

Robert Houle - Clip 1

A complex expression

I discover that I have some very complex, emotional things that I want to express, and many times I realize that is one of the reasons, why I have become an artist, because that is the best way that I can deal with, with these. . . Also, early on, as a child I realized it was really the best way to get attention. I come from a large family and making beautiful things was one way of getting my idea across, and therefore it really has, becoming an adult expressing myself, some, some things are very important to me.
