No one is born an artist

Why is it that someone becomes an artist? Because they start out with something perhaps, some talent or other, it hardly matters what, but a difference.

I think that no one is born an artist. You are born with a talent. I think that each one of us has at least one. All you need is to realize it, to be aware of it. I realized this very young, at the age of four, even earlier. Then, you move ahead, you question yourself.

Who am I? Where am I going? Where do I come from? What is this world all around me? What the hell am I up to here? What am I doing?

I doubt whether we truly find answers, they are hints that enable us to move on.
