The plan was recommended to Government by a task force consisting of municipal and urban officials from the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities (SARM) and the Saskatchewan Urban Municipalities Association (SUMA) and a representative from Saskatchewan Justice.

The rates are revised on an annual basis by the Department in consultation with the two municipal organizations. In 2005, the rates charged to urban and rural communities were: $55.00 per capita for communities over 500 population with detachments, $36.25 per capita for communities under 500 population without detachments, $49.30 per capita for communities under 500 population with detachments and $29.30 per capita for rural municipalities and communities under 500 population without detachments.

* Includes Special Warrants funding for recruit training.

The Commission, in response to its changed mandate brought on by changes to The Police Act, 1990, continues to place emphasis on training. To this end, the Saskatchewan Police College continues to deliver training at the highest level and is ranked among the top police training facilities in Canada.

The Commission continues its focus on public complaints and matters of internal discipline through monitoring of complaints, appointment of Hearing Officers, conducting reviews, and hearing appeals as well as the creation of Regulations pursuant to The Police Act, 1990.

Meetings

The Saskatchewan Police Commission held three regular meetings, two teleconference meetings and dealt with numerous issues via e-mail in 2005-2006.

Additionally, the Commission held two Provincial Training Board meetings.

The Commission is mandated through legislation to operate the Saskatchewan Police College. In discharging its mandate, the Commission is responsible for promoting efficiency, improving police relations in the community, and regularly consults with municipal Boards of Police Commissioners, the Saskatchewan Association of Chiefs of Police (SACP) and the Saskatchewan Federation of Police Officers. The Commission places considerable emphasis on race relations and cross-cultural training. The changing demographics of Saskatchewan's population requires that police services ensure their membership is representative of the general population they police.

In Saskatchewan, the challenge is to have a greater representation of Aboriginal police officers at all levels and roles in policing. To this end, the Commission will continue to lead in the development of strategies to recruit and retain Aboriginal police officers in the province.

Visits

The Executive Director of the Saskatchewan Police Commission Services and the Director of the Saskatchewan Police College continue to make on-site visits with police services and non-government agencies around the province. Ongoing liaison with the Boards of Police Commissioners, the SACP, the Saskatchewan Federation of Police Officers, members of the public and other federal and provincial colleagues enables the Commission to be aware of emerging issues, trends and challenges of contemporary policing.

Canadian Police College

The Commission acts in a co-ordinating role between the police services and the Canadian Police College in the allocation of spaces for courses.

Appeals to the Commission

There were two requests for Leave to Appeal the Decision of a Hearing Officer before the Chair of the Commission in 2005-2006. However, there were no appeals heard by the Commission during this period.

Saskatchewan Police College

Police Training

The Saskatchewan Police College, with offices and classrooms located at the University of Regina, is under the authority and control of the Saskatchewan Police Commission by virtue of The Police Act, 1990.

The Mission of the Saskatchewan Police College is to collaborate with Saskatchewan Municipal Police Agencies and their memberships to provide:

- the people of Saskatchewan with a professional policing service cognizant of cultural diversity, current police methodology and community expectations;
- a systematic approach to training research, design and delivery;
- Basic Recruit Training;
- ongoing in-service training and education to enhance and complement personal career development;
- specialized investigative techniques; and
- an ongoing evaluation of current trends and technology which impact police responses.

Courses are offered for all levels of personnel from recruit to management and offered regularly for Recruits, Operational Investigators, Senior Constables Development, Introduction to Management, Police Managers, Effective Presentations, Cultural Relations, Fire Investigation and Drug Investigation. Other courses and seminars are offered as identified through a systematic needs analysis process.

Police College staff worked diligently in early 2005 to complete a new course offering entitled "Introduction to Investigative File Management." The Program Developer and Major Crime Investigators brought together their expertise and best practices approach from other jurisdictions to deliver two courses in 2005. To date, 47 officers have now received the training. These new skills will greatly assist investigators in more complex investigations.

The "Firearms Automated Training System Course" (FATS) was re-introduced for firearms instructors within the province. Instructional staff, equipment and assistance were provided through the co-operation of the RCMP "F" Division training staff, municipal police service members and Saskatchewan Environment Enforcement Branch officers. This program provides ongoing "Use of Force" training to all experienced officers in the province.

In December, the College provided a "Drug Awareness Officer's Training Course" which was sponsored, in part, through the RCMP in conjunction with the federal government. Curriculum for this one-week course was developed in Ottawa and courses are being delivered nationally throughout Canada to police officers. We continued to provide a "Media Communications Course" to municipal police officers within the province as well as the "Coaching Skills for Field Training Officers Course" as an ongoing commitment to meet required needs. Revisions to all courses contained in annual course offerings were completed throughout the year. In some cases, new topics were added while others were eliminated.

The College embarked on a new initiative in e-learning by providing several projects in partnership with the Canadian Police Knowledge Network located in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island. A number of officers from both municipal and the RCMP have been introduced to this learning and the results are still to be evaluated. Sixteen programs exist for police agencies to access throughout Canada and although the number of programs available is small in number, the future seems bright for further development and learning for our police officers. We will continue to monitor this type of training with future consideration of complementing existing programs as well as new initiatives. The initial feedback is that training times are reduced as a result of this type of program delivery.

Staff instructors at the Police College were sponsored at several special training initiatives throughout Canada and locally to keep them abreast of current trends. The College recognizes that in order to deliver programs which impact and enhance police officers' knowledge and skills, the instructors must continually be trained and informed. The College continues to co-sponsor individual police officers in specialized areas of police investigation. We continue to promote co-operation and partnerships between police and other agencies such as the Department of Community Resources and Employment, medical personnel and various components of the justice system in enhancing the outcome of joint investigations.

Police College staff provided many hours of consultation, research and program development to other police agencies and local government departments. In addition, training was also provided to various local government departments within the Province of Saskatchewan. In May 2005, the College provided assistance to the Regina Police Service in hosting their "Treaty Four Citizen's Police Academy" which brought together 33 candidates for two weeks to learn about policing. Assistance was provided to several municipal police agencies, through a partnership with the RCMP Training Branch, to develop programming to be utilized in the Firearms Automated Training System.

A total of 552 candidates were trained in-house, while another 48 candidates were trained at outside agencies, either within the province or at locations other than Saskatchewan. A total of 600 candidates were trained throughout the fiscal year. The candidates represent municipal police services, Saskatchewan Environment and Resource Management Enforcement Branch, CN and CP Police Services, RCMP "F" Division, Brandon Police Service, members of Court Services, Safer Communities and Neighbourhoods (SCAN), Department of Justice and Department of Community Resources and Employment (DCRE).

Recruit Training

Recruit Training involves 18 weeks at the Saskatchewan Police College followed by four to six months of practical field training with a selected field training officer. Most services provide one to two weeks of selective training pertinent to their agencies when the recruits return from the College.
