

David Robinowitch - Clip 9

Materials

“The choice of material in itself has no separate importance. I could say that when the issue in a work is material mass, steel is the most generalized substance in our society, which is immediately identifiable with substantial density.

The patinas on the metal works are the unanticipated result of milling solid hot rolled plate. They impart to each work a unique material expression.”

