

Robert Houle - Clip 10

More than Money

I think being an artist is more than making money. I think being an artist is actually sitting down, or standing, or whatever, in your studio, in a solitary act of creation and trying to put together, in whichever way you have decided to express yourself, something that is intangible, and making it tangible so that others can see it.

