Canada's Wind Energy Industry Directory

The Canadian wind energy industry is growing at an unprecedented rate, recently surpassing 1000 Megawatts (MW) of installed wind energy capacity. In most provinces and territories, numerous proposals for industrial expansion are appearing on the horizon. This represents clear opportunities to tap into Canada's unparalleled wind resource.

Canadian federal and provincial governments have put in place programs and policies to boost the deployment of wind energy technology. Plans for clean power across Canada could facilitate the installation of a minimum 8000 MW of wind energy in the country by 2015.

Whether your interest is in micro-, small- or large-scale wind power, Canada boasts several organizations and companies that can provide you with the goods and services you need. The Canadian wind industry is composed of component manufacturers, project developers, distributors, installers, suppliers and consulting firms as well as public utilities, independent power producers and research institutes. Refer to the directory of Canadian companies involved in the wind energy industry to find out more about the goods and services they have to offer.
