

New technologies

Joe Fafard – Clip 7

In my work, I use new technologies from time to time, but I don't seek out opportunities to do so. It's not as if I'm a technocrat or particularly good with technology. But if I see, or if someone suggests, a way of doing something that uses new technologies, I'm not going to refuse to look into it, to see what the possibilities are. Through others, I use new technologies, such as the computers that create programs that cut metal or metal images, but I myself use pencil and paper. That's the level I'm at. That's about it, my technology. (laughter).
