SHC owns housing units and maintains agreements with others to manage the day-to-day operations of 32,000 housing units. There are nearly 300 housing authorities and 150 co-operatives, non-profit agencies and others providing assistance to 14,000 senior households, 11,500 family households, and 6,500 households for persons with special needs.

The operating costs of $164 million are funded by tenant rents, the federal government, the provincial government, municipalities and others.

The Minister responsible for SHC establishes local housing authorities and appoints volunteer board members who are nominated through community, provincial and federal participation.

SHC's activities are carried out through three branches: (i) Policy and Program Services; (ii) Program Operations; and (iii) Financial Operations.

Housing

operating requirements of the province-wide housing network.

Goal

To provide Saskatchewan residents who have an identified housing need with access to affordable and adequate housing.

Accomplishments

During 1999-2000:

1. Increased home ownership

The Neighbourhood Home Ownership Program (NHOP) continued to revitalize inner-city areas and make home ownership possible for lower-income families by working with seven community development organizations in Prince Albert, Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw. Since this program began in 1997, 18 co-operatives have been formed and approximately 90 families have become homeowners.

Through the Remote Housing Program, 33 homes in six northern communities were constructed for lower- and moderate-income families. Over the three years of the program, 80 families provided “sweat equity” labour to become new homeowners.

In 1999-2000, SHC offered the Mortgage Discount Option to eligible homeowner clients living in northern remote communities. By paying off their mortgage to SHC, 10 families obtained private financing for the balance of the discounted amount. The program stimulated private-sector involvement and responded to requests from northern stakeholders to create greater equity with the assistance available in other northern homeowner programs.

2. Affordable Rental Accommodation

There can be extreme fluctuations in fiscal, demographic and economic conditions in local housing markets. Sometimes conditions in the private housing market prevent households with sufficient income from obtaining housing and related services.

SHC purchased rental housing in Saskatoon (219 family units), North Battleford (60 units), and Prince Albert (60 units) during 1999-2000. Community partnerships with the cities were essential to complete these purchases. The units in these buildings will continue to be rented at affordable rates.

SHC purchased and renovated 72 units in Regina and constructed 60 new housing units in 14 northern communities to add to the social housing portfolio.

SHC continued to address the growing need for housing in the north through the Rental Market Assistance Program (RMAP). This program provided grants to private developers, municipalities and non-profit organizations to construct affordable rental housing. In 1999-2000, 16 rental units were made available in four communities for a total of 85 units over three years.

A revised subsidy package was again offered by the Co-operative Housing Program to ensure: (i) that rents remain affordable; and (ii) that the current number of units where rents are based on a family’s income would not be reduced. In 1999-2000, one co-operative voluntarily chose the alternate subsidy arrangement, bringing the total to nine. The original program with CMHC continues to meet the needs of the remaining two co-operatives.

3. Repair Programs

Financial assistance of nearly $5.4 million was provided through various repair programs to individuals living in 776 households. The repairs involved changes to the access or design of homes to accommodate special needs, as well as making homes healthier and safer.

The province funded $91,000 for the Home

Housing

Modification for the Disabled Program (Home Mod). The Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Programs (RRAP) and Home Adaptations for Seniors Independence Program (HASI) were cost shared with the federal government.

Repair Funding Provided to Individuals

	Units	Assistance Committed
RRAP
-homeowner	317	$2,984,000
-rental	130	1,059,000
-disabled	61	422,000
-emergency repairs	136	650,000
HASI	73	160,000
Home Mod	59	91,000
Total	776*	$5,366,000

*Of this total, 121 homes were located in the north, where repair program costs exceeded $1.1 million.

In addition to assisting lower-income individuals, major renovations were completed in order to maintain the quality of the SHC stock, upgrade common amenity space, and improve accessibility for aging seniors and persons with disabilities.

4. Addressed the needs of a growing seniors' population

Saskatchewan Assisted Living Services (SALS) became available in 80 sites in 44 communities. Through this community-based service, tenants living in senior social housing are offered support to help them live independently. With financial and administrative support from SHC, housing authorities and non-profit sponsors coordinate the delivery of five optional services: (i) social and recreational activities; (ii) personal response systems; (iii) laundry; (iv) housekeeping; and (v) up to one nutritional meal per day. These services are now available to tenants in approximately 4,440 units on an affordable fee-for-service basis.

5. Improved administrative, financial and #### information systems

Activity-based costing was expanded to several SHC branches and the Territory Offices in order to better understand the link between activities and costs. The information collected is now used in program evaluations. A framework to evaluate programs was developed for all of SHC's programs and services to be used in strategic planning and future program development.

Focus groups helped to define priorities in order to update our integrated business information systems and improve communication and business processes in the housing system.

Future Directions

In 2000-2001, SHC will:

- renew its housing strategy using the suggestions and advice from stakeholders, northerners and others. Meetings and workshops will be held in several centres throughout the province to help develop a common understanding of the housing system and related issues, as well as identify future priorities;
- continue to draw on the capacity and expertise of new and innovative partnerships and develop innovative financing options for lower-income families to purchase homes;
- continue to encourage participation in SALS by members of the provincial housing system. SHC expects to have SALS available in up to 9,200 units by 2005. SHC will continue upgrading projects to meet the needs of aging seniors and special needs populations;
- implement the first year of programming under the new three-year, $9-million funding pool to improve housing needs in the north. One program, suggested by northerners, will provide an opportunity

- for families who are long-term renters to purchase their home;
- move forward with the recently-initiated program evaluation process to enhance the housing network's ability to make the best use of limited resources;
- complete a business needs analysis and select a systems solution to fit the business and communication needs of the housing network;
- continue to pursue opportunities with the federal government and others to provide funds and research for housing, and to address the growing need for affordable housing;
- the province will double its cost-shared funding with the federal government for repair programs, administer a new RRAP program to convert non-residential structures to residences, and deliver the Shelter Enhancement Program to renovate existing shelters for women, children and youth who are victims of family violence;
- SHC, the City of Saskatoon and seniors will begin a new life-lease pilot project called Arbor Green. The shared-equity investment project will be built on the former site of the Saskatoon sanatorium. Construction is expected to start in the summer of 2000.

SASK911

The Emergency 911 System Act was proclaimed in 1996, providing the legislative authority for development and implementation of Enhanced 9-1-1 service province-wide. Once completed, the Sask911 system will ensure that by dialing 9-1-1 from any land-line telephone in Saskatchewan, people will be able to access a trained emergency call-taking operator who has automatic access to telephone number and location information.

Planning and implementation of the Sask911 system continued in 1999-2000 in collaboration with municipalities, health districts, local emergency service providers, SaskTel, the Departments of Health and Justice, and the four Sask911 Public Safety Answering Points (PSAPs).

Department expenditures for Sask911 were $216,210 in 1999-2000, including $156,210 for development and advisory committee costs, and $60,000 for a one-time payment to aboriginal history focusing on fossils of the Frenchman Valley and Cypress Hills, the ecology of grassland birds, and the prehistoric human occupation of the Brabant Lake area.

Accomplishments

Progress on the Life Sciences gallery continued with the completion of six exhibits: Boreal Summer, Sage Flats, Frenchman Valley, Beaver Pond, Barren Ground Caribou and Athabasca Sand Dunes. Significant progress was also made on the Rain Forest, Mackenzie Delta, Cypress Hills Unique Species, Mixed Woods, and Introduction to the Ecoregions of Saskatchewan exhibits. "Our Dreams," the concluding exhibit for the Life Sciences gallery, was completed and opened to the public in December 1999.

A grant for $250,000 from the Climate Change Action Fund of Natural Resources Canada and Environment Canada was received. This will allow the completion of exhibits in the Human Factor section of the Life Sciences Gallery.

The exhibits at the Cypress Hills Interprovincial Park Administration and Interpretive Centre were refurbished, vastly improving their appearance and extending the expected life of these displays.

Extensive discussions took place with the departments of Geology and Anthropology and Archaeology at the University of Saskatchewan toward developing a common understanding about research, supervision of graduate students, teaching of undergraduate classes and collections management. Work continued with the Faculty of Education at the University of Regina in offering classes on the use of museums in a community-oriented, resource-based Social Studies curriculum to student teachers.

A grant from the National Science and Engineering Research Council of $16,800 per year for four years was received. This will support University of Saskatchewan graduate students in palaeontology under the supervision of the museum's Curator of Palaeontology. The RSM supervised, or participated in the supervision of, two undergraduate and four graduate students at Saskatchewan's universities during 1999-2000.
