

A Guide to Programs and Services for Seniors in Ontario

Corbis

The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat

Ontario is home to about 1.6 million seniors – 40 percent of Canada's seniors. By 2028, the number of senior citizens in Ontario will double.

The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat functions to improve the quality of life for Ontario's seniors by:

- a. Undertaking and influencing policy initiatives for seniors with a multi-ministry focus and making value added contributions to policy activities in other ministries.
- b. Developing and supporting public education efforts
 - about the programs and services to which seniors are entitled,
 - about healthy aging/lifestyles, and
 - about the ongoing contributions Ontario seniors make to families, communities and country.
- c. Maintaining a close working relationship with Ontario's nine largest seniors organizations, and partnering with them on both policy and public education initiatives.

Policy initiatives include:

- Implementation of Ontario's Strategy for Alzheimer Disease and Related Dementias with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.
- Implementation of Ontario's Strategy to Combat Elder Abuse with the Ministry of the Attorney General.
- Federal, Provincial, Territorial (F/P/T) Ministers Responsible for Seniors projects, which included hosting in Toronto, June 2002, the 6th Meeting of F/P/T Ministers Responsible for Seniors.
- Public education and staff training on our Guide to Advance Care Planning to help seniors make choices, while they are still capable, about how they wish to be cared for in the future.

Public Education and Awareness initiatives include:

- Continuing to implement the Memory Project to recruit 1,000 volunteer veterans to provide a living history to over 50,000 students.
- Launching a series of "Ontario Seniors' Seminars" to educate seniors about safe and healthy aging, and increase awareness amongst seniors of the programs and services to which they are entitled. Ontario Seniors' Seminars will be offered in communities across Ontario and topics will include safe medication use for seniors, safe driving for seniors, avoiding financial scams, advance care planning.
- Providing this booklet, A Guide to Programs and Services for Seniors in Ontario, a comprehensive directory to government and community programs and services for seniors.

Introduction

The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat of the Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration is committed to improving seniors' quality of life, and to educating seniors, their families, caregivers, and colleagues about programs and services to which they are entitled. A Guide to Programs and Services for Seniors in Ontario aims to bring together into one resource the wealth of programs and services provided to Ontario seniors by the government, as well as by community organizations and service providers.

This Guide has been developed in consultation with both provincial and federal government ministries, major seniors' organizations and service providers and members of the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat Seniors Liaison Committee. The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat wishes to acknowledge the many hours spent by staff, ministry officials and seniors themselves in helping to review and edit the Guide to ensure the Guide's relevance and accuracy.

How to Use this Guide

This guide provides a general introduction to programs and services for seniors, plus telephone, e-mail and Internet sources where you can learn more about specific programs or services. If you are unfamiliar with, or have difficulty using these technologies, please review the tips in Appendix 1.

The guide is organized into 17 chapters, and three appendices. For information about a specific program, check the table of contents at the front of the booklet for the general area, and then consult the detailed chapter contents at the front of that chapter. For some of the most common questions asked, see the Frequently Asked Questions in Appendix 2. Finally, to find a telephone number, fax, mailing or Web site address for a program or service described in this guide, consult the handy directory in Appendix 3. The contact information includes the name of the organization, address, telephone number and where available, a toll-free number, a teletypewriter (TTY) number, an e-mail address and a Web site.

Please note: programs and service providers can vary greatly from one community to another. Wherever possible, this guide identifies a central information source that can direct you to the appropriate organization or regional office to contact in your area.

1.1 Government of Ontario

Individuals have a number of options in contacting the Government of Ontario for information:

1. by telephone,
2. in person, or
3. online.

By Telephone

The Ontario government provides a telephone Information and Referral service to provincial government programs and services through the INFOline, the Citizens' Inquiry Bureau and Access Ontario, the sister office servicing Eastern Ontario (for callers in the 613 area code).

INFOline

INFOline provides information and referral services on the programs, services and activities of the ministries of Health and Long-Term Care, Community and Social Services, Children and Youth Services and Citizenship and Immigration by responding to telephone and in-person inquiries. A TTY number is available for the hearing/speech impaired. Multilingual staff are capable of handling inquiries in as many as 20 languages. You can request publications from these ministries by calling the INFOline or by visiting or writing the Client Services Unit:

In Person

Government offices are located across Ontario, with many providing one-stop service.

Government Information Centres

Ontario has over 50 Government Information Centres to make it easier to get service in person.

Unlike traditional government ministry offices, Government

Information Centres provide a wide range of general government information about all ministries at one location. Government Information Centres are open Monday to Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., and provide:

- answers to commonly asked questions about government services
- free publications, information and government forms
- registration of an unincorporated business through an Ontario Business Connects self-serve workstation
- electronic ordering of government publications using POOL (Publications Ontario On-Line), the Ontario Government's virtual bookstore
- access to various government Internet sites
- referrals to government staff for more specialized help
- online access to general information about the government's programs, services and staff, and
- information packages, forms, general information, tips and general guidance for people dealing with certain life events, such as losing a wallet, getting married, moving, having a baby, managing debt, retiring, and dealing with death.

For more information contact the Government Information Centre or the Citizens' Inquiry Bureau.

Online

The Government of Ontario, the Federal Government and most municipalities provide a wide range of information and services via the worldwide web.

Online Services

An Internet gateway to access online government services is available at www.cbs.gov.on.ca/mcbs/english/services.htm

This Web site enables you to complete some routine tasks online, for example:

- request a birth certificate
- renew a driver's licence

- register a change of name
- renew an Outdoors Card and much more.

Life Event Bundles

Significant changes come into everyone's life – such as birth, marriage, retirement, and even losing one's wallet. We call these Life Events. The Ontario government is using Life Events as a new way to organize information and services to bring everything on a subject together in one place.

If you are dealing with a certain life event, the Online Services gateway operated by the Ministry of Consumer and Business Services can provide one-window access to information from many different government departments and jurisdictions to help you deal with that life event.

Current life event services bundled online include:

- Getting Ready to Retire
- Leisure and Active Living for Older Adults
- Getting Married
- Losing your Wallet
- How to Deal with Spousal Abuse
- Moving
- Managing Your Debt
- Vacation Ontario
- What To Do When Someone Dies

For more information, visit the "Life Events" section at the Government of Ontario Web site www.ontario.ca or visit one of the Government Information Centres around the province. For Government Information Centres nearest you see the Directory, Appendix 3, or call the Citizens' Inquiry Bureau at 1-800-267-8097.

Integrated Address Change

The online integrated address change is a fast and easy way to notify the Ministry of Transportation (for Driver's Licence or Vehicle Permits), the Ministry of Natural Resources (Outdoors Cards) and the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care (Health Cards) of your change of address within Ontario. Information needs to be entered only once on the online form and you can choose to notify one or more of the three ministries of your change. Please do not change your address before you move. To access this on-line service, see www.serviceontario.ca. If you have any questions or require assistance using this service, review the Frequently Asked Questions document available on the Web site.

ServiceOntario Kiosks

You can use one of the 70 ServiceOntario kiosks located throughout the province to access a number of government of Ontario services including: renewing licence plate stickers, ordering personalized licence plates, purchasing driver and vehicle abstracts, paying Ontario provincial court fines, changing your address on your Ontario Health Card or Driver's Licence, and renewing your Outdoors Card.

You need your Visa, MasterCard, American Express or debit card to take advantage of these convenient and easy to use machines. ServiceOntario kiosks are available seven days a week at most locations with extended hours of service. You will find ServiceOntario kiosks in major shopping centres and the Queen's Park and Downsview Ontario Government Offices.

Archives of Ontario

The Archives of Ontario is the primary source of Ontario's documentary memory. The Archives is responsible for managing, storing, conserving, arranging, describing and providing access to the province's irreplaceable documentary history dating back to the 1700s, valued at $340 million and held in trust for the public. The Archives currently holds records created by offices of government and the private sector, as well as a growing volume of records in other media (electronic records, film, photographs, video, audio-tapes, maps and drawings).

The records at the Archives of Ontario are used for many kinds of research. People search for information about their ancestors, look at the impact of provincial government policies, find out when a particular company started operation, when a building was built, or how the earliest settlers lived. People can see photographs or maps of their hometown or look at early moving images of a particular region of the province.

One way to access the records at the Archives is through the Archives of Ontario Microfilm Interloan Service. The Microfilm Interloan Catalogue can be found on the Archives' Web site at www.archives.gov.on.ca. Through this site, visitors can also access online exhibits and databases relating to archival records and photographs and can identify library holdings.

The Archives of Ontario serves researchers daily, in person, in their Reading Room, and by mail, phone, fax and E-mail.

Office of the Registrar General of Ontario

The Office of the Registrar General of Ontario is the place to get birth, marriage and death certificates, and register a change of name.

It is important for people to recognize that one of the best ways to halt identity theft is to keep personal documents secure. Individuals are now required to report lost, stolen, found or destroyed certificates. This information will be shared with other programs issuing vital documents. Anyone who finds a birth certificate is required to forward it to the Office of the Registrar General, or deliver it to the police. Also, a new application form for birth certificates, which requires the signature of a guarantor, has been put in place.

Forms to apply for a new birth, death or marriage certificate are available from the Ministry of Government and Consumer Services Web site (www.gov.on.ca/MGS) or by calling or writing the Forms are also available through Government Information Centres across the province (see page 5 for how to locate the Centre nearest you), from most municipal clerk's offices or from Land Registry Offices (for the office nearest you, consult the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "Land Registration").

Ombudsman Ontario

"Working to ensure fair and accountable provincial government service".

Ontario's Ombudsman is Mr. Clare Lewis Q.C. He is an Officer of the provincial Legislature who is independent of the government and political parties.

The Ombudsman's job is to investigate complaints about provincial government organizations. Based on the investigation, the Ombudsman may make recommendations to fix a problem. If these are not acted upon, the case may be reported to the Legislature.

The Ombudsman has jurisdiction over all provincial government organizations as an office of last resort. If you have tried without success to fix your problem with a provincial government organization, contact the Ombudsman. Before you do this, you should speak with the organization involved and use any complaint procedure they have, including an appeal to the head of the organization. You can also contact your Member of Provincial Parliament (MPP) representative at Queen's Park.

Ombudsman Ontario's services are free and are available in French and English. An interpreter for services in other languages can be arranged. All complaints are handled in the strictest confidence.

Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy

Personal information about you that is held by the Ontario government is protected under the privacy provisions of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act. The Act ensures that government ministries and agencies collect, use, disclose and dispose of your personal information only with proper legal authority, and that it is accessible only to authorized individuals.

You have a right to access personal information about you that is held by Ontario government ministries and agencies, subject to certain specific exceptions. You also have a right to request that information about you be corrected, if you believe the information is incorrect or misleading.

To find out what records of personal information are maintained by particular government ministries and agencies, consult the Directory of Records, an Ontario publication that is available in local public libraries. The directory describes the organization and types of records maintained by each ministry and agency subject to the Act, as well as the telephone number and address of the ministry or agency's Freedom of Information and Privacy Co-ordinator.

If you have questions about the general operation of the Act, or need assistance with how to contact a particular ministry or agency's Freedom of Information and Privacy Co-ordinator, you can phone the Ontario government's central Information and Privacy Office at 416-327-2187.

1.2 Government of Canada

Seniors Canada Online

Seniors Canada Online is a Web site for seniors, their families and caregivers. The site offers:

- a wide range of information for seniors on one site
- various options for finding information, and
- links to programs and services from many federal and provincial government departments and non-governmental organizations.

Visit Seniors Canada Online at: www.seniors.gc.ca

See also the federal seniors guide Services for Seniors: Guide to Government of Canada Services for Seniors and their Families available in print and online at: www.communication.gc.ca/guides/seniors_aines/index_e.html

1.3 Municipal Government

Your local government is a key provider of important social and health services, economic and community development activities. Programs available in your area may include seniors' services, health and wellness programs, housing services, public health, and Ontario Works (social assistance).

To learn more about what municipal services and programs may be available in your area, consult the Blue Pages in your telephone book or visit www.yourlocalgovernment.com for links (where available) to your municipality.

Community Information Services

Community Information Centres

Community Information Centres (CICs) are a great source of information on services in your community. CICs offer information on a broad range of services provided by all levels of government, the non-profit sector, the private voluntary sector, by individuals in the community, and selectively from the business sector.

Individualized information is free, confidential and available to everyone. It is provided by telephone, in person, through correspondence or on the Internet and is available in appropriate languages as required by a particular community.

See the Directory, Appendix 3 for a list of the Community Information Centres in Ontario. If you do not see your community on this list, contact the centre closest to you for a referral to a Community Information Centre in your area, or visit the InformOntario Web site at www.informontario.on.ca for a listing of centres across the province.

211 Telephone Information Service

The United Way of Greater Toronto and Community Information Toronto offer 211, a new Community Information and Referral telephone line. When you're looking for community, social, health or government services, dial 2-1-1 for free, confidential information and referral. 211 is a multi-lingual service offered 24 hours, seven days a week.

At the time of printing this publication, the 211 service is available only in Toronto. For more information on the 211 service, visit www.211toronto.ca, or contact your local Community Information Centre to learn whether there are plans to bring the service to your community (see the Directory, Appendix 3 for a list of Community Information Centres in Ontario).

2.1 Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care Information Services

INFOline

INFOline provides information and referral services on the programs, services and activities of the ministries of Health and Long-Term Care, Community and Social Services, Children and Youth Services and Citizenship and Immigration by responding to telephone and in-person inquiries. A TTY number is available for the hearing/speech impaired. Multilingual staff are capable of handling inquiries in as many as 20 languages. You can request publications from these ministries by calling the INFOline or by visiting or writing the Client Services Unit:

Telehealth Ontario

Telehealth Ontario is a free, confidential telephone service providing health advice or information from a Registered Nurse. The service is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week through a Toll-free number (1-866-797-0000). Telehealth Ontario is available to everyone throughout the Province of Ontario and callers do not need a health card number to obtain services.

Services Available

Telehealth Ontario nurses assist callers by assessing symptoms and providing advice on the best steps to follow. In instances where more urgent care appears necessary, the nurse can connect the caller to local "911" emergency services or may direct the caller to visit the nearest hospital emergency room. Nurses are also able to direct callers to services available in the community, when appropriate.

Nurses are able to provide callers with information on general health topics such as the ongoing management of a previously diagnosed chronic illness, as well as nutrition and healthy lifestyles. Where questions are about medications or drug interactions, nurses can consult a pharmacist who will speak directly to callers through the Telehealth Ontario line.

Telehealth Ontario nurses can provide services in English and French, and have access to translation services in over 100 other languages. Teletypewriter (TTY) service for the deaf, deafened and hard of hearing is available directly through Telehealth Ontario:

Local Health Integration Networks

Local Health Integration Networks (LHINs) are not-for-profit corporations that are responsible for planning, integrating and funding local health services in 14 different geographic areas of the province. LHINs work in partnership with a range of health services providers in hospitals, long-term care facilities, community health centres, community support services and mental health agencies, to deliver health care that is patient focused, results driven, integrated and sustainable.

LHINs are based on a principle that community-based care is best planned, coordinated and funded in an integrated manner within the local community because local people are best able to determine their health service needs and priorities.

LHINs determine the health service priorities required in their local community. Starting with community engagement, LHINs work with local health providers and community members on planning. They then move to coordinating services in their area and eventually they would provide funding and resources to local health providers.

For the Local Health Integration Networks nearest you, see the Directory, Appendix 3 or visit their web site at www.lhins.on.ca.

2.2 Community Health Services

Community Health Centres

Community Health Centres (CHC) are non-profit organizations that provide primary health and health promotion programs for individuals, families and communities.

CHCs provide education and advice to help families access the resources they need from other community agencies. They link families with support and self-help groups that offer peer education, support in coping, or are working to address conditions that affect health.

For more information, or to locate the Community Health Centre nearest you, contact the Seniors' INFOLine:

Public Health Programs

Public Health Units

A Public Health Unit is responsible for the local delivery of Public Health programs and services within a defined geographic area. It is governed by a board of health, primarily comprised of community representatives.

There are 36 public health units in Ontario. Health units administer health protection and health promotion, and disease prevention programs to inform the public about healthy lifestyles, communicable disease control, immunization, food premises inspection, healthy growth and development including parenting education, health education for all age groups and selected screening services.

For more information, or to find the Public Health Unit closest to you contact:

Early Detection of Cancer

This program of the Ontario Public Health system promotes screening for the early detection of breast and cervical cancer. The program includes community-wide education to increase awareness of the benefits of breast screening for women 50-74 years of age, through the Ontario Breast Screening Program (OBSP) and group education sessions for women and their family members on the benefits of breast screening through the OBSP.

Injury Prevention

The purpose of this program is to prevent injuries and substance abuse. Specific services for seniors include education on how to promote health and independence as well as how to prevent fall-related injuries in order to avoid loss of independence and unnecessary institutionalization.

For more information on Falls Prevention, see page 141.

For more information on Addiction Programs, see page 138.

Vaccine Preventable Diseases

Adults who are 65 years and over are known to be at higher-risk for complications related to influenza and pneumonia. Protection against the influenza virus requires an annual immunization that is given in the fall just prior to the "flu season".

This vaccine is available free of charge to all Ontario residents. Influenza does strike in warmer climates, too, so individuals who travel south for the winter are encouraged to get immunized against influenza before leaving home.

The pneumonia vaccine provides protection against a common cause of pneumonia and other systemic infections. You only need to get this vaccine once to be protected and it can be given at any time of year, including at the same time as the influenza vaccine. This vaccine is provided free of charge to adults 65 years of age and over, and those under 65 with specific high risk medical conditions such as chronic heart, kidney or lung disease and diseases that suppress the immune system. Speak with your doctor if this is right for you.

2.3 Physicians

How to Find a Doctor

Doctor Search is a free service offered by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario.

The purpose of Doctor Search is twofold: to provide the public access to the names of physicians accepting new patients, and to provide the information that can be released to the public about the selected physician.

Services Offered by Your Physician

Most people's first contact with the health system is through their family physician. A visit to your doctor's office will result in one or a combination of these outcomes:

- short-term treatment, for example, prescription for medication or advice on health-enhancing lifestyle improvements
- referral to a specialist at a clinic or a hospital
- referral to a community long-term care service via a Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) or to other services (see page 48 for more information on CCACs).

College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO) is the self-regulating body for the province's medical profession. One important responsibility of the College is to investigate complaints from members of the public about doctors who are members of the College.

If you would like to talk to someone about the care or conduct of a physician or about the complaint process, please contact the CPSO Investigations and Resolutions department:

2.4 Ontario Health Insurance Plan

The Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) covers a wide range of health services. It pays all costs for services that are medically necessary.

Ontario Health Card

You must have a valid Ontario health insurance card to use health care services that are funded by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. You must show your card to receive benefits. If you've forgotten your card, you will be required to complete a Health Number Release Form at the hospital or doctor's office, which allows the ministry to provide your health number to them.

You are eligible for an OHIP card if you:

1. are a Canadian citizen, landed immigrant, convention refugee or certain other immigration classification, and
2. make your permanent and principal home in Ontario, and
3. are present in Ontario for at least 153 days in any 12-month period.

Tourists, transients or visitors to Ontario are not eligible for OHIP coverage.

To apply for a card, you must:

- go in person to your nearest OHIP office (to find your local office, consult the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "Health, then "Health Card"); and
- fill in the Registration for Ontario Health Coverage Form; and
- provide three types of documents to show:
 1. Canadian citizenship or immigration status
 2. that you live in Ontario, and
 3. you are the person you say you are.

If you live in a remote area, the ministry can make special arrangements.

You have to wait three months for OHIP coverage if you are a:

- newcomer to Ontario, or
- former resident returning here to live after being away for more than 212 days.

If your Health Card is lost, stolen or damaged you should immediately call the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care at 1-800-268-1154 (Toll-free in Ontario only). In Toronto, call 416-314-5518, TTY Toll-free 1-800-387-5559.

Your Ontario Health Card is for health care only. Do not show your card or give your health number to anyone except a health care provider when you receive health care, or to the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.

Your personal health care information is protected under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (see page 10 for more information on this Act). The ministry also has security measures to protect all the personal information that it holds.

For more information, contact your nearest Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care OHIP office. For the telephone number and location of the office nearest you, contact:

Seniors' INFOline

TTY Toll-free: 1-800-387-5559

Or visit the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care Web site at www.health.gov.on.ca and www.healthyontario.com

OHIP Insured Services

Physicians

OHIP insures all medically necessary doctor's visits and treatments, and tests that are provided by or ordered by your doctor. Your doctor cannot charge you any amount for an insured service.

OHIP does not insure services that are not medically necessary, for example, cosmetic surgery. Physicians may charge you for an uninsured service. If your doctor asks you to pay for a service, make sure that you get an itemized bill. If you have private insurance, it may cover the uninsured service. If you are not sure about a fee that your doctor charges you, contact the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care or the Seniors' INFOline.

Podiatrists and Osteopaths

The ministry pays part of the costs for insured services that are provided by podiatrists and osteopaths. You must pay for the extra costs and costs that exceed the OHIP yearly allowable maximum. Ask your health care provider about the costs before you receive the services. If you have private insurance, it may cover the extra cost.

Physiotherapy

OHIP pays for insured physiotherapy services that you receive in a hospital for people 65 years of age and over. It also covers some physiotherapy services provided in a licensed physiotherapy clinic and through a Community Care Access Centre (see page 48 for more information on Community Care Access Centres). Physiotherapy services that are provided in private clinics are not insured.

Dental Services in Hospital

OHIP pays for some dental surgery when it is necessary to provide the service in hospital. You pay the cost of dental services in a dentist's office. For more information on dental care see page 28.

Eye Care

OHIP insures one eye exam by a medical doctor or optometrist every year for people 65 years of age and over. Routine eye exams for people 20 to 64 years old provided by optometrists and physicians will no longer be covered as of November 1, 2004. There is new OHIP coverage to ensure patients aged 20 to 64 years with medical conditions affecting the eye can continue to receive regular eye exams. Other medically necessary care provided by a medical doctor is insured, for example, cataract surgery. Examples of uninsured services include eyeglasses, contact lenses and surgery to correct refractive errors such as near-sightedness.

The Assistive Devices Program covers part of the cost of some visual aids if you are eligible.

Hearing Tests

OHIP insures diagnostic tests that are ordered and performed by a doctor. Some tests performed in a hospital may also be insured. Services provided by audiologists, such as fitting and evaluation of hearing aids, are not insured. The Assistive Devices Program (see page 29) may cover part of the cost of a hearing aid if you are eligible.

Northern Health Travel Grant

The Northern Health Travel Grant helps to pay travel costs for people in Northern Ontario who must travel long distances to see a medical specialist to receive the care they need.

This applies to people in the territorial districts of Algoma, Cochrane, Kenora, Manitoulin, Muskoka, Nipissing, Parry Sound, Rainy River, Sudbury, Thunder Bay and Timiskaming who must travel at least 100 km for insured specialized health care that is not available in their area.

The Northern Health Travel Grant would not apply if round trip travel is provided by land ambulance or air ambulance.

You can get an application from your health care provider or local Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care office, or by calling 1-800-461-4006. The doctor's fee to complete this form is covered as part of the OHIP-insured service: you do not have to pay the doctor to fill out this form.

Accessible Parking Permit Program

The doctor's fee to complete this form is an OHIP-insured service. You do not have to pay the doctor to fill out this form. For more information on the Accessible Parking Permit, see page 95.

Driver Licence Renewal Program for Seniors

Medical exams and reports that you need to obtain or maintain a Driver's licence are not insured: your doctor can charge you for the exam and to fill out the form.

OHIP Coverage Outside Ontario

For information on what health services are insured by OHIP when you are travelling out of province, please see page 164.

2.5 Drug Benefits

Use of Medications

It is important that you tell your doctor(s) and pharmacist about all the drugs that you take, including non-prescription medications. You should also inform them about any allergies you may have to medicines, and describe the reactions you had with these medicines. It is best if you take all prescriptions to one pharmacy, so that the pharmacist(s) have a complete profile of all your medications and can monitor for drug interactions or side effects.

Medications Needed While in Hospital

Drugs are provided by the hospital, based on the drugs stocked in the hospital where you are receiving treatment.

Medications Needed in the Community

Drug coverage is provided to seniors through the Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) Program.

Ontario Drug Benefit Program

Eligibility

People 65 years of age and older are eligible for the Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) program if they have a valid

Ontario Health Card. You do not need to apply for coverage. As long as the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care has the correct mailing address, you will receive a letter of notification of ODB eligibility by mail approximately 2 months before you turn 65. If your address changes, please call the nearest office of the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. The number can be found in the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "Health", then "Health and Long-Term Care".

In order to start receiving benefits, notify your pharmacist that you are now eligible for the program and he/she will confirm your eligibility on the Government's Health Network System.

Co-payments and Deductibles

The Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) program runs from August 1 to July 31 each year. ODB eligible people may be asked to pay some portion of their prescription drug product costs.

You will fall into the higher income co-payment category if:

- you are a single senior with an income of more than $16,018 a year, or
- you are part of a senior couple and your combined income is more than $24,175 a year.

If you are in the higher co-payment category, you will pay a $100 deductible for prescriptions filled after August 1 of every year. The government's computerized Health Network

System at your pharmacy will track what you have paid towards the $100 deductible. This total is printed on your prescription receipt. After you have paid the $100 deductible per senior, you will then pay up to $6.11 towards the ODB dispensing fee for each prescription for a covered drug product in the benefit year.

You will fall into the lower income co-payment category if:

- you are a single senior with an income of less than $16,018 a year, or
- you are part of a senior couple and your combined income is less than $24,175 a year.

If you are in the lower income co-payment category, you may be asked to pay up to $2 for each prescription filled.

All newly eligible seniors are automatically enrolled in the higher co-payment category. If you think you may be eligible for the lower $2 co-payment, you can complete an application form and send it to the ministry. Application forms for the lower $2 co-payment are available at Ontario pharmacies or by calling 1-800-268-1154.

Products Covered

Through the Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) Program, the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care covers most of the cost of over 3,200 prescription drug products listed in the ODB Formulary, in addition to a number of limited-use drug products, nutrition and diabetic testing products. The ODB Formulary identifies drug products designated as benefits under the program, as well as those brands of drugs that are considered to be interchangeable, and serves as a prescribing and reimbursement guide for doctors and pharmacists.

The drug must be prescribed by an authorized Ontario prescriber (e.g., family doctor) and purchased in an Ontario pharmacy that is online with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care's computerized Health Network System, or from an Ontario doctor who dispenses prescription drug products.

The ODB program does not reimburse prescription drugs purchased outside Ontario. You will need to buy private insurance to cover the cost of prescription drugs bought outside Ontario.

The ODB does not cover the following products and services: syringes and other diabetic supplies such as lancets and glucometers, eyeglasses, dentures, hearing aids, or compression stockings.

Generic Drugs

Generic drugs are drug products that contain the same medicinal or therapeutic ingredient(s) as the original brand name drug. Generic and brand name products may look or taste different but both contain the same amount of the same active ingredient(s). Generic products usually cost less than their brand name counterparts. When both generic and brand name products are available, the Ontario Drug

Benefit (ODB) program pays the pharmacist for the lowest cost interchangeable generic drug product listed in the Drug Benefit Formulary. If you wish to use the brand name product, you must pay the difference in cost between the brand name and the generic product.

Limited Use Drug Products and Individual Clinical Review

Limited Use products are drugs that are listed in the Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) Formulary with specific clinical criteria or conditions for use. The ODB program reimburses for a Limited Use product only when a Limited Use Prescription Form is prescribed for an ODB-eligible recipient according to criteria or conditions outlined for each product.

In exceptional circumstances, where a drug product is not covered in the ODB Formulary, a request for special coverage can be made. This process is known as Individual Clinical Review, Section 8. On your behalf, your doctor requests coverage for a specific period of time, for a particular drug product not normally covered under the ODB program. Medical experts will review your doctor's request and will advise him/her whether coverage has been approved.

For more information about Limited Use drug products or the Section 8 process, please contact the Drug Programs Branch of the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care at 416-327-8109.

Diabetic Testing Agents

Through the Ontario Drug Benefit (ODB) program, the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care covers some diabetic testing agents. Diabetic testing agents are products people with diabetes use to test sugar levels in blood and ketone levels in urine. Note that syringes and other diabetic supplies such as lancets and glucometers are not covered under the ODB program.

The ODB program will cover the costs of your diabetic testing agents if you:

- have diabetes, and
- have a prescription for a listed diabetic testing agent from an Ontario doctor.

Speak to your doctor about obtaining a prescription for diabetic testing agents. Your pharmacist can tell you which diabetic testing agents are covered.

Maximum Days' Supply

Under the Ontario Drug Benefit program, you may receive up to a maximum 100 days' supply of medications. For prescriptions for medications that are a new therapy, your doctor may choose to provide a smaller days' supply, until your response to the new medication is known. For information on maximum days' supply when travelling out of province, see page 165.

Special Drugs Program

Through the Special Drugs Program, the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care covers the full cost of certain drugs used in the treatment of specific conditions. The program covers:

- many drugs for the treatment of cystic fibrosis and thalassaemia
- AZT, ddI, ddC and pentamidine for people who are HIV positive
- Erythropoietin (EPO) for people with end stage renal disease
- Cyclosporine for people who have had a solid organ or bone marrow transplant
- human growth hormone for children with growth failure
- Clozapine for treatment of schizophrenia
- Alglucerase for people with Gaucher's Disease.

Eligibility

The Special Drugs Program will cover your costs for the above drugs if you:

- are an Ontario resident with a valid Ontario Health Card, and
- are a patient with one of the diseases or conditions covered, and
- meet the established clinical criteria, and/or
- are approved by a designated centre/physician for a specific drug product.

Accessing the Program

Speak with your doctor about whether you may be covered by the program and the locations near you where the treatments are available.

Costs

The Special Drugs Program does not have any deductibles or co-payments. If you meet conditions for coverage, you do not pay for any portion of your treatments.

2.6 Dental Care

Dental Services in Hospital

OHIP pays for some dental surgery that must, by medical necessity, be provided in hospital. The patient pays for dental services provided in a dentist's office.

Dental Services in Long-Term Care Facilities

Long-term care facilities give you a dental assessment as part of their admission medical and nursing assessments. They also provide ongoing oral care by qualified dental professionals on a fee-for-service basis. That includes an annual check-up, plus preventative services such as scaling and cleaning, and an assessment to ensure that dentures are properly fitted.

If you need dental treatment or other services that are not provided by your facility, it will help you get a referral to a dentist or other professional of your choice. The facility can also arrange for emergency dental services for you, as needed, but does not cover their cost. You or your representative must authorize and pay for those services.

Subsidized Dental Care

Some municipalities in Ontario provide discretionary financial assistance for seniors' dental care. Those in need should discuss with their treating dentist to determine if such assistance is available in their area and where to go to learn more about eligibility requirements and the application process.

University and College Dental Clinics

Several universities and colleges have dental clinics open to the public. Services vary according to the clinic. Fees are generally less than what private practitioners charge. Please contact clinics individually to determine services, fees and availability of appointments. For list of university and college dental clinics in Ontario see, the Directory, Appendix 3.

Local Community Information Centres may be able to identify options for dental care services in your area. For a listing of Centres in Ontario, see the Directory, Appendix 3.

2.7 Assistive Devices and Home Oxygen Programs

The Assistive Devices Program (ADP) and the Home Oxygen Program (HOP) are administered by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.

These programs offer financial assistance to Ontario residents with long-term physical disabilities to obtain basic, competitively priced, personalized assistive devices appropriate for the individual's needs and essential for independent living. Devices covered by the program are intended to give people increased independence and control over their lives so they may avoid costly institutional settings and remain in a community living arrangement.

Equipment Funded Under the Programs

ADP covers over 8,000 separate pieces of equipment or supplies in a number of categories including: mobility aids; supplies for insulin-dependent diabetics; hearing aids; respiratory equipment; visual and communication aids.

HOP pays for oxygen and oxygen delivery equipment, such as concentrators, cylinders, liquid systems and related supplies, such as masks and tubing.

Eligibility

Assistive Devices Program

Any Ontario resident who has a valid Ontario Health Card issued in their name and has a physical disability of six months or longer, may be eligible. There are specific eligibility criteria that apply to each device category.

Home Oxygen Program

Any Ontario resident who has a valid Ontario Health Card issued in their name and has a chronic illness or dysfunction that requires long-term oxygen therapy, may be eligible.

Financial Assistance

ADP pays up to 75 percent of the cost of equipment, such as wheelchairs, orthopedic braces and breathing aids. For others, such as hearing aids, the ADP contributes a fixed amount. With regard to supply items such as ostomy and needles and syringes for seniors, the ADP pays an annual grant directly to the person.

HOP pays 100 percent of the cost of oxygen and related equipment for seniors and those on social assistance, home care or residing in a long-term care facility.

2.8 Ambulance Services

Calling an Ambulance

For emergency ambulance services only, call 911 or look in the "Emergency Numbers" section at the front of your telephone book for the emergency number to call in your area.

All Ontario residents who travel within Ontario by ambulance for medically necessary services and who have a valid Ontario Health Card are required to pay a portion (co-payment) of the ambulance services.

Payment for Ambulance Trips

If you have a valid Ontario Health Card and your use of an ambulance is deemed medically essential by an attending physician you will not be billed for ambulance trips between Ontario medical facilities (e.g., between two hospitals), but will be billed a co-payment of $45 for ambulance trips between your home and a hospital.

You are exempted from the co-payment if you are receiving provincial social assistance, are a registered Home Care client or are living in an Ontario health care facility.

If your trip is deemed not medically essential by an attending physician or you do not have a valid Ontario Health Card, you will be billed $240 for a land ambulance trip or the full cost of an air ambulance trip.

2.9 Hospital Programs

Ontario hospitals provide several priority programs that may be of particular interest to seniors.

Hip and Knee Joint Replacement

Fifty-five hospitals in Ontario provide approximately 20,200 hip and knee total joint replacements a year, to improve the mobility and independence of adults with severe degenerative joint conditions. Family physicians are responsible for referrals to orthopedic surgeons for decisions about appropriate treatment.

Transplants

There are eight hospitals in Ontario that perform organ transplant surgery. New organ and tissue donation and transplantation legislation was introduced in late 2000 in the Trillium Gift of Life Network Act. The Trillium Gift of Life Network (TGLN) has been established to plan, promote, coordinate and support organ and tissue donation across the province.

For information on organ and tissue donation, see page 122.

Hospital Specialized Medical Geriatric Assessment

A number of hospitals across the province have inpatient, outpatient and outreach programs which provide medical assessment, treatment and slower-paced rehabilitation for seniors with complex medical conditions, or who are at risk of losing their independence due to frequent falls, unexplained confusion, loss of mobility, or other unexplained indicators. Contact your family doctor to access these hospital-based services.

Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Care and Treatment Centres

There are 31 hospital-based Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Care/Treatment Centres that provide 24-hour access to emergency medical care, forensic documentation, crisis management and emotional support to adult victims of sexual assault in Ontario. Domestic violence treatment services are also available at most sites.

The Ontario Network of Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Care and Treatment Centres operates a Web site with information on sexual assault and domestic violence, how to get help, including a list of Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Care/Treatment Centres in Ontario. The Web site address is www.sacc.to/gylb/satc/Listing.asp?ProvinceID=9

If you cannot access a computer contact your hospital and they can direct you to the program nearest you.

2.10 Mental Health Programs

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care funds a variety of programs for seniors who have mental illness.

Specialized Geriatric Mental Health Outreach Programs

Specialized Geriatric Mental Health Outreach Programs provide assessment, consultation, treatment and education to seniors with serious mental illness, as well as to their families and service providers, through an interdisciplinary/multidisciplinary approach. In most cases, seniors with mental illness or their families can be referred to these programs directly or they can be referred through their family doctor. To find out about a program in your area, contact your family doctor.

Inpatient and Outpatient Services at Hospitals

Most general hospitals across the province have inpatient psychiatry beds that provide acute, short-term treatment for people with mental illness. A number of Provincial Psychiatric Hospitals and Specialty Psychiatric Hospitals across the province have inpatient psychogeriatric beds that provide treatment for seniors with serious mental illness who have longer-term hospitalization needs.

Many general hospitals, provincial psychiatric hospitals and specialty psychiatric hospitals have outpatient psychiatry programs for seniors with mental illness including: day treatment programs and outpatient clinics.

These services are available to seniors who have mental illness, including residents of long-term care facilities.

To access hospital-based psychiatric services for seniors, contact your family doctor. In the case of a psychiatric emergency, contact or go to the hospital emergency department nearest you.

In addition, some Community Care Access Centres (CCACs) offer mental health services for seniors. To locate the CCAC nearest you, call the Seniors' INFOline at 1-888-910-1999. See page 48 for more information on CCACs.

Older Persons' Mental Health and Addictions Network of Ontario

The Older Persons' Mental Health and Addictions Network of Ontario (OPMHAN) is a collaborative of more than 60 provincial and regional organizations committed to improving the system of care for older adults living in the community who are at risk of, or coping with, mental illness and/or addictions and those who care for and about them.

2.11 Patient Advocate

Each hospital in the province employs an impartial Patient Advocate to manage all patients' concerns and/or questions (excluding their primary care) during their hospital stay. The Patient Advocate helps put patients in touch with the appropriate office within the hospital to investigate and resolve their concern.

For the name of your hospital's Patient Advocate, call its central telephone line, listed in the White Pages of your telephone book.

2.12 Ontario's Strategy for Alzheimer Disease and Related Dementias

Alzheimer Disease is the most common dementia affecting older adults. It is a deteriorating brain disease that eventually kills. In Ontario, more than 100,000 people live with the disease; 90 percent of those are over the age of 65. With Ontario's growing and aging population, it is expected that Alzheimer Disease and related dementias will increase significantly in coming years.

The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat has partnered with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care to implement Ontario's Strategy for Alzheimer Disease and Related Dementias. The Strategy consists of a 10-point action plan designed to help people with Alzheimer Disease and related dementias and their caregivers and families.

For information about Ontario's Strategy for Alzheimer Disease and Related Dementias, visit the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat Web site at www.ontarioseniors.ca or call the Seniors' INFOline at 1-888-910-1999.

2.13 Ontario Stroke Strategy

The government is taking a leadership role in addressing one of the most serious health issues facing Ontarians by transforming stroke care across the province.

The Stroke Strategy is:

- supporting programs that promote health and wellness and contribute to the prevention of stroke
- decreasing morbidity and mortality of individuals at high risk for stroke through the implementation of new knowledge and therapies
- anticipating the future needs of a growing and aging population, and

- providing responsive acute stroke care and stroke rehabilitation close to home.

For information on stroke education, contact the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario at 416-489-7100.

2.14 Chronic Care

Chronic care is provided in hospitals for people who have long-term illnesses or disabilities that cannot be treated at home or in long-term care facilities. Chronic care provides patients with room, board and other basic necessities in addition to medical care.

Co-payment Rate

Chronic care co-payments have been established for patients in chronic care hospitals/units. They represent the patient's contribution toward accommodation (services) and meals, unless the patient qualifies for a reduction in payments.

Co-payment Rate Reduction

There are two types of payment reductions: full and partial.

A full rate reduction is available for patients who:

- are receiving family benefits or general welfare assistance
- have monthly incomes below a certain level, established annually

- have a third party (such as Workplace Safety and Insurance Board, an insurance company, Department of Veterans Affairs, or other Federal Government agency) pay either the total hospital cost or the co-payment.

A partial rate reduction is available depending on the monthly income of the patient and his or her dependents and the number of dependents.

There are forms which a hospital staff member will help patients complete to determine eligibility for co-payment rate reductions.

2.15 Palliative Care

Palliative care, or end-of-life care, is a range of services meant to comfort and alleviate the pain of a person who is dying.

Services can include any or all of the following:

- nursing and personal care in the home or other place of residence
- specialized services in a hospital, either in a palliative care unit or through a team of palliative professionals who will provide care wherever the patient is located in the hospital

- social and emotional support, often provided by volunteer hospice organizations
- spiritual and religious care
- bereavement support for the family.

Palliative care, including pain and symptom management, is provided within the health system, while family, friends and volunteers contribute in a significant way towards improving the quality of end-of-life for the individual who is dying.

If you or someone you know requires palliative care services, please contact your local Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) or speak to your doctor about the services available in your community.

Community-Based Health Services

3.1 Community-Based Health Services

Community-based services, also referred to as “home care”, “home health care”, “in-home care” or “outreach services”, help seniors and persons with physical disabilities to live independently and remain in their homes for as long as possible. These services are designed to provide visiting health services at home to people with a disability, illness or limitation due to aging who would otherwise need to go to or stay in a hospital.

There are many community support service agencies in Ontario. Service providers may be government agencies, municipalities, homes for the aged, charitable, not-for-profit groups and for-profit organizations. Support services provided might differ in each community and may include:

In-Home and Community Services – help you with day-to-day things around your home:

- Home Help/Homemaking
- Security Checks/Telephone Assurance Program
- Emergency Response Systems
- Intervention and Assistive Service
- Home Maintenance and Repair.
- Meals on Wheels

- Congregate Dining.

Community Services – helps connect you with friends or community programs:

- Adult Day Service
- Alzheimer Day Service
- Friendly Visiting
- Transportation to essential appointments
- Intergenerational Program
- Social and Recreational Services.

Health Services – get special help to you at home when ill, recovering, disabled or feeling the limits of aging:

- Personal Support Service
- Attendant Service
- Foot Care
- Alzheimer/Dementia Service Overnight Service
- Palliative Care
- Supportive Housing.

Caregiver Respite Services – help your caregivers through:

- Respite Service (In-home)
- Support and Counselling
- Training, information and education
- Volunteer Hospice Visiting Program.

The Long-Term Care Programs Branch within the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care provides for many community-based services. These services provide quality visiting health services at home to people who would otherwise need to go to or stay longer in hospitals and assists seniors and persons with physical disabilities to live independently and remain in their own homes for as long as possible. In-home health and support services are available in your community through the Community Care Access Centres (CCAC).

A CCAC case manager will recommend the most appropriate service(s) for you based on a thorough assessment of your needs. Some of those services may be covered under the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care, regardless of your financial situation.

You can also contact a service provider directly to retain additional services, usually at your own cost. Subsidies may be available depending upon your financial situation and the individual service provider.

For more information on community-based health services in your area, speak with your local CCAC or contact the following seniors' service provider organizations:

A CCAC case manager is the single point of access to information, community support services such as in-home services, respite services and adult day programs along with long-term care placement.

Case managers, in collaboration with you can determine eligibility and arrange for essential:

- visiting health and support services in your home
- services for people recovering from surgery or an acute illness
- support services to enable people with physical disabilities to live independently at home
- a variety of services that help frail older adults to remain living independently at home
- facility-based care for those who require 24-hour nursing service to meet their nursing and personal care needs (see page 66 for more information on Long-Term Care Facilities), and
- can help provide information and referrals if you wish to purchase additional services.

To find the CCAC nearest you, contact the Seniors' INFOLine:

Phone: 416-314-7511

TTY Toll-free: 1-800-387-5559

Visit the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care Web site at www.health.gov.on.ca and www.healthyontario.com for contact information on the CCAC in your area, or see the Directory, Appendix 3.

In-Home Services

The case manager will work with you to determine eligibility and arrange for a range of visiting health and personal support services in your home that may include nursing care, physiotherapy, occupational therapy, speech-language therapy, palliative care, dietetic services, social work, personal support services such as bathing and dressing, and homemaking such as meal preparation and feeding.

You can receive in-home services if:

- you are an Ontario resident and have a valid Ontario Health Card, and
- adequate treatment can be provided at home, and
- your needs cannot be met as a hospital outpatient.

If it is determined that you are not eligible for a program or service, the CCAC staff will help you explore other options.

Respite Services

Respite services allow a caregiver to take a break from the challenging responsibilities of assisting and supporting an aging parent or other family members. Respite care may be offered as an in-home or out-of-home service. See your CCAC case manager for further information about respite services.

Adult Day Programs

Adult Day Programs provide supervised individual programming in a group setting to help adults achieve and maintain their maximum level of functioning to avoid premature and inappropriate institutionalization, and to provide respite and information for caregivers. Components of the service include planned social, recreational and physical activities, meals, transportation (if required), personal support/attendant care and minor health services (e.g. monitoring medication).

Some Adult Day Programs have a specific mandate to serve only individuals with an acquired brain injury, Alzheimer Disease and other progressive cognitive disorders and dementias, or the frail elderly. Other programs provide integrated service for all of those. See your CCAC case manager for further information about adult day programs.

3.3 Community-Based Health Services for Aboriginal People

First Nations, Aboriginal and Métis people can access long-term care services through the Community Care Access Centres (CCAC) and/or community support service agencies such as Aboriginal Health Access Centres as well as through some Aboriginal organizations.

Aboriginal Health Access Centres

Aboriginal Health Access Centres offer culturally appropriate primary care to Aboriginal families across the province. Programs may include pre- and post-natal care, nutrition, health education, disease prevention, counselling, and traditional healing.

For list of Aboriginal Health Access Centres, see the Directory, Appendix 3.

Community Support Services Delivered by Aboriginal Organizations

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care funds some Ontario Aboriginal organizations and agencies to provide long-term care community support services to Aboriginal people who reside off reserves and to Métis people. Support services are offered through different sites and locations across the province. For example, the Ontario Federation of Indian Friendship Centres co-ordinates the delivery of a range of long-term care community support services through its 26-member Friendship Centres located across the province. The Métis Nation of Ontario delivers community support services through 12 sites located across the province.

Community Support Services Delivered by the First Nations

The First Nations manage and deliver various health and social services on behalf of their members including community long-term care and facility services in their communities. The range and type of services available varies from community to community.

Some First Nations communities and organizations are directly funded by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care to deliver long-term care services to their communities. While homemaking services are the most common, some receive provincial funding to provide community support services (meal programs, friendly visiting, security checks) and in a few cases professional health services.

Aboriginal Diabetes Programs

Aboriginal communities and organizations offer a range of culturally and linguistically appropriate programs emphasizing health education, early intervention and the prevention of complications.

The Southern Ontario Aboriginal Diabetes Initiative (SOADI) offers outreach services by five regional workers. For the program nearest you, contact the SOADI main office 1-888-514-1370.

The Ontario Federation of Indian Friendship Centres (OFIFC) offers diabetes education services through the health outreach, life-long care and pre-natal programs of its 29-member locations. For the location of your nearest Friendship Centre, contact the OFIFC central office at 416-956-7575. Web site: www.ofifc.org

The Ontario Métis Aboriginal Association (OMAA) provides diabetes prevention education in partnership with the Dryden Diabetes Education Centre Healing Trails Program. Programming is offered in Red Lake, Wabigoon, Thunder Bay, Timmins, Cochrane, Chapleau, Sault Ste. Marie, Wawa, Iron Bridge, Sudbury, Windsor, Bancroft and Renfrew. Toll free: 1-800-423-3361. Web site: www.oma.org

Diabetes programming is provided by First Nations communities across Ontario:

The Anishinabek Health Commission of the Union of Ontario Indians delivers programs to 43 First Nations.

4.1 Staying in Your Home

Housing needs change over the course of a lifetime. Many seniors can continue to live at home today with the help of some visiting health and support services and by making specific adaptations to their homes. Contact the case manager in your local Community Care Access Centre to help arrange appropriate care services. For more information, see Community Care Access Centres, page 48.

Home Owner Assistance

As Canada's national housing agency, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) has been helping Canadians improve their housing and living conditions for more than 50 years.

For seniors who want to continue to live independently and improve safety in their homes, CMHC offers these programs:

- The Home Adaptation for Seniors' Independence Program helps homeowners and landlords pay for minor home adaptations (e.g. handrails, grab bars) that will allow low-income seniors to stay longer in their own homes.
- The Emergency Repair Program helps low-income homeowners or occupants in rural and remote areas for emergency repairs to keep their homes safe.
- The Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program helps low-income homeowners, or landlords of units occupied by low-income households, pay for repairs to bring their properties up to minimum health and safety standards and/or to modify their homes to make them accessible to disabled persons.

For more information on a specific program and/or eligibility requirements, call 1-800-668-2642 or visit www.cmhc.ca

Home Safety

The Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation also provides information about home safety issues. Call 1-800-668-2642 to order any of the following publications or go to www.cmhc.ca and click on "Individual Consumer" in the menu on the left, then on "Seniors":

Maintaining Seniors, Independence Through Home Adaptations: A Self-Assessment Guide – Use this step-by-step guide to examine your home and identify the adaptations best for you.

Maintaining Seniors' Independence Through Home Adaptations – This videotape describes how you can adapt your home to carry out your daily activities in comfort and safety ($10.95).

Maintaining Seniors' Independence: A Guide to Home Adaptation – This booklet explains how to work with an occupational therapist, a home designer and a building contractor to adapt your home for safety, security, comfort and independence.

At Home with Alzheimer's Disease: Useful Adaptations to the Home Environment – This booklet describes how to adapt a home for people with Alzheimer's Disease.

How to Lock Out Crime: Protecting Your Home Against Burglary – This booklet will help you increase the safety and security of your home ($9.95).

Safe at Home – This booklet describes the community services that can help you feel safe at home.

4.2 Housing Choices for Seniors

If you find your house or apartment is using too much of your energy and has become more than you can cope with, you may want to consider a move. Seniors who are able to live independently have a number of housing options to choose from, which may include health and support services (if needed).

Independent housing options include:

- independent living (such as your own home, condominium, apartment or housing co-operative) with the assistance of a community-based health service. For more information, see Community-Based Health Services, page 46
- adult lifestyle/retirement communities
- retirement homes
- social housing for seniors
- supportive housing.

A senior who is no longer able to live independently in his or her own home, who requires more support than is typically offered in a supportive living environment, or who is at risk in his or her current home, may require placement in a long-term care facility. For more information, see Long-Term Care Facilities, page 66.

If you are having difficulties determining what option might be best for you or your family member, one of the professionals listed below can help:

- a case manager in your local Community Care Access Centre
For more information, see Community Care Access Centres, page 48.
- a social worker in a geriatric centre or in a family counselling agency
- a community health nurse, or
- a hospital social worker or a discharge planning co-ordinator in your local hospital.

You may find it helpful to refer to TheCareGuide.com's Assessment Centre to help find the right housing and/or care alternatives. For more information, see "The Care Guide", page 48.

Types of Housing Options

This list describes some of the most common housing options available. There may be others that are not reflected here.

Adult Lifestyle/ Retirement Communities

Adult Lifestyle/Retirement Communities provide independent living residences for retiree's or semi-retiree's in a vibrant community of well seniors. Residences may include bungalows, townhomes, small homes or condominiums providing the benefits of home ownership with on-site recreational and community activities. Amenities may include 24-hour security, social interaction with peers along with leisure and recreational activities. Ownership in an adult lifestyle community may range from simple ownership, to condominium style, land lease and life lease options. Your local real estate agent can provide you with information on an adult lifestyle/retirement community in your area.

Life Lease Housing

Life lease is a form of housing tenure generally developed for seniors, which is similar in appearance to a condominium. Typically, life lease housing is operated by non-profit or charitable institutions. A tenant is granted the right to occupy a dwelling unit in return for an up-front payment and monthly maintenance fee payment.

The Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing has undertaken research regarding life lease housing in Ontario. If you are considering this option contact the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing, Market Housing Branch, at 416-585-6541.

Retirement Homes

Retirement homes are private businesses that sell to consumers various combinations of accommodation, support services and personal care.

Retirement homes are nearly all for-profit facilities, and care and support services in these settings are neither funded nor regulated by the provincial government. Unlike long-term care facilities, the government does not subsidize retirement homes. You are responsible for the entire cost of both your accommodation and care services. Retirement home accommodation rates, however, are subject to rent control.

Retirement residences vary widely in terms of care and services provided, amenities offered, types of accommodation (from shared rooms to large apartments), staffing patterns and physical structures (from converted houses to high-rise buildings). Prices vary widely in accordance with the type of accommodation and range of services selected.

Retirement Home Tenancies

Retirement home accommodation is regulated only as tenancies under the Tenant Protection Act (TPA). This accommodation is known as “care homes” under that legislation. The same rules that apply to any type of tenancy also apply to retirement home tenancies with some additional requirements. The TPA deals with residential tenancy issues but not standards of care. The TPA contains some special rules about retirement homes, in addition to protection against unfair evictions, rent increases for accommodation, and poor maintenance. For more information on the TPA, see page 62.

All retirement homes are required to provide tenants with written tenancy agreements setting out:

- the amount of the rent, not including the costs of services and meals, and when you must pay the rent (usually monthly or weekly)
- a list of all the care services and meals that you must pay for, if any, and the cost of each
- the length of time the agreement is for and a statement that you have the right to discuss the agreement with anyone before signing it and that you can cancel it within five days of signing it.

The tenancy agreement may also include other agreements between you and your landlord that are permitted by the Tenant Protection Act. Residents may leave any retirement home given that they provide 30-days written notification of their exit date to the retirement home. No long-term leases are required.

In addition to accommodation, retirement homes provide a wide range of care and support services. Care in these settings is neither funded nor regulated by the provincial government. However, in addition to the tenancy legislation described above, the province does regulate other aspects of retirement homes in the same fashion as it regulates other facilities that provide accommodation and food. For example, the Ontario Building Fire Code and the Health Promotion and Protection Act (HPPA) apply to retirement homes just as they apply to restaurants, hotels, homes for the aged and nursing homes.

Under the HPPA, Public Health Units (Medical Officers of Health) enforce Mandatory Health Program and Services Guidelines. These standards apply in a wide range of settings, including retirement homes, and are enforced whether or not a local municipality has passed any by-laws pertaining to care in retirement homes. These guidelines apply only to safe meal preparation, sanitation and water quality in retirement homes, not care. Municipalities are free to pass by-laws regulating care in local retirement homes and a small number have done so.

Care Home Information Package

All retirement homes must provide you with a Care Home Information Package (CHIP) before you sign the tenancy agreement. You should review the CHIP carefully as it contains important information about the services and the staffing in the retirement home. The CHIP must contain:

- a list of the different types of accommodation provided and the alternative packages of care services and meals available as part of the total charges
- charges for the different types of accommodation and for the alternative packages of care services and meals
- minimum staffing levels and qualifications of staff
- details of emergency response system, if any, or a statement that there is no emergency response system
- a list of, and fee schedule, for the additional services and meals available from the landlord on a user-pay basis, and
- internal procedures, if any, for dealing with complaints, including a statement as to whether tenants have any right to appeal an initial decision, or a statement that there is no internal procedure for dealing with complaints.

Retirement Home Services

Most retirement homes provide accommodation, meals, social/recreational programs, 24-hour supervision, laundry and house-keeping services and some level of care and support services such as assistance with the activities of daily living, or assistance with medications. Additional nursing and personal care services may be available at an additional cost. Tenants may also qualify for services funded by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care through Community Care Access Centres (see page 48) (e.g. visiting nurses or therapists).

Typically, retirement homes offer a package of accommodation and services. A survey done in 2001 showed the average rate of private accommodation in Ontario to be $2,005/month but some rates can exceed $5,000/month. Semi-private accommodations average $1,373/month. Retirement homes may offer you the flexibility to opt in or out of specific services and you may be able to purchase services and supports not included in your basic package.

Anyone can apply to a retirement home; you do not need to provide medical evidence that you need care as part of the application process. The home, however, may assess your needs to ensure that you do not need more support than it can provide.

Ontario Retirement Communities Association

The Ontario Retirement Communities Association (ORCA) is a voluntary, non-profit organization that sets standards and inspects retirement residences in Ontario. All ORCA member homes must pass and maintain ORCA's standards as a condition of membership. ORCA also offers a directory of its accredited retirement homes. Complaints Response and Information Service

Anyone in Ontario, including seniors, their families and retirement home residents, can call the 1-800 Retirement Home Complaints Response and Information Service, free of charge, to get help resolving retirement home complaints or to obtain information about the services and options available to them. The service is sponsored by ORCA and applies to all retirement residences in the province, not just ORCA member homes.

The toll-free line is staffed, five days a week from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. with message-taking during the evenings and on weekends.

Callers can get help with:

- understanding the difference between a retirement home, nursing home, home for the aged, and other housing options available to seniors

- how to decide what housing option is best for you
- what to look for in a retirement residence
- what housing options are available in your community
- the services and level of care provided in different settings
- information on local and provincial regulations governing retirement homes
- help resolving problems encountered with any retirement homes in Ontario.

Social Housing for Seniors

Social housing is affordable housing available for seniors, as well as for families and single people, with low to moderate income. The owner of this type of housing may include private landlords with rent supplement units, municipalities who own public housing or non-profit/co-operative corporations who own housing projects. They receive a subsidy from the municipality or a cost-shared subsidy from the federal government to provide rent geared-to-income units (RGI units).

Municipal governments are now responsible for funding and administering all social housing. The Consolidated Municipal Service Managers have this responsibility. There are 47 Consolidated Municipal Service Managers across the province.

Contact your local municipal offices to find out how to apply for social housing in your community. See Directory, Appendix 3 for a list of the Social Housing Co-ordinated Access Centres across Ontario on page 237.

Co-operative Housing

A housing co-operative is a legal association formed for the purpose of providing homes to its members on a continuing basis. A co-op is different from other housing associations in its ownership structure and its commitment to co-operative principles.

Many housing co-ops have listings in the Yellow Pages of the phone book. Local housing agencies, information centres or federations of housing co-operatives may have the names of co-ops in your area. In many Ontario centres, you can also find information about housing co-ops through Co-ordinated Access Centres, which report to the municipal level of government. (See the Directory, Appendix 3).

Supportive Housing

Supportive housing programs provide on-site personal support services for seniors living as tenants in designated residential buildings such as a seniors' building. Supportive housing programs are designed to help people to live independently in their own apartments. Services include personal support/attendant services, essential homemaking services, and staff available 24-hours a day to handle regular scheduled care and emergency needs.

Most supportive housing programs are operated by not-for-profit organizations and the provision of support services is funded through the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. As such, there may be no charge for the personal support/attendant and essential homemaking services. However, tenants are responsible for their own rent, food and clothing. For the housing component of the service, there is generally a tenant-landlord relationship where-in the tenant is expected to pay rent based on their income as well as other usual costs of living in the community.

Supportive housing may be connected with an apartment building, condominium or small- to large-scale housing projects. For more information on this type of housing in your community, speak with your local Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) or contact the following seniors' service provider organizations:

4.3 Landlord and Tenant Relations

The Tenant Protection Act

The Tenant Protection Act governs landlord and tenant relationships across Ontario. It protects residential tenants against unfair evictions, rent increases and poor maintenance, and contains strong anti-harassment rules.

Ontario Rental Housing Tribunal

The Ontario Rental Housing Tribunal is an independent agency responsible for resolving landlord and tenant disputes through mediation and adjudication.

The Tribunal processes all applications filed under the Tenant Protection Act and issues orders to resolve landlord-tenant disputes. It also provides information to landlords and tenants concerning their rights and obligations under the Act.

Tenants should note that if their landlord serves them with an application to evict them, under the Tenant Protection Act, they have only five days to file their dispute.

Information for landlords and tenants is distributed by the Tribunal through 17 local offices, a toll-free public inquiry telephone service, at 1-888-332-3234 and the Web site www.orht.gov.on.ca

Property Standards Enforcement for Tenants

The Tenant Protection Act requires landlords to keep their buildings and rental units in a good state of repair and ensure that all health, safety and maintenance standards are met. If a landlord does not meet the required standards of maintenance, a tenant may file an application with the Ontario Rental Housing Tribunal for an order either granting an abatement of rent, authorizing repair and charging costs to the landlord, or requiring the landlord to carry out the repair within a certain time frame.

The Tenant Protection Act has also enhanced the powers of municipalities to enforce maintenance standards and strengthened penalties against landlords who persistently fail to comply with them. Tenants with concerns about the quality of maintenance in their rental units or complex should contact their municipal property standards office and request that an inspection be undertaken.

The telephone number for your local property standards office can be found in the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "By-law Enforcement".

Tenants residing in areas without municipal maintenance standards may contact the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing, Maintenance and Investigations Unit at 1-800-387-4451. If an inspector finds that repairs are needed, a work order can be issued, listing the repairs the landlord is required to complete.

5.1 Long-Term Care Facilities

Long-term care facilities take care of people who are no longer able to live independently in their own homes even with the range of community supports available in Ontario. Long-term care facilities are designed for people who require on-site 24-hour nursing services, daily personal assistance, or are at risk in their current homes.

Long-term care facilities are provincially funded and regulated. They are sometimes known by their historic terms: nursing homes, municipal homes for the aged and charitable homes for the aged.

- Nursing homes are licensed by the province and are subject to the provisions of the Nursing Homes Act. They may be operated by non-profit or for-profit operators, which include single owner operations and chain operations with multiple homes. About 90 percent of nursing homes are operated by for-profit operators.
- All homes for the aged are non-profit. All municipalities are required by legislation to operate a municipal home for the aged under the Homes for the Aged and Rest Homes Act. Larger municipalities often operate more than one home.

- Charitable homes for the aged are operated by non-profit organizations under the Charitable Institutions Act. All long-term care facilities are subject to the same provincial standards with respect to care and services and resident fees.

Eligibility and Access to Long-Term Care Facilities

A Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) case manager determines eligibility for admission to a long-term care facility. The CCAC also determines priority for admission and manages the waiting lists for facilities.

Generally, applicants must be 18 years of age or over, have a valid Ontario Health Card and require on-site 24-hour nursing care, plus assistance with activities of daily living or on-site supervision/monitoring throughout the day to ensure their safety or well being.

It must be shown that the applicant's care requirements can best be met in a long-term care facility and that none of the publicly funded community-based services or other caregiving, support or companionship arrangements available to the applicant are sufficient, in any combination, to meet his or her requirements. If the person does not meet eligibility requirements for a long-term care facility, the case manager can provide information about other available options.

Your local CCAC is the first place to learn more about eligibility requirements and how to access long-term care facilities. Staff at the CCAC will discuss options available and help you find accommodation in a long-term care facility, if needed. For more information about CCACs and how to find the CCAC nearest you, see page 48.

You can also view a list of long-term care facilities in your community Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care at www.ltccareers.com/Facilitysearch/english and www.healthyontario.com

Accommodation Rates

All nursing and personal care services are paid by the Ontario Government. Residents pay for their accommodation costs (a needs test often based on their income). The maximum amount that residents can be charged for accommodation is determined by the province and set out in regulations. Accommodation rates are generally set each July 1 by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.

People who cannot pay the full basic accommodation rate (previously known as ward accommodation) can apply to the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care for a rate reduction. People in preferred accommodation (semi-private and private rooms) must pay the full rate for basic accommodation plus a premium for the semi-private or private room. There is no rate reduction for people in preferred accommodation.

Residents may choose to purchase additional services beyond what long-term care facilities are required to provide (e.g. cable television, personal telephone, and hairdressing/barbering). All such charges must be agreed to by the resident in advance. A facility may not charge a resident for these services without the resident's agreement in writing.

Services in Long-Term Care Facilities

Long-term care facilities provide health services for people who can no longer live independently in their own homes and who need nursing and/or personal care 24-hours a day. These facilities are designed with a home-like environment where each resident can feel safe, comfortable, and well cared for in a private, semi-private or basic room. Healthy living, activities and socialization with appropriate nursing care on-site are common features in all long-term care facilities.

Long-term care facilities are funded specifically to provide nursing and personal care and promote quality of life and independence through the provision of recreational activities, therapy services, counselling, spiritual care and other programs. Long-term care facilities employ registered nurses, registered practical nurses and personal support workers/health care aides, program staff, housekeeping and maintenance staff. All meals are provided including therapeutic and texture modified diets if necessary. Every long-term care facility must employ the services of a dietician.

Short Stay/Respite Beds

Some long-term care facilities may offer short-stay programs providing respite or supportive care. A short-stay bed may be used on a temporary basis if a person requires a short-term admission as a result of a crisis. Short-stay programs are also targeted to those individuals who may require or benefit from a short stay in a long-term care facility or whose caregiver may need relief for a short period. All users of short stay/respite beds are expected to return to their home in the community within a specified period of time.

Residents' Bill of Rights

All three Acts that regulate long-term care facilities (Nursing Homes Act, Homes for the Aged and Rest Homes Act and the Charitable Institutions Act) include a Residents' Bill of Rights. The Residents' Bill of Rights spells out in detail residents' rights and the responsibilities of the facility to fully respect, promote and support these rights, as well as residents' autonomy and decision-making. Every resident has the right to be treated with courtesy and respect, in a way that fully recognizes the resident's dignity and individuality and to be free from mental and physical abuse. Residents must also be given the opportunity and support to establish and maintain an organized residents' council. For more information, see Residents' Councils, page 70.

Long-term care facilities are required to post the Residents' Bill of Rights in both English and French, in large print and in locations in the facility that are easily accessible to residents or their substitute decision-maker. On admission, each resident or substitute decision-maker receives a copy of the Bill of Rights and the processes for obtaining information, raising concerns, lodging complaints or recommending changes regarding the facility and its services (without fear of restraint, interference, coercion, discrimination or reprisal).

The long-term care facilities are expected to establish policies regarding the promotion of residents' rights, what constitutes resident abuse, how to prevent abuse, and actions to be taken in all instances of alleged abuse. Where abuse has been confirmed, the long-term care facilities are expected to make resources available to assist the abused resident and the person responsible for the abuse.

Public Reporting on Long-Term Care Homes

The Public Reporting on Long-Term Care Homes tool will provide information about the performance of long-term care homes during a specified reporting period. The information will be updated regularly. For more information on the Public Reporting on Long-Term Care Homes, visit <http://publicreporting.ltchomes.net>.

Complaints

Even if you have participated in choosing your new home, some adjusting and compromising may be necessary as you settle in. If a problem arises, it is best if you and/or your family/substitute decision-maker solve it before it becomes a crisis. Always try to discuss your concern first with the person in charge of the service about which you have a complaint. The administrator of the facility is the person to see if this action is not effective in resolving your problem or if you have other concerns or needs that may arise after you move in.

If you are living in a long-term care facility and you cannot reach a resolution with the administration, you can raise your concerns with the local office of the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. The ministry employs a group of staff specifically to monitor long-term care facilities and investigate resident complaints. You can obtain the number for your local office by calling the Seniors' INFOline at 1-888-910-1999.

Residents' Councils

Long-term care facilities are required (when requested by the resident population) to have active councils or committees. Every resident has the opportunity to participate on residents' councils, and thus have an influence on the quality of life in the home. The purpose is to encourage an exchange of ideas, suggestions and concerns regarding all aspects of care and activities in the home to enhance relations with staff and volunteers.

For more information on residents' councils, contact:

Ontario Association of Residents' Councils

351 Christie St.
Toronto ON M6G 3C3
Phone: 416-535-3718
E-mail: oarc@idirect.com

Family Councils

Many long-term care homes have an active family council. A Family Council is an autonomous group of family/friends of residents that provides a venue for mutual support, information and education, and advocacy. Although all Family Councils have these goals in common, each Council is unique in meeting the needs of its members, the residents, and the home.

For more information on family councils, contact:

The Waiting List

Community Care Access Centres (CCAC) manage admissions to all long-term care facilities including determining priorities for admission and managing the waiting lists for long-term care facility admissions.

Persons most in need of a long-term care facility are placed first. If you are interested in entering a long-term care facility, contact the CCAC in your area for assistance. See the Directory, Appendix 3, for the CCAC in your area.

A Transfer is Possible

It may happen that you find yourself in a facility that does not match your expectations or preferences, and you may wish to transfer to another facility. You are entitled to apply for a transfer to another long-term care facility. To explore this possibility, please call the CCAC in your area (see the Directory, Appendix 3).

5.2 Chronic Care

Chronic Care is provided in hospitals for people who cannot be treated at home or in long-term care facilities. Patients may require immediate access to a physician due to an unstable physical condition, require treatment for a progressive illness such as Alzheimer Disease or access to specialized care such as palliative care or tube feeding. Residents are charged a co-payment set by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care in a fashion similar to that of the long-term care facilities. For more information, see Chronic Care, Co-payment Rate, page 34.

For more information about the referral process, see your physician or a CCAC case manager (see Directory, Appendix 3, for the CCAC nearest you).

Old Age Security

Old Age Security provides a modest pension at age 65 if you have lived in Canada for at least 10 years. If you are a low-income senior, you may be eligible for other benefits as early as age 60.

Basic Old Age Security

To qualify for the basic Old Age Security (OAS) pension, you must :

- be 65 years of age or over, and
- be a Canadian citizen or a legal resident of Canada on the day before the application is approved, and
- have lived in Canada at least 10 years after reaching age 18.

If you don't live in Canada, you must have been a Canadian citizen or legal resident of Canada on the day before the date you left Canada and have lived in Canada at least 20 years after age 18.

You do not have to be retired to receive the basic OAS pension, but you must apply to get it. The OAS basic pension is taxable income.

Income Supplements for Seniors

There are benefits available to seniors living in Canada who have a low or modest income. On top of the basic Old Age Security, low or modest income seniors may also be entitled to the Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS). In addition a spouse or common-law partner between the ages of 60 to 64 of a GIS recipient, may be entitled to the "Allowance" or to the "Allowance for the Survivor".

Guaranteed Income Supplement

The Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) provides additional money on top of the Old Age Security (OAS) Pension to low-income seniors living in Canada. If you have little or no income besides your OAS basic pension, you may be able to get a monthly Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS). The amount of this extra payment is based on your annual income, or the combined annual income of you and your spouse or common-law partner.

You must apply for this benefit and renew it each year, either automatically by filing an income tax return by April 30 each year, or by filling out a renewal form. The GIS benefit is not taxable income, although it is included in the calculation of net income, which is used in determining eligibility for a number of income-tested benefits.

Allowance and Allowance for the Survivor

The monthly Allowance is based on your income and that of your spouse/common-law partner. The Allowance for the Survivor is based solely on the survivor's income. It is designed to recognize the difficult circumstances faced by many survivors and by couples living on a single pension.

To qualify for the Allowance, you must:

- be between 60 and 64 years of age, and
- be a Canadian citizen or a legal resident of Canada on the day before the application is approved, and
- have lived in Canada at least 10 years after reaching age 18.

To qualify for the Allowance for the Survivor, you must:

- meet the criteria for the Allowance, and
- be a widowed person.

You must renew the Allowance or Allowance for the Survivor each year, either automatically by filing an income tax return by April 30, or by filling out a renewal form. The Allowance and the Allowance for the Survivor benefits are not taxable income.

The Allowance stops when:

- the client reaches age 65
- the client dies
- the spouse/common-law of the Allowance recipient ceases to be eligible for GIS
- the client becomes voluntarily separated or divorced
- either spouse/common-law has been absent from Canada for a period of more than six months, excluding the month of departure.

The Allowance for the Survivor stops when:

- the client reaches age 65
- the client dies
- the client ceases to be a widowed person (remarries or cohabits in a conjugal relationship for one year)
- the client has been absent from Canada for a period of more than six months, excluding the month of departure.

For more information on the Old Age Security Program, contact Human Resources and Social Development Canada (see page 75).

Canada Pension Plan

The Canada Pension Plan (CPP) is a contributory, earnings-related social insurance program. It ensures a measure of protection to a contributor and his or her family against the loss of income due to retirement, disability and death.

With very few exceptions, every person in Canada over the age of 18 earning a wage or salary must pay into the CPP. You and your employer each pay half of the contributions. If you are self-employed, you pay both portions. The CPP is also portable, so that even if you move from one job to another, you continue to contribute to the CPP and build up future credits.

You do not make contributions if you are receiving a CPP disability or retirement pension. At age 70, you stop contributing even if you have not stopped working.

The CPP operates throughout Canada, although the province of Quebec has its own similar program, the Quebec Pension Plan (QPP). The CPP and the QPP work together to ensure that all contributors are protected.

The CPP pays retirement pensions, survivor benefits, children's benefits, disability benefits and a lump-sum death benefit. You must apply for all CPP benefits. They are not sent automatically. It is important to note that all CPP benefits are taxable income and must be declared on your income tax form each year. Taxes on CPP benefits are not deducted at the source (federal government) unless you request monthly tax deductions.

Retirement Pension

Your CPP retirement pension is designed to replace about 25 percent of the earnings on which you paid into the plan. The actual amount you receive is based on how much and for how long you contributed to the Plan, as well as the age at which you choose to begin receiving the pension: age 60 at the earliest, or age 70 at the latest.

As a rule, you begin receiving your CPP pension the month after your 65th birthday. If you choose to take it before then, the amount would be smaller; if you take it after, larger—by 0.5 percent per month started before or after your 65th birthday (or 6 percent per year). That adjustment is permanent: if you choose to start your CPP retirement pension early, it will not be recalculated once you reach 65.

In order to take your CPP retirement pension before age 65, you must stop work or work for earnings below a specified level of income for a period of time. Those aged 65 or more are exempt from this requirement. Once you begin receiving your CPP pension, you can work as much as you want without affecting your pension payment. However, you cannot contribute anything further to CPP on those earnings.

Disability Benefits

To receive a CPP disability benefit, a contributor must apply in writing and:

- have made sufficient contributions to the plan
- must be disabled according to the terms of the CPP legislation
- be under age 65, and
- not be in receipt of the CPP retirement pension.

Survivor Benefits

The CPP death benefit is a one-time, lump-sum payment made to the deceased contributor's estate. If there is no estate, then the person responsible for the funeral expenses, the surviving spouse or common-law partner or the next of kin may be eligible to receive this payment, in that order.

The CPP survivor's pension is paid to the person who, at the time of death, is the legal spouse or common-law partner of the deceased contributor. If you are a separated legal spouse, and there is no co-habiting common-law partner, you may qualify for this benefit.

If your deceased same-sex common-law partner contributed to the CPP, you could be eligible for survivor's benefits if the contributor died on or after January 1, 1998.

The Canada Pension Plan children's benefit is paid to the natural or adopted child of the deceased contributor, or a child in the care and control of the deceased contributor at the time of death. The child must be either under age 18, or between the ages of 18 and 25 and attending school full-time at a recognized institution.

Pension Sharing

Spouses or common-law partners can share their CPP retirement pension(s), which may result in tax savings. As spouses in a continuing marriage or common-law relationship, you may apply to receive an equal share of the retirement pension or pensions earned during the years you were together. You must both be at least 60 years old.

Child Rearing Drop-out Provision

The CPP has several provisions built into the plan to protect your benefit for periods of low earnings, such as the Child Rearing Drop-out Provision. Months of low or zero earnings spent caring for a child under the age of seven may be excluded from the calculation of your pension. This ensures that reduced earnings during the first seven years of your child's life will not result in lower future pension benefits. It is important to note that you do not apply for a Child Rearing Drop-out until you apply for a CPP benefit.

Credit Splitting

The CPP recognizes that in a legal marriage or common-law relationship, both spouses or common-law partners share in the building of their assets and entitlements, including CPP pension credits.

When a relationship ends, the CPP pension credits which the couple built up during the time they lived together can be divided equally between them. This division is called "credit splitting". Credits can be split even if one spouse or common-law partner did not pay into the CPP. When your relationship ends, you can apply for Credit Splitting.

Information For Common-Law Partners

Legislative changes to the Old Age Security (OAS) program and the Canada Pension Plan (CPP) extend benefits to persons living in same-sex common-law relationships.

As of July 31, 2000, same-sex common-law partners have the same benefits and obligations as opposite-sex common-law partners. "Common-law partners" is defined as two people, regardless of sex, who have lived together in a conjugal relationship for at least one year. Common-law partners have to sign a declaration and provide evidence, such as joint tax returns, wills or insurance policies, to prove they live together in such a relationship.

Direct Deposit

You can arrange to have the government deposit your CPP and OAS benefits (including GIS, Allowance and Allowance for the Survivor) directly into your bank or credit union account each month. This assures your deposit will be on time, without the risk of paper cheques being lost, stolen or damaged.

You can make all the arrangements for direct deposit over the phone. You will need to give the full number of the account where you want your payment deposited (that number can be found on the bottom of one of your cheques for that account).

If you don't have a chequing account, officials at your banking institution can give you the information. To ask for direct deposit, simply call one of the numbers below:

Canadian Government Annuities

The Canadian Government Annuities Act began on September 1, 1908. Canadians of modest income could buy deferred or immediate annuities, either individually or through an employer pension plan. By guaranteeing payment, competitive yields, and paying all of the costs of taking care of these annuities, the government tried to encourage people to save for retirement. Changes brought on by the Old Age Security Act (introduced in 1952) and the Canada and Quebec pension plans (introduced in the 1960s) resulted in a drop in sales. In 1975, the government stopped the sale of Government Annuities.

The Annuities Branch of Human Resources and Social Development Canada, located in Bathurst, New Brunswick, currently administers 100,000 Government Annuity contracts, of which 7,000 have not yet matured. For more information, please contact:

6.2 Guaranteed Annual Income System

The Guaranteed Annual Income System (GAINS), administered by the Ontario Ministry of Finance, ensures a guaranteed minimum income for Ontario senior citizens by providing monthly payments to qualifying pensioners.

Eligibility

You are eligible to receive GAINS payments if:

- a) you are age 65 or older and receive the full or partial federal Old Age Security (OAS) and the federal Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS)
- b) you are and have been a permanent resident of Ontario for the past 12 months or you previously lived in this province for a total of 20 years after the age of 18, and

- c) your total income from all sources is below the level guaranteed by the province.

Effective July 2000, you are also eligible to receive GAINS payments if you are a recipient of OAS and GIS benefits under the federal International Social Security Agreement, have ten or more years of Canadian residency and meet requirements b) and c).

How the Program Works

If you currently receive a full or partial OAS pension plus the GIS, you do not have to apply for GAINS. The specific amount of GAINS benefit is directly linked to the amount of your GIS monthly payments. A GAINS benefit is only paid when total income, including OAS, GIS and all other sources of income, falls below the annual level guaranteed by the province. The GIS and GAINS benefit year begins each July.

Most seniors will automatically have their GIS entitlement renewed from information included in their current income tax and benefit return. In some situations, you may still require a renewal application to inform Human Resources and Social Development Canada of the amount of income that you received in the prior calendar year.

Method of GAINS Payment

The Ministry of Finance will automatically mail you a cheque for your GAINS payment around the 25th day of each month, or deposit it directly into your bank account, if you have arranged for direct deposit payment for your OAS/GIS. If you do not have direct deposit payment, but would like to, see page 80.

Amount of GAINS Payment

A GAINS payment is based on your reported income as an individual or combined income as a married couple or common-law partnership. The GAINS payment may increase or decrease along with changes to either your income or marital status. The GAINS benefit is not taxable income, although it is included in the calculation of net income, which is used in determining eligibility for a number of income-tested benefits.

6.5 Taxes

Property Taxes

The money required by a municipality to provide services is largely provided through property taxes. The taxes are calculated by multiplying the assessed value of a property by a tax rate. The tax rate is expressed as a percentage of the assessed value. A municipality can set different tax rates for different classes of property (e.g., residential, multi-residential, commercial, industrial).

The Municipal Property Assessment Corporation (MPAC) is responsible for assessing all property in Ontario. It operates under the authority of the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation Act. Every municipality in Ontario is a member of the corporation. Its main responsibility is to calculate an assessed value, or assessment, for each of the over four million properties in Ontario. Municipalities use these values when they calculate property taxes.

The Assessment Review Board is an independent tribunal which is responsible for hearing property assessment appeals. It has the authority to change an assessed value. If it reduces an assessed value, the municipality will reduce the taxes for that property.

Property and Sales Tax Credits

The Property Tax Credit (PTC) and Sales Tax Credit (STC) programs provide property and sales tax assistance to Ontario residents with low to moderate incomes.

To be eligible for the property tax credit, the taxpayer, on December 31 of the taxation year, must:

- be 16 years of age or older
- be a resident of Ontario, and
- have paid rent or property tax on a principal residence in Ontario.

To be eligible for the sales tax credit, the taxpayer, on December 31 of the taxation year, must:

- be 16 years of age or older, and
- be a resident of Ontario.

The combined maximum amount of property and sales tax credits that can be claimed in any one taxation year is $1,000. The calculation of the credit is more generous for most individuals aged 65 and older. Taxpayers claim the property and sales tax credits on the ON479 Ontario Credits form included with the federal income tax return package.

Property Tax Relief for Residences Built or Modified to Accommodate Seniors or Persons with Disabilities

Property owners who build or modify a residence to accommodate a senior or a person with a disability may be eligible for property tax relief.

Where an existing home is renovated through alterations or additions to the premises to accommodate a senior or a person with a disability, the value of the alteration, improvement or addition is exempt from property taxation.

- an example of an alteration would be the construction of ramps
- an example of an addition would be a new room (sometimes called a "granny flat").

Where a new home is built to accommodate a senior or a person with a disability, 10 percent of the assessed value of the home is exempt from property taxation.

The senior or disabled person must otherwise require care in an institution without the provision of the accommodation in the renovated or new home.

Property owners who believe their home is eligible for tax relief under this program should notify their local office of the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation (MPAC) about the renovation or construction on their premises by October of the year preceding the tax year to ensure that exempt status can be reflected on the assessment roll.

For the address and phone number of your local MPAC office, contact the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation:

Transportation for People with Physical Disabilities

A refund of Retail Sales Tax (RST) that you have paid is available on certain new or used licensed motor vehicles purchased or leased on a long-term basis (12 months or longer) for the purpose of transporting a person with a permanent physical disability. At the time the motor vehicle is bought and a refund application filed, the purchaser must be:

- a person with a permanent physical disability who bought the vehicle for their own transportation
- a member of the family or the same-sex partner of a person with a permanent physical disability

- a principal caregiver, if the person with the permanent physical disability does not have a member of the family who is willing and able to provide transportation for that person, or
- a religious, charitable or non-profit organization that purchased the vehicle to transport people with permanent physical disabilities.

The purchaser may also be eligible for a refund of the RST paid on certain modifications made to the motor vehicle. These modifications must be made only to assist a person with a permanent physical disability. For example, RST paid on modifications made to a motor vehicle in order to accommodate a wheelchair, such as raising the roof, lowering the floor, or installing special doors to accommodate a wheelchair lift, is refundable.

How to Reach the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) (Formerly Canada Customs and Revenue Agency)

If you need personal or general tax information, you can get it from many CRA sources:

- visit the CRA Web site at www.cra-arc.gc.ca including the seniors' page at www.cra-arc.gc.ca/tax/individuals/segments/seniors/menu-e.html. You can also take advantage of the growing line of electronic services offered on the CRA Web site, such as the Interactive Information Service or Address Changes Online
- phone the toll-free line for enquires about your personal income tax at 1-800-959-8281
- call the toll-free automated Tax Information Phone Service (T.I.P.S.) at 1-800-267-6999
- visit your local tax services office (addresses and phone numbers are on the CRA 's Web site at www.cra-arc.gc.ca/contact/tso-e.html and in the federal government section of most phone books)

CRA provides forms, guides, and publications you may find helpful, for example:

- RRSPs and Other Registered Plans for Retirement guide.
- When You Retire pamphlet
- Paying Your Income Tax by Installments pamphlet
- Canadian Residents Going Down South pamphlet
- Information Concerning People With Disabilities guide.

To obtain copies, call:

Web site: www.cra-arc.gc.ca/formspubs/menu-e.html

If you use a TTY device, call 1-800-665-0354 for general tax information.

If you are visually impaired, call 1-800-267-1267 to order publications and forms related to filing your return in an alternative format (such as Braille and large print).

Preparing Your Tax Return

Your tax situation will probably change after retirement.

For example, some of your income could be non-taxable, such as Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS) benefits, and either Allowance or Allowance for the Survivor benefits. If your income is high, you may also have to repay part or all of your basic Old Age Security (OAS) Pension.

Non-refundable tax credits reduce the amount of income tax you owe. While you can claim the same non-refundable tax credits that you could before retirement, you may also become eligible for additional non-refundable tax credits for seniors, such as the age amount and the pension income amount. If your income is lower after retirement, some income-tested benefits — such as the GST credit (Goods and Services tax) — may increase.

The Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) sends a personal T1S-A tax package to retired seniors with simple tax situations whose taxable income for the previous year was $50,000 or less. The T1S-A return has large print, and it includes the most common types of retirement income and credits for seniors.

If you have a Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP), it must mature by the end of the year you turn 69. For more information, get a copy of the RRSPs and Other Registered Plans for Retirement guide by calling 1-800-O-Canada (1-800-622-6263), or 1-800-959-2221, or by visiting www.cra-arc.gc.ca/formspubs/menu-e.html

Sending in Your Tax Return

If you want to file your tax return electronically to get your refund fast, you can file it over the Internet using the CRA's popular NETFILE service. Call 1-800-714-7257 for more information or go to www.netfile.gc.ca.

You may also be able to file your return by touch-tone telephone using the CRA's free TELEFILE service. Eligible individuals receive information about TELEFILE in their personal tax package. For more information go to www.cra-arc.gc.ca/eservices/tax/individuals/telefile/seniors-e.html

If you do not want to file electronically but you still want your tax refund fast, you can have it (as well as your GST credit payments) deposited directly into your bank account. To use the CRA's direct-deposit service, simply complete the Direct deposit area on the last page of your tax return, or submit Form T1-DD(1), Direct Deposit Request – Individuals.

Help with Taxes

Do you need help to complete your income tax return? Under the CRA's Community Volunteer Income Tax Program, trained volunteers complete basic tax returns free of charge for individuals with low incomes and simple tax situations. If you need a volunteer's help (or if you would like to become a volunteer yourself), call 1-800-959-8281 or visit www.cra-arc.gc.ca/tax/individuals/volunteer/menu-e.html

7.1 Drivers and Vehicles

Senior Driving and Safe Driving for Seniors

For many seniors, having a driver's licence is a key to independent living. But the aging process can bring changes that affect the older driver's ability to drive safely, such as reduced vision, or movement-limiting disabilities such as arthritis and rheumatism, which may slow down response rate. It is important to recognize age-related changes and learn how to compensate for them.

The Ministry of Transportation licences drivers and vehicles, and offers a mandatory driver education program for seniors 80 and over.

Many people voluntarily modify their driving behaviour to accommodate changes associated with aging, for example, by limiting highway travel or avoiding driving at night, or choosing other means of transportation when the need arises.

There are many courses available to help senior drivers recognize and develop strategies to address age-related challenges.

For more information on senior driving, visit the Canada Safety Council Web site at www.safety-council.org/info/seniors/driving.htm

Drive Wise

Drive Wise is a driver refresher seminar for seniors presented by CARP, Canada's Association for the Fifty-Plus and Road Watch Canada.

Drive Wise is an Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) delivered driver education seminar that offers attendees a shopping basket of tips, suggestions and strategies, which help prevent the most likely causes of accidents and mishaps faced by older Canadians on the road. Drive Wise also provides important advice on what to do if you are involved in a collision or have a disabled vehicle.

The seminar is presented by an on-duty OPP officer and lasts about 45 minutes. A valuable question period follows. There is no cost to either attend or host a Drive Wise presentation.

Driver Examination Centres

Drive Test Centres provide all driver examination services such as vision, written and road tests for all licence classes.

To book your road test, call 1-888-570-6110 or, in the Greater Toronto Area, 416-325-8580.

Senior Driving Group Education Program

Through the 80 and Over Licence Renewal Program, seniors aged 80 years and older must complete the following every two years in order to renew their driver's licence: a vision test, a rules of the road knowledge test, a driving record review and take part in a Group Education Session. Some drivers may also be asked to take a road test.

The program was introduced in 1996 to help Ontario seniors remain mobile and independent for as long as possible, while ensuring that unsafe drivers are identified and appropriate actions taken.

Accessible Parking Permit

This permit is issued to an individual and entitles them to park their vehicle in a designated disabled parking space. The permit must be displayed.

To qualify for an Accessible Parking Permit, the individual must be medically certified by their health practitioner as having one or more of the following conditions:

- Cannot walk without assistance of another person or a brace, cane, crutch, a lower limb prosthetic device or similar assistive device or who requires the assistance of a wheelchair
- Suffers from lung disease to such an extent that forced expiratory volume in one second is less than 1 litre
- Portable oxygen is a medical necessity

- Cardiovascular disease impairment classified as Class III or Class IV to standards accepted by the American Heart Association or Class III or IV according to the Canadian Cardiovascular Standard
- Severely limited in the ability to walk due to an arthritic, neurological, musculoskeletal or orthopedic condition
- Visual acuity is 20/200 or poorer in the better eye with or without corrective lenses or whose greatest diameter of the field of vision in both eyes is 20 degrees or less
- Condition(s) or functional impairment that severely limits his or her mobility

A physician, chiropractor, nurse practitioner (extended class), physiotherapist or occupational therapist must certify the applicant's condition on the permit application.

A permanent permit is valid for five years while a temporary one is valid for up to two years. Temporary permits are issued when the disability is expected to last more than two months but is not considered a permanent disability.

Applications for permits are available at all Driver and Vehicle Licence Issuing Offices, or may be requested by mail from:

Used Vehicle Information Package

Over one million used vehicles change ownership in Ontario each year. To help consumers make better-informed decisions, the Ontario Government has introduced the Used Vehicle Information Package (UVIP). If you are selling a used vehicle (car, van, light truck, motor home or motorcycle) privately in Ontario, you must purchase a UVIP (cost $20) and show it to potential buyers.

Drive Clean

Most passenger cars, vans, light trucks and sport utility vehicles in the Drive Clean program area must pass a Drive Clean test to renew the stickers on their licence plates.

As of January 1, 2006, Drive Clean regulations require testing every two years for light-duty vehicles beginning when they are five years old (in the fifth calendar year after their model year) rather than when they are three years old (in the third calendar year after their model year).

The exemption for 20-year-old light-duty vehicles is ending as we begin to focus more on the vehicles most likely to pollute. All cars, 1988 model year and newer, will require emissions testing until they are taken out of service. These vehicles would have had their last test for registration renewal in 2007, when they were 19 years old. They will now need to continue to be tested in 2009 and every two years after that.

Passing an emissions test is also required to transfer ownership and licence a vehicle for the road under new ownership, if the transfer requires a safety certificate. The test requirement begins when a vehicle is one year old (in the first calendar year after the model year) and continues up to and including the 19th calendar year after the model year.

All light-duty commercial farm vehicles, hybrids, kit cars and motorcycles are exempt from test requirements.

You will be notified by mail when your vehicle(s) must have an emission test.

For more information about the Drive Clean program, or to find the accredited facility nearest you that performs emission tests and repairs, contact the Ministry of the Environment, Drive Clean Program:

7.2 Public Transportation Services

Community Transportation Services

Many communities have both conventional and specialized transit services for their residents. Conventional services provided by municipalities use regularly scheduled vehicles that operate on fixed routes, according to published route maps and timetables.

Specialized transit services for seniors and persons with disabilities typically use smaller vehicles equipped with a lift or ramp for persons using mobility devices, such as wheelchairs and scooters. For example, Wheel-Trans in Toronto, Para Transpo in Ottawa and Windsor Handi-Transit. Some communities use fully accessible community buses to provide services to their residents, on both fixed and flexible routes.

For information regarding the types of public transportation services available in your area, please contact your municipal transit service or municipal office listed in the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "Transit".

Your local Community Care Access Centre (see page 48) or Community Information Centre (see page 12) may also be able to provide information on specialized transit services in your area for seniors and disabled persons.

GO Transit

GO Transit runs trains and buses linking Toronto with communities in the surrounding regions of Halton, Peel, York and Durham, and the neighbouring City of Hamilton, as well as parts of Simcoe, Dufferin and Wellington Counties. GO fares vary with the distance travelled. Seniors 65 and over travel for half the regular adult fare. Single one-way rides, two-ride tickets, and day passes are available for seniors.

More than half of GO's 50 train stations are now wheelchair-accessible. All GO Trains have an accessible car with a ramp for people with limited mobility. Many GO Buses "kneel" to make it easier for everyone to board, and three GO Bus routes are currently wheelchair-accessible.

Health Care Benefits

Eligible veterans and other qualified clients can get health care benefits under the Veterans Health Care Regulations. These benefits include: medical, surgical and dental care, prosthetic devices, home adaptations, supplementary benefits such as travel costs for examinations or treatment, and other community health care services and benefits. Disability pensioners can get treatment benefits, such as prescription drugs that are for their pensioned conditions. Treatment benefits may also be provided to clients for non-pensioned conditions that are not covered by a provincial health plan if the VAC client is getting services under the Veterans Independence Program, or if the veteran or eligible civilian has a limited income as set out by the War Veterans Allowance Act.

Long-Term Care Facilities

The long-term care program at VAC provides eligible veterans with access to a bed in a long-term care facility at no cost to them. To be eligible for this program, veterans must have been assessed as requiring long-term care, and must meet certain requirements with respect to war service, pensioned disability and income. VAC has contracts with the province of Ontario for priority access beds for veterans in long-term care facilities. Eligible veterans may also access beds in community facilities through the Veterans Independence Program.

Veterans Independence Programs

The Veterans Independence Program (VIP) together with other government programs, helps veterans to stay healthy and living in their own homes and communities as long as possible. VIP offers eligible veterans home care and community-based long-term care, including professional health care, help with preparing meals, house-keeping, yard work, home adaptation, transportation and day care facilities.

War Veterans Allowance

Veterans of the Canadian Armed Forces or the Merchant Navy and qualified civilians may apply for the War Veterans Allowance (WVA). This program offers financial help. Eligibility is based on wartime service, age, income and residence. Applicants must live in Canada when they apply. Veterans of Commonwealth or Allied forces must have been living in Canada at the time they joined that force. Surviving spouses, surviving common-law partners and orphans can also get the allowance if the deceased veteran or civilian had the required war-related status.

Male applicants must be at least 60 years of age and female applicants must be 55 years old. Applicants who are unable to support themselves fully may apply at an earlier age. The allowance is income tested, which means the applicants must prove need. Program administrators take all sources of income into account to make their decision on eligibility.

Health Services

Health Services are designed to provide for a continuum of care to enhance the quality of life of VAC clients, promote independence, as well as to ensure that health professionals and multi-disciplinary delivery teams are available to develop care plans and respond to client needs. Services include referral, information services, assessment, counselling, follow-up and monitoring.

Assistance Fund

The Assistance Fund (AF) gives funding to people who get War Veterans Allowance and live in Canada, to meet emergency needs that threaten their health and/or safety. If such recipients have no other resources, they may qualify for grants for emergencies that affect shelter, clothing and health, or for the repair or replacement of appliances and furnishings.

Disability Pensions

Wartime veterans, still-serving and former members of the Canadian Armed Forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, as well as former members of the Merchant Navy may receive pensions for service-related disabilities. Prisoner of War (POW) compensation is paid to qualified former POWs.

Special Allowances are paid to disability pensioners and POWs who need attendants, have special clothing needs, or are very disabled.

Civilians whose jobs during the Second World War were related to the war effort may also qualify for pensions for disability or death. Those civilians include members of the Voluntary Aid Detachment and Auxiliary Services personnel.

Funerals, Burials and Grave Markers

Veterans Affairs Canada offers assistance through the Last Post Fund to help pay for the funeral, burial and grave marking of eligible veterans and some civilians. This includes the cost of: preparing the remains, a standard departmental casket, public viewing, transporting the remains locally, an earthen burial plot, care of the plot (perpetual care), and a military style grave marker.

8.3 The Royal Canadian Legion, Ontario Command

The Ontario Command of The Royal Canadian Legion comprises over 400 branches throughout Ontario.

It focuses on remembering those who gave their lives for freedom and looking after the needs of veterans, their dependents, and those still serving in the Canadian Forces.

In addition, Legions throughout the Ontario Command are also contributing to the well-being of their neighbours by sponsoring community programs.

8.4 Benevolent Funds

There are a number of Benevolent Funds which provide assistance to veterans, ex-service personnel and their dependents. Applications for Benevolent Fund assistance are made through a Veterans Affairs Canada (VAC) counselor or your Royal Canadian Legion Provincial Service Officer.

The purpose of these funds is to provide emergency assistance, not otherwise available. Requests for assistance usually relate to the basic needs of food, shelter and medical care. The assistance is designed to be on a one-time basis.

Before requesting assistance, it is important to ensure that assistance is not otherwise available through existing programs (e.g., Veterans Affairs Canada, Assistive Devices Program).

8.5 The Memory Project

The Memory Project is an educational partnership initiative of the Dominion Institute and the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat to bring veterans of World War II, the Korean War and peace-keeping missions together with students in classrooms and over the Internet across the province.

Do you have a story to tell? Join the Speakers' Bureau, and the Dominion Institute will co-ordinate classroom visits for you to share your story with students at local schools. As a Memory Project speaker, you will receive a Visiting Veterans' Preparation Kit geared to your conflict and theatre, and the opportunity to attend a speakers' preparation workshop.

Share your story on The Memory Project Web site at www.thememoryproject.com or send it to the Dominion Institute to post in the online archive and ensure the service and sacrifice of Canada's veterans, both men and women, lives on in the minds of Canadian youth.

8.6 Veterans' Commemorative Park and Veterans' Memorial Highway

The Royal Canadian Legion, Ontario Command District G, the Ministry of Transportation and the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat pooled resources to develop a site to commemorate the contributions made by Ontario's veterans.

Officially opened in 2000, the park is located on Highway 416, the Veteran's Memorial Highway, just outside of Kemptville, Ontario. The park, which features monuments and gardens, will be used for Remembrance Day commemorations as well as other Legion activities.

The site is wheelchair accessible and parking is available adjacent to the park.

e-Client Application Status Services

Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) clients can check the status of their immigration application anytime through CIC's electronic Client Application Status Service. CIC clients in Canada or abroad may use this to view the status of their application if they:

- applied to sponsor a family
- applied for permanent residence as a member of the family class

- applied for permanent residence from within Canada as a spouse of a Canadian citizen or permanent resident, or
- applied for permanent resident as an independent immigrant.

To access this online service, visit the CIC Web site at www.cic.gc.ca (click on "Online Services" then e-Client Application Status).

Newcomer Settlement Information

The federal Citizenship and Immigration Web site and publications provide information to help newcomers to Canada adapt to their new culture, language and climate.

10.2 Newcomer Settlement Services

Newcomer Settlement Program

The Newcomer Settlement Program (NSP) of the Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration supports the settlement of newcomers to Ontario. Its priority is to support services that are normally required by newcomers who have been in Canada for less than five years and who are permanent residents, refugees or refugee claimants.

Settlement services may include assessment, information, orientation, and finding employment. Referrals are provided through settlement agencies in many Ontario communities. The majority of agencies are multiethnic, multiservice and multilingual.

To locate an agency in your community that provides settlement services for new immigrants, contact your local Community Information Centre (see page 12).

Settlement.Org

Settlement.Org provides newcomers with information and resources to help them settle in Ontario, Canada. Settlement.Org covers a wide range of topics including employment, education, housing and healthcare.

Settlement.Org also allows individuals to access information about the local organizations providing settlement services in their local communities in Ontario. The Discussion Area is also great place to go to share experiences or ask settlement related questions.

To access this online service, please visit www.settlement.org

11.1 How to Find a Lawyer

All Ontario lawyers who offer their services to the public must be members of the Law Society of Upper Canada. The Law Society makes sure that lawyers meet professional standards and can discipline lawyers who fail to do so. The Law Society offers a number of services to help clients including a Lawyer Referral Service.

For more information on the Law Society of Upper Canada and its services:

Lawyer Referral Service

The Lawyer Referral Service (LRS) of the Law Society of Upper Canada will give you the name of a lawyer who can work for you, including, specific needs such as:
a lawyer who

- speaks another language
- can communicate with someone who has a hearing impairment
- has a wheelchair-accessible office, or
- is licensed to practice in another geographic area, as well as Ontario.

The LRS is available Monday to Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Phoning the LRS line will automatically generate a $6 charge on your phone bill, in the month following your call. The telephone number is 1-900-565-4577.

If you are jailed, under the age of 18 or are in a crisis situation such as domestic abuse, and require the services of a lawyer, call:

11.2 Legal Aid Ontario

Legal Aid Ontario provides a number of free services including court representation, legal advice or assistance with court documents.

Individuals who may qualify for Legal Aid include:

- people on social assistance, or with low or no incomes
- those who have little or no money left after paying for basic necessities, such as food and housing.

Employed people and homeowners may still qualify financially for assistance. Legal Aid staff will review your personal financial circumstances to decide if you qualify.

Legal Aid Ontario also operates Community Legal Clinics in many communities across Ontario. For a Community Legal Clinic in your area, look under "Legal Aid Ontario" in the White Pages of your telephone book, or contact:

11.3 Advocacy Centre for the Elderly

The Advocacy Centre for the Elderly (ACE) is a legal clinic, funded by Legal Aid Ontario, to provide legal services to low income seniors. ACE gives advice on seniors' legal issues such as elder abuse, health care consent, retirement homes, mental health, mental capacity, public pensions, long-term care facilities and homecare.

ACE can give advice over the telephone to persons anywhere in Ontario, but can only represent as clients, seniors living in the Greater Toronto Area (GTA). If you live outside the GTA, ACE will try to refer you to legal assistance in your own community, where available.

ACE also has a provincial mandate to provide public legal education programs and engage in law reform activities. Subject to availability, ACE can provide you with speakers and education materials on seniors' legal issues. ACE publishes a manual on long-term care law Long-Term Care Facilities in Ontario – The Advocates' Manual and has produced a video on Powers of Attorney.

11.4 Community Legal Education Ontario

Community Legal Education Ontario (CLEO) is a community legal clinic that produces free public legal education materials in clear language for people who have low incomes, disabilities and literacy challenges, and for others who are disadvantaged.

CLEO's publications address issues in many areas of law, including social assistance, landlord and tenant, refugee and immigration, workers' compensation, criminal, consumer, family, health and disability, seniors, and youth law.

To view or print these publications, or for an online order form and list of new and revised publications, visit their Web site at www.cleo.on.ca, or call 416-408-4420 for an order form.

CLEO does not give legal advice. If you have a legal problem, please see a lawyer or a community legal clinic.

11.5 Ontario Human Rights Commission

The Ontario Human Rights Commission is an independent, arms-length adjudicative agency of the Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration. Discrimination is against the law in Ontario, and the commission administers and enforces Ontario's Human Rights Code.

The Code provides the right to equal treatment in employment, accommodation, contracts, goods, services and facilities, and membership in vocational associations and trade unions, without discrimination because of race, ancestry, place of origin, colour, ethnic origin, citizenship, creed, sex, age, marital or family status, same-sex partnership status, sexual orientation, disability, the receipt of public assistance (accommodation only) or record of offenses (employment only).

The Commission is responsible for managing inquiries, intake, mediation, and investigation of human rights complaints. If a case is not settled and the Commission believes discrimination has occurred, it may refer the complaint to the Board of Inquiry for a hearing.

The Commission also conducts public education and develops policies to help interpret the code. A Policy on Discrimination against Older Persons Because of Age was released in June, 2002. This document provides an in-depth look at age discrimination as it relates to present protections in the Human Rights Code. The Policy was developed to help the public and Commission staff to gain a better understanding of how the Code protects older Ontarians and to sensitize them to the issues faced by these persons. It also aims to raise awareness among service providers, employers and landlords of their obligations under the Code. For a copy of this document or more information:

11.6 Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee

The Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee (OPGT) helps to protect the rights and interests of mentally incapable adults who have no one else to act on their behalf. The services available include:

- Property Guardianship
- Personal Care Guardianship
- Decisions About Treatment and Admission to Long-Term Care
- Guardianship Investigations
- Appointment of Private Guardians of Property
- Acting as Litigation Guardian
- Estates Administration.

The Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee also offers many useful information brochures which are available from their Web site:

Guardianship Investigations

This service helps to protect mentally incapable adults who are suffering, or at risk of suffering, serious harm. Severe self-neglect, physical abuse and financial exploitation of incapable people are some of the problems that this service can, in certain circumstances, help to resolve. Anyone may contact the OPGT, by telephone or mail, to express concerns about a person who may be incapable and at serious risk:

Power of Attorney Kit

The Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee has produced a Power of Attorney Kit that will help you appoint the person you want to make decisions for you when you are no longer able to do so for yourself.

Many people believe that if something happens and they are unable to make decisions for themselves, their family can do so for them. This is not necessarily true. For financial decisions, legal authority is needed. You can give this authority by naming someone in a continuing power of attorney for property. For personal care decisions such as where you live or what you eat, you can give legal authority by naming someone in a power of attorney for personal care. For more information, see Advance Care Planning.

While it's very important to consider whether to make a power of attorney, you don't have to, and no one can make you sign one if you don't want to. However, if you don't make a power of attorney, someone may have to be formally appointed some day to make decisions for you.

To obtain a copy of the Power of Attorney Kit call:

Toll-free: 1-800-366-0335
Phone: 416-314-2800
Web site: www.attorneygeneral.jus.gov.on.ca/english/family/pgt/pokit.asp

11.7 Advance Care Planning

Advance Care Planning is about making choices now, while you are capable, about how you wish to be cared for in the future if you become incapable of making decisions. Every year many Canadians become unable to make their own decisions about their personal care. You can take steps now, while you are capable, to both ensure your wishes are followed and provide someone you trust with the authority to act on your wishes.

The Ontario Seniors' Secretariat (OSS) of the Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration in partnership with the Alzheimer Society of Ontario, has produced A Guide to Advance Care Planning to help seniors become more aware of the process of advance care planning. For a copy of the guide, visit the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat Web site at www.ontarioseniors.ca, or call the Government of Ontario Seniors' INFOline at 1-888-910-1999.

11.8 Organ and Tissue Donation

It is important to talk to your family and friends about your decision to donate organs and tissue so they can understand, support and respect your wishes in the future.

If you are 16 years of age or over, you can register your consent to donate your organs and/or tissue upon your death with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care which keeps a registry of donors. Complete an Organ Donor Registration form (form 3039-84) and submit it to the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care.

You can obtain an Organ Donor Registration form by:

- visiting a Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care office
- calling the Seniors' INFOline
Toll-free: 1-888-910-1999
TTY Toll-free: 1-800-387-5559
- accessing the Organ and Tissue Donation section of the ministry's Web site at www.health.gov.on.ca

After completing and signing the form, return it to your local ministry office or mail it to the address shown on the top of the form. You can change your registration to consent or withdraw at any time by using the Organ Donor Registration form.

You can sign a Gift of Life Donor Card and keep it with your personal identification. Give the tear-off part – Gift of Life Donor Notification Card – to your family or friend.

For more information on organ and tissue donation, contact Trillium Gift of Life Network at 1-800-263-2833, visit their Web site at www.giftoflife.on.ca, or call the Seniors' INFOline at:

11.9 Wills and Estates

Wills

A will is a document in which you, the "testator", indicate how your assets should be distributed upon your death. In a will, you can provide for the welfare of your family, distribute assets as you think best, and appoint an executor, also known as an estate trustee, to manage the estate. Wills also may help you save taxes by taking advantage of tax-savings opportunities and tax deferrals that may arise as a result of your death.

If You Die Without a Will

If you die and have not prepared a will, your estate is divided up according to the rules in the Succession Law Reform Act. This Act ensures that your estate is divided up amongst your spouse and family members. However, the way the act divides up your estate may not be the way you want it to be distributed. This is a good reason for preparing a will.

Preparing a Will

It's a good idea to have a lawyer who knows estate law to prepare a will for you, as the law on estates is complex. A lawyer can make sure that that your will does what you intend it to do and that your estate is distributed according to your wishes.

You should be careful when using any will kit. Some of these kits may not comply with Ontario law and, therefore, your will may not be valid. If you do not sign and witness the will in accordance with the rules of the Succession Law Reform Act, it may not be valid. There are some pitfalls in will drafting that may not be highlighted in a standard will kit. For example, a will is revoked on marriage unless the will specifically states that it was made "in contemplation of marriage".

By having a lawyer draft your will, the lawyer can design the will to fit your particular estate and tax planning needs. Standard will forms are unlikely to do that.

11.10 What To Do When Someone Dies

Online Life Event Bundle "What To Do When Someone Dies"

The Ontario government is bundling information and services around key life events, such as "What To Do When Someone Dies". Each bundle brings together in one place everything on the subject. From this site, you can find information on things you need to know and quick links to forms you might need.

For information, visit the "Life Events" section at the Government of Ontario Web site at www.ontario.ca or a Government Information Centre, or call the Citizens' Inquiry Bureau at 1-800-267-8097. For the GIC nearest you, see the Directory, Appendix 3.

The First Steps

- Call the attending physician if there is an expected death. If there is no doctor available or the death is unexpected, call 911 or the emergency services number for your area.
- If your arrangements will include a traditional funeral or a less expensive service known as a "direct disposition", contact a funeral home or a transfer service. Funeral directors can help you make all the arrangements for funerals. For more information, call the Board of Funeral Services
Phone: 416-979-5450
Web site: www.funeralboard.com
- Should your arrangements also include burial or cremation, the cemetery or crematorium you choose can help you make the necessary arrangements. If you have questions relating to cemeteries and crematoriums and the services and supplies that they offer, contact the Ministry of Government Services, Cemeteries Section:

With a Will

You will want to find out if the person left a will. Some people file their will with the estates division of their local court, but it could just as easily be with their lawyer, in a safety deposit box, or in a drawer at their home. Once the will is located, it may or may not go to the courts to determine its legality. The executor of the estate carries out the wishes contained in the will.

Without a Will

If the person dies without a will (intestate), the estate will be distributed according to the law. You may want to contact a lawyer. For information about how to find a lawyer, please see page 117.

Death Out of Country

If the person dies in another country, contact the Canadian Consulate Office of that country for instructions on how to proceed. For the telephone number of a Canadian Consulate Office, contact Consular Affairs Bureau of Foreign Affairs Canada:

Death Certificate

The funeral director will issue copies of a proof of death that you can use in certain situations. There are some organizations, however, that may require an official death certificate. Death certificates, or certified copies of a death registration, are required for such purposes as settlement of estates, insurance, access to or termination of certain government services (e.g., health card, pensions, voter's list).

To register a death, a family member or Funeral Director usually completes the Statement of Death with information about the deceased.

At the same time, the physician or coroner attending the death completes the Medical Certificate of Death, which contains the cause of death information. Both forms are mailed independently to the local Division Registrar of the Office of the Registrar General of Ontario. For more information on the Office of the Registrar General, see page 9.

Compensations, Pensions and Benefits

The executor should contact former employers of the deceased for company pensions. The executor should also contact the following offices (as they relate to the deceased person) to either find out eligibility for, or to cancel benefits:

Door-to-Door Consumer Legislation

The Ministry of Government Services has increased protection for consumers when they deal with door-to-door sellers. Changes include:

- a 10-day cooling off period for all sales worth $50 or more made at the consumer's home, whether the goods delivered or services are provided at the time of sale or afterwards, and regardless of whether payment is made in full or in part
- consumers may cancel any direct sales contract if goods are not received or services are not provided within 30 days of the date promised

- all direct sales contracts must include a description of the item and price, the delivery date and charges, start and completion dates, and the buyer's and seller's names and addresses.

Addiction Programs

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care funds approximately 160 agencies across the province to offer drug and alcohol treatment services for people of all ages. Services provided by these agencies include community treatment, residential treatment, and support and withdrawal management services.

For information about treatment services in your area, please contact the Drug and Alcohol Registry of Treatment (DART) at 1-800-565-8603 or www.dart.on.ca

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care also funds 44 problem-gambling treatment agencies across the province. These agencies provide services to people of all ages, offering information about problem gambling and treatment for problem gamblers, their spouses and family members. For information about treatment services in your area, contact the Ontario Problem Gambling Helpline (OPGH) at 1-888-230-3505. See the Directory, Appendix 3 for agencies that have specific programs for older adults.

Family Service Agencies

Family service agencies offer specialized counselling services such as individual, couple and family counselling, lifestyle change, stress management, unemployment counselling, and therapy for survivors of sexual abuse and family violence. In addition, many family agencies provide immigrant services, marriage preparation, retirement preparation, family life education, a variety of seniors' programs, and addiction and credit counselling services.

Family Service Ontario is an association that represents 48 family service agencies in Ontario. To find a family service agency near you, contact Family Service Ontario at 416-231-6003, or consult the Yellow Pages of your telephone book under "Social Services Organizations".

13.3 Public Safety

Ontario Provincial Police

The Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) is dedicated to protecting the safety of the people of Ontario by providing front-line policing services to over 400 municipal and First Nations communities and ensuring safe travel on our province's highways, waterways and snowmobile trails.

Fire Safety

According to statistics from the Office of the Fire Marshal, adults age 65 and older are at a higher risk of dying from fire than any other age group.

In 1997, the Fire Marshal's Public Fire Safety Council and the Office of the Fire Marshal introduced a comprehensive fire safety program for older adults called "Older and Wiser". The program is intended to be delivered by municipal fire departments, with the involvement and support of seniors' agencies, community groups, home support workers and the media, as well as the families and friends of older adults.

Older adults, their families and caregivers should take a few minutes to complete a fire safety check of their home, apartment or room. It could be a lifesaver. For a copy or to learn more about fire safety contact your local fire department or visit the Office of the Fire Marshal Web site at www.firesafetycouncil.com/english/pubsafet/wiser.htm

Municipal fire departments are always happy to provide advice and assistance to seniors and to deliver presentations to seniors' groups and community events.

Falls Prevention

Falls are the leading cause of injury among seniors and veterans in Canada. They account for more than half of all injuries among seniors. And while many people aren't aware of the steps that can be taken to avoid falls, falls can be prevented.

The Health Canada/Veterans Affairs Canada Falls Prevention Initiative has produced You Can Prevent Falls!, a series of fact sheets to inform seniors, veterans, their families and caregivers of the many ways they can prevent falls. These fact sheets are available on the Veterans Affairs Canada Web site and can also be made available, upon request, in alternate formats.

Two guides for falls prevention among seniors are available on the Canadian Seniors Policies and Programs Database (SPPD) at www.sppd.gc.ca under "FPT Seniors Documents". These were prepared for the Federal, Provincial, Territorial (FPT) Ministers Responsible for Seniors in response to the Ministers' request for a review of falls prevention programs and practices.

A Best Practices Guide for the Prevention of Falls Among Seniors Living in the Community is a guide to provide the evidence for effective approaches for reducing injury among seniors and the efficient means of delivering prevention programs. The guide presents the findings of a systematic review of falls prevention programs and focuses on 34 studies that evaluated the effectiveness of falls prevention strategies for community-dwelling seniors. Based on these studies, the guide then discusses effective interventions and strategies.

An Inventory of Canadian Programs for the Prevention of Falls Among Seniors Living in the Community presents the results from a national compilation of Canadian programs designed to reduce falls or fall-related injuries among community-dwelling seniors. The main goal of this inventory is to identify the scope and type of falls prevention activities being offered to community-dwelling seniors in Canada to provide evidence for effective approaches for reducing injury among seniors, and to highlight efficient means of delivering prevention programs.

15.1 Active Living and Leisure

Online Life Event Bundle “Pursuing Life’s Best After Retirement”

The Ontario government is bundling information and services around key life events, such as “Pursuing Life’s Best After Retirement”.

Each bundle brings together in one place everything on the subject. From this site, you can find information on things about the Arts, Community Involvement, and Volunteering, Family History, Finding a Job, Learning Opportunities, The Outdoors, Recreation and Travel.

For information, visit the “Life Events” section at the Government of Ontario Web site at www.ontario.ca or a Government Information Centres, or call the Citizens’ Inquiry Bureau at 1-800-267-8097. For the GIC nearest you, see the Directory, Appendix 3.

Community Activities

For information about recreation and social activities in your community, check with local community centres, cultural centres, places of worship, your municipal department of Parks and Recreation and service clubs in your area (e.g., YMCA, Rotary, Lions, Royal Canadian Legion, Kinsmen, Kinettes, Kiwanis) listed in the White Pages of your telephone book, or the community listings in your local community newspaper.

Older Adult Centres

Older Adult Centres provide a wide range of social, recreational and educational activities and programs for older adults.

To locate an Older Adult Centre in your community:

- contact your local Community Information Centre (see page 12)
- check with your local Parks and Recreation Department (listed in the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword “Parks and Recreation”) or
- contact the Older Adult Centres Association of Ontario:

Public Libraries

Ontario has an extensive public and Aboriginal library network, which provide many services to seniors and their families in a welcoming, accessible and friendly atmosphere, including:

- Internet access through computer workstations and Internet training
- reference materials, in both paper and electronic forms
- reference services by trained librarians
- lending of books, magazines, compact discs, cassette tapes, videos and films
- workshops on health and leisure topics, social activities, book clubs.

Librarians are available to answer questions, request books and other materials through the inter-library loan system and help you use the computer workstations.

For the library nearest you, consult the Blue Pages of your telephone book under the keyword "Libraries" or visit the "Index of Public Libraries" Web site at www.culture.gov.on.ca/english/culdiv/library/oplweb.htm

The Arts

If you love the arts, you may want to contact your community arts council through Community Arts Ontario. Some local arts organizations have special senior rates, programs or teaching opportunities.

Provincial Sport Organizations

The Ministry of Tourism and Recreation supports provincial sport organizations through grants, resources and consultative services. Provincial sport organizations train coaches and officials, co-ordinate regional and provincial championships, expand the base of participation and assist athletes. Many provincial sport organizations provide programming for seniors. The Sport Alliance of Ontario assists individuals and organizations interested in supporting sport and recreation throughout Ontario. Their Web site provides a list of provincial sport organizations under the "Links" section.

15.4 The Outdoors

Ontario Parks

Whether it's spectacular scenery, hiking trails, historical sites or sandy beaches you're looking for, you'll find it all in Ontario's provincial parks.

Discounts for Seniors and Persons with Disabilities

Ontario Parks offers reduced camping and day-use fees to encourage Ontario residents over the age of 65 and persons with physical disabilities to take advantage of provincial park facilities, activities and services. In general, camping and day-use fees are discounted by 20 percent for Ontario seniors and by 50 percent for disabled persons.

Persons who have a valid Disabled Persons Parking Permit issued by the Ontario Ministry of Transportation (see page 95), or a National Identity Card issued by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, are eligible for reduced fees for the disabled.

Facilities for Persons with Disabilities

Ontario Parks offers a variety of facilities for campers and day visitors with disabilities, making it possible for those in wheelchairs, or with visual or other impairments to enjoy the natural environment.

Most picnic areas, campsites and some self-guided trails or boardwalks in provincial parks are wide enough to accommodate a wheelchair. Comfort stations in many parks are designed for older adults or those with limited mobility and include railings and seats in special, larger shower stalls, and lower nozzles with hand adapters. Many parks also have wheelchair-accessible interpretive exhibit buildings and administrative offices.

Recreational Vehicles

With over 15,000 car-camping sites, there are plenty of provincial park campsites that will accommodate recreational vehicles (RVs). Electrical hook-ups and trailer dumping stations are available in most parks. Only one RV is permitted per campsite.

When making a camping reservation by telephone, be sure to tell the call-centre operator the size of your RV. The sizes of individual campsites are indicated on the campground maps on the Ontario Parks Web site, so when making a reservation via the Web site, you can determine whether or not the campsite you're looking at will accommodate your RV.

Campsite Reservations

Reservations for camping are recommended and may be made using the Ontario Parks reservation Web site at www.ontarioparks.com or by calling 1-888-ONT-PARK (1-888-668-7275) between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. daily. You can reserve a site up to five months in advance. There is a $9 non-refundable fee for making a telephone or Web site reservation.

When making a telephone reservation, please advise call-centre operators of your eligibility for the Ontario Seniors or Ontario Disabled Persons discounts. Call-centre staff may be able to help you reserve a site close to an accessible comfort station, or possibly suggest another park that would better suit your needs.

Information about park opening and closing dates, fees and how to make a reservation can be found in the Ontario Parks Guide, available at:

- provincial park offices
- Ministry of Natural Resources district offices
- Ontario Travel Information Centres (see page 161), or
- by calling 1-800-ONTARIO (1-800-668-2746).

Fishing and Hunting in Ontario

Fishing

Most Canadians need a licence to fish in Ontario. Fishing licences are sold by more than 2,000 licence issuers across Ontario, with all sales revenue used to manage the resource.

An Ontario Outdoors Card is a plastic, wallet-sized identification card to which your Ontario fishing licence tag is affixed. You need an Ontario-issued Outdoors Card if:

- you are a resident of Canada, and
- you are at least 18 years old but have not reached your 65th birthday, and
- you want to fish in Ontario.

If you are 65 years of age or older, or a disabled Canadian resident (as defined by the Fish and Wildlife Conservation Act), you are not required to obtain an Outdoors Card or a fishing licence to fish in Ontario.

However, people who are exempt from obtaining an Outdoors Card and fishing licence have the same rights and responsibilities as those who have purchased a fishing licence, and must abide by all regulations, including catch and possession limits.

Hunting

If you wish to hunt in Ontario, you must have a licence valid for the species or group of species you are hunting and you must carry the licence and any validation tags with you while hunting. You must show the licence to a Conservation Officer if asked to do so. There are some special regulation provisions for seniors or disabled persons associated with hunting. For more information, please refer to the Hunting Regulations provided by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

A complete and valid licence to hunt consists of an Outdoors Card plus the required hunting licence tags (affixed to the back of your Outdoors Card) plus any applicable paper hunting licences and game seals and/or validation tags. One-year hunting licence tags are available from licence issuers located throughout Ontario.

Travel Industry Council of Ontario

The Travel Industry Council of Ontario (TICO) is an administrative authority that administers the Travel Industry Act on behalf of Ontario's Ministry of Government Services. TICO has two main roles: to ensure that Ontario's travel retailers and wholesalers conduct themselves honestly and professionally in accordance with the Travel Industry Act, and to administer the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund.

If you have a complaint against an Ontario registered travel agent or travel wholesaler, TICO will help you address your concern after you have contacted the travel agent or wholesaler in an attempt to reach an equitable resolution. TICO will examine your complaint against the requirements of the Travel Industry Act to see if regulatory action is warranted, but it does not have the authority to settle a dispute or impose a settlement.

The purpose of the Ontario Travel Industry Compensation Fund is to reimburse consumers for travel services paid to a registered Ontario travel agent when the travel services are not provided.

TICO also produces a booklet "Travel Tips for Consumers", available online at www.tico.on.ca or by contacting:

Absences from Ontario – Maintaining Your OHIP Coverage

OHIP may cover all or a part of your health care costs while you are temporarily out of Ontario for up to 212 days in any 12-month period. You must be physically present in Ontario for 153 days in any 12-month period and make your permanent and principal home in Ontario.

You may be eligible to keep your OHIP coverage if you are out of the province for more than 212 days. This may apply if you are out of Ontario for study, work, missionary work, vacation or other reason. You must be able to provide the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care with documents that show that you meet these requirements. For general information about OHIP, see page 21.

Insured Services – Travelling Outside Ontario and Outside Canada

It is important to get private health insurance before you travel, as OHIP does not cover all health services received in other provinces and territories, and health care services obtained outside Canada can cost much more than the ministry pays.

Travelling Outside Ontario

When you are travelling in other Provinces or Territories in Canada, OHIP will insure most medically necessary health services. OHIP will not insure elective medical services (unless pre-arranged and approved by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care), prescription drugs from pharmacies, ambulance services, long-term care services, or vaccinations requested to travel outside Canada. If you pay for health services while travelling within Canada but outside of Ontario, request an itemized bill and you can submit the original receipts to your local OHIP office to apply for a refund.

Travelling Outside Canada

When you are travelling outside Canada, OHIP will pay a set rate for emergency hospital and physician services for an acute, unexpected condition, illness, disease or injury that arises outside Canada and requires immediate treatment. OHIP will not insure elective medical services (unless pre-arranged and approved by the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care), prescription drugs from pharmacies, ambulance services, long-term care services, or vaccinations requested to travel outside Canada. If you pay for health services outside Canada, request an itemized bill and you can submit the original receipts to your local OHIP office to apply for a partial refund.

Health Services Travel Claims

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care has established a 12-month time limit for people who are submitting claims to OHIP for health services received outside Ontario or Canada.

For complete information about travelling outside Ontario and Canada, call your local Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care OHIP office, or visit the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care Web site at www.health.gov.on.ca/english/public/pub/ohip/travel.html For the telephone number and location of the office nearest you, call the Seniors' INFOline at 1-888-910-1999.

Ontario Drug Benefit Program and Travel Outside of Ontario

If you have a valid Ontario Health Card, you are automatically entitled to receive benefits under the Ontario Drug Benefit Program (ODB), from the first day of the month after you turn 65.

The ODB does not cover medications purchased outside Ontario.

Under the ODB program, you may receive up to a maximum 100 days' supply of medications. However, if you are travelling outside the province for between 100 and 200 days, you may access a second 100 days' supply of medication before you leave Ontario. In order to obtain an early refill for a second supply of up to 100 days of medication, you must provide your pharmacist with:

- a letter (which you have written yourself) confirming that you are leaving the province for between 100 and 200 days, or
- a copy of your travel insurance, confirming that you are leaving the province for between 100 and 200 days.

Your normal co-payment will also apply to the second 100-days' supply.

16.2 Honours and Awards

The Ministry of Citizenship and Immigration, through the Ontario Honours and Awards office, organizes a series of annual awards programs to recognize outstanding professional and volunteer contributions to Ontario. These awards promote responsible citizenship by publicly saluting those who have made exceptional contributions to the common good. Special commemorative functions are also organized to celebrate the participation of all Ontarians in the life of the province.

For more information on any of the award programs described below or to find out how to nominate someone for an award, contact:

The Order of Ontario

The Order of Ontario is the province's most prestigious official honour. The award was created in 1986 by the Government of Ontario to recognize the highest level of individual excellence and achievement in any field. The men and women invested in the Order are representative of the best of Ontario's caring and diverse society and stand as shining examples for us all. Their lives have benefited society in Ontario or elsewhere.

Ontario Medal for Good Citizenship

In 1973, the Government of Ontario established the Ontario Medal for Good Citizenship to recognize people who, through exceptional long-term efforts, have made outstanding contributions to the well-being of their communities. Their assistance is given without expectation of remuneration or reward.

Ontario Volunteer Service Awards

The Ontario Volunteer Service Awards are a way for the government to recognize volunteers for their valuable contributions. The awards are also a way to thank volunteers for their continuous years of commitment and their dedicated service to a group. Adults are recognized for 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30 and 50 years of continuous service.

Outstanding Achievement Awards for Voluntarism in Ontario

The personal commitment made by volunteers all across Ontario is significant. Among the thousands of volunteers in Ontario are those who make exceptional contributions. The Outstanding Achievement Awards for Voluntarism in Ontario recognize extraordinary leadership, innovation and creativity. Each year, 20 awards are given to a select group of individuals, organizations and businesses that have made superlative contributions to their communities and the province through voluntary action.

Senior Achievement Award

The Ontario Senior Achievement Award is presented to 20 individuals annually. The purpose of the award is to recognize and honour outstanding seniors who, after age 65, have made significant contributions to their communities. The outstanding voluntary or professional achievement may have been made in any field of endeavour.

Senior of the Year Award

The Senior of the Year Award was established in 1994 to give each municipality in the province the opportunity to honour one outstanding senior in their community. The recipient is someone who, after age 65, has enriched the social, cultural or civic life of the community — without thought of personal or financial gain. Only municipalities, not the general public, can act as nominators for this award.

16.3 Annual Special Events

Seniors' Month

June is Seniors' Month in Ontario. Ontario has celebrated Seniors' Month every June for more than 20 years. It is a time to acknowledge seniors for their contributions. The Ontario government recognizes the contributions seniors continue to make within families, communities, the province and the nation.

Government programs and services for seniors reflect this respect and recognition for Ontario's older adults and range from health care initiatives and safety and security programs to sports and recreation opportunities.

Each year, on behalf of the Government of Ontario, the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat works with seniors' organizations and community groups across the province to co-ordinate Seniors' Month events and celebrations.

To learn about Seniors' Month activities in your community, visit the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat online at www.ontarioseniors.ca and browse through the Calendar of Events, or check with seniors' organizations and community groups in your area.

If your organization is planning a special seniors' event for June, let the Ontario Seniors' Secretariat (OSS) know by calling the Senior INFOline:

International Day of Older Persons

The General Assembly of the United Nations designated October 1 as International Day of Older Persons. This day was observed for the first time throughout the world on October 1, 1991.

By designating a special day for seniors, the Assembly is recognizing the significant contributions of seniors around the world and also drawing attention to a demographic phenomenon: the rapid aging of our population.

Each year in recognition of the International Day of Older Persons, the Ontario Minister Responsible for Seniors delivers a statement to the Legislature to mark this special event. In 1998, the International Day of Older Persons marked the Government of Ontario's launch of its International Year of Older Persons (1999) activities.

Every day more Ontarians are becoming caregivers: spouses, adult children, friends and relatives. Although this experience brings many rewards – a chance to give back, to re-bond, to develop shared memories – caregiving can also cause considerable physical, emotional, and financial stress for the caregiver. It is a role that often comes unexpectedly with little preparation or training. Ontario seniors' groups stress the importance of caregivers taking time to assess their needs, learning what helpful resources might be available and asking for help when they need it.

17.1 What Caregivers Need

The current literature on this subject suggests caregivers need:

1. Education about the conditions your loved one faces
2. Emotional/psychological support – you can't do it alone
3. A working knowledge of the health care system
4. A network providing access to information, products and services
5. A flexible, responsive care plan for the care receiver
6. A flexible, responsive care plan for you
7. Basic first aid training and information about caregiver safety (e.g. safe ways to lift someone without injuring yourself)
8. Someone within the health care system who can guide you, like a social worker, discharge planner or case manager

How to Ask for the Help You Need

When someone asks you how they can help, you need to be prepared with an answer. Here's how to define the help you need.

1. Create an unemotional list of all things that need to get done. Group the tasks into distinct categories – personal care, household chores, transportation, etc.
2. Then make another list of all the things you worry about – What happens if my loved one falls? How will I pay for long term care? Group the worries into categories, such as emergency situations, financial issues, your own health.
3. Review the first list and decide which items on it you dislike doing more than others, which ones you enjoy and which you believe you must continue to do. You can now accept help with a list in hand. Review the second list and start to create a plan to address the “what ifs”.

A Caregiver's Ten Step Action Plan

Caregivers need to continually think ahead and prepare for the next caregiving crisis. While most caregivers realize that changes in medical status could lead to a difficult decision about care or housing, too few caregivers take the logical step and plan for the decision. A family conversation often needs to be held to discuss what needs to be done now and as time goes by. Here are ten steps you can take to begin the development of a care plan.

1. Start talking about what your family members want as they age. If they want to stay in their own home, should they be looking at home renovations to make it easier to go up/down stairs or use the bathroom if a wheelchair is required?
2. Try to avoid making promises you may be unable to keep. If a spouse or parent asks you to promise never to put him or her in a nursing home, you may want to reply: I promise I will do the best I can; I promise I will always be here for you. You must always keep in mind that the safety of your loved one is paramount.
3. Understand the critical role of legal and financial planning. Start to gather information about the person's financial security; learn where original documents are stored. Ensure individuals have prepared necessary documents such as wills, advance directives and powers of attorney.
4. Ask questions about the health care system; understand what alternate accommodations exist, how home care operates, what social services are available. Imagine the setting that best fits your loved one's personality and interests.
5. Face the realities: will you have to make decisions about driving, cohabitation, placement?
6. Be aware of losses to come so you can be prepared to better cope with them:
 - incontinence
 - memory loss
 - wandering concerns
 - the inability to recognize you
7. Talk within the family about how you plan to divide responsibility for your loved one's care and well-being.
8. Talk to your peers about how they are facing the challenges of caregiving, the problems they have encountered and solutions they have found.
9. Be aware of what you may lose:
 - privacy
 - social life
 - income
 - work opportunities

10. Appreciate what you can gain from caregiving:
- a new relationship
 - new skills
 - increased compassion, growth
 - new friendships
 - the building of memories

The key: Think ahead and prepare yourself and your relatives for what may happen so when your caregiving journey is over you can honestly say, "I have done the best that I could."

17.2 How You Know a Loved One Needs Help

On the outside things may appear normal. However some changes may be hard to see. A basic rule of thumb applies: if you are worried about a spouse, parent or friend, he/she may need help. What kind of help may be determined by using the following capability lists.

Specialists in gerontology evaluate seniors' abilities using two lists. The first is "Activities of Daily Living" or ADLs. If your spouse, parent or friend has problems with any of the following, the need for outside help or other intervention is obvious and critical:

- Continence
- Eating

- Getting in and out of bed
- Toileting
- Bathing
- Dressing
- Safety

The second list is "Instrumental or Intermediate Activities of Daily Living or IADLs". It is more difficult to know if an individual has problems with any of these unless you live with them. This is where your observation on visits can be critical.

- Managing finances
- Using the telephone
- Shopping
- Preparing meals
- Housekeeping
- Doing laundry
- Using transportation
- Managing medications

Please remember: Even though help may be needed in one or more of the above, a senior can still remain independent with adequate in-home supports.

Things to look for when you visit to assess if outside help is needed:

- Your loved one is consistently dressed improperly.
- There is a lack of attention to personal hygiene.
- Overdue bills, unopened mail lie on the table.
- Laundry is piling up.

- There are cigarette burns on the furniture.
- There is unexplained weight loss.
- There are bruises or other signs of trauma (from falls or abuse).
- There are blackened pots (stove problems) or the refrigerator is too empty/too full (improper eating habits).
- He/she is exhibiting unusual behaviour i.e. not telling you things, becoming anti-social or reclusive.

The list above does not go into cognitive symptoms, which may indicate a more serious problem. If you see things like your loved one getting lost while out driving or walking, severe personality changes, lost sense of time or consistent confusion, seek medical attention immediately. Another way to determine how to proceed is to call a family meeting. This way everyone – parents and adult children – will understand the problems; all will have a chance to participate in the solutions. If a sibling is out of town, try to set up a teleconference. The only reason a family member should be excluded is if he or she is too mentally impaired to understand or contribute and would impair any progress.

Contact your Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) (P.48) and ask for an assessment to help determine a course of action.

17.3 Adult Day Services/ Programs

Day programs for seniors and other chronically ill adults can offer a tremendous relief for both caregivers and their families. Spending time in a different environment gives the senior a sense of independence and control which is so critical for many seniors. For caregivers these few hours can be a welcome respite – time to accomplish personal goals or just quiet time alone.

Adult day programs are available in most communities; they generally last for 2 to 6 hours and offer snacks, a hot meal at lunch and recreation activities. Some programs may also offer transportation. There is a modest fee. Contact your CCAC for further information.

17.4 Wandering Persons or Safely Home Registry

People suffering from Alzheimer Disease or a related dementia may have the tendency to wander away from their home or a facility and become lost if left unsupervised.

To provide peace of mind, caregivers can register their care receiver with Safely Home™ – Alzheimer Wandering Registry. Safely Home will provide a numerical identification bracelet that a wanderer would wear. It assists police in identifying the person who is lost and safely returning the person home. It is a nationwide program developed by the Alzheimer Society of Canada in partnership with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

For a one-time fee of $25, the Alzheimer Society provides:

- an identification bracelet
- a Caregiver Handbook
- identification cards
- annual updates to the registrant's file.

17.5 Personal Emergency Response Systems

A Personal Emergency Response System is an electronic device designed to let a senior summon help in an emergency. If the person needs help, he/she pushes a button or pendant. The home unit or communicator is activated and automatically dials a response centre. Trained professionals who have instant access to the individual's complete profile and critical information will contact him/her immediately to see what help is needed. If there is no answer, help is sent at once. This service is advised for those who live alone or are at risk for falls.

There is a monthly monitoring fee that ranges between $25-$45 depending on the service you choose, and there may be a one-time set-up fee.

You can purchase the service through hospitals, community agencies or the companies themselves.

17.6 Long Distance Caregiving

Long-distance caregiving can be just as or even more stressful than being there. Long-distance caregivers may not be on site providing direct care, but they can be busy in their role as care managers — locating and coordinating services; negotiating with the care recipient, health professionals and family members; delegating tasks; monitoring the situation and making decisions. Telephone and travel may provide some relief but distance can heighten the caregiver’s feelings of anxiety and guilt. An extended period of long-distance caregiving exacts a heavy toll on the caregiver’s personal, family and work life.

In telephone conversations, gently probe for information about the person’s health and well-being. Listen for cues that may indicate problems. If possible, visit to assess the situation. Ask people who see the person often if they notice changes (e.g. spouse, neighbour, friend, professional).

Steps to take for more effective long distance care

- Arrange for a medical assessment, including a cognitive assessment by a family physician or specialist if necessary.
- Determine what care services are needed.
- Find out about available community resources.
- Seek help from local health departments and community agencies or private care managers.
- Find out who is available to provide help — family members, friends and acquaintances.
- Identify areas where you may need professional assistance.
- Draw up a list of care options.
- Develop a care plan.
- Discuss the care plan with the care recipient, family members, and the health care team, as necessary.
- If publicly funded services are not available, assistance from private care managers may also be available for a fee. Be sure to research associated costs.
- Investigate housing and relocation options.
- Create a care log or binder to keep track of important information.

A social worker or care manager located where the senior lives can work with you to make the assessment, develop the care plan and facilitate access to programs and services. The care manager can also mediate in family discussions and report back to you on a regular basis. Contact the CCAC located in the senior's area.

17.7 Care for the Caregiver

One of the greatest gifts caregivers can give the people they care for is to look after themselves and their own health. The better caregivers' physical and mental health remains, the better their chances are of being able to continue providing quality care. Putting your own needs first will also help prevent you from experiencing caregiver burnout.

Caregivers need to remember that if you lose your own health and consequently your ability to care, who will take over for you? Care for the caregiver should never be regarded as a selfish goal but rather an integral part of any sensible, enduring care plan.

Learn what coping methods suit you and use them. Exercise, go to movies, read, keep a journal – do what you enjoy but do your best to maintain a healthy lifestyle.

Support Groups

Support groups can provide both an opportunity to learn about new skills and care solutions from other caregivers as well as the opportunity to openly express the wide range of emotions all caregivers experience – ranging from frustration, anger and guilt to loneliness and grief. Other caregivers can offer the best support; they know what you are going through and are there to share and support, not to judge and censure. The first place to look for a support group is through the disease foundation or society associated with the illness your relative suffers from. A good resource on managing stress is the 17-page booklet "Coping with Stress", a joint publication by the Heart and Stroke Foundation and the Canadian Mental Health Association (www.toronto.cmha.ca).

17.8 The Essential Role of Respite Care

Respite care is the break that caregivers get by allowing someone else to temporarily take over some of their caregiving duties. Used on a regular basis, respite care helps prevent caregiver burnout by relieving some of the caregiver's workload and stress. Although respite care can benefit the care receiver, it must be regarded as essential for the caregiver.

Respite care usually takes one of three forms:

- arrangements can be made for someone to come into the home to look after or sit with the care receiver (even if the caregiver is at home)
- the care receiver can be booked for a short stay (overnight, weekend, a week or more) in a Long-Term Care Home or other facility
- the care receiver can be registered to attend an adult day program

Respite care should not mean having someone come in so the caregiver can go to the grocery store. Respite should be viewed as time for caregiver renewal, giving caregivers time off to relax, socialize with friends and family so they can recover from some of the stresses of caregiving and renew their energies to continue providing quality care.

Contact your CCAC for more information and referral.

17.9 Advocacy Groups

Caregivers are often put in the position of having to speak out for a loved one who no longer can speak for himself or herself. To do this caregivers need to learn how to make the system work for them and how to be proactive. Many caregivers, however, find this role extremely difficult and feel that if they become too demanding their loved one will suffer the consequences.

There are ways to advocate, to get what a caregiver needs but it takes effort and planning. Communicating effectively with health care professional is a skill caregivers need to learn. To prepare for meetings with a physician or other professionals, caregivers should make a list of the things they want to talk about and the questions they need to remember to ask.

At the end of every meeting with a professional, caregivers should ask themselves the following questions. If any of the answers are no, they need to go back to the health professional involved until they get the information they need.

- Was adequate description and instruction provided regarding care tasks?
- Were all my questions answered?
- Are the professionals involved maintaining regular contact with me?
- Am I included in evaluations and assessments?

In today's health care system professionals respect informed, concerned caregivers who ask questions and who monitor care; it can make everyone's job easier. If you have concerns about care or legal issues contact:

17.10 Information Management

Caregiving involves vast amounts of information and detail as the family meeting normally points out. Whether or not there is a crisis, everything should be recorded in one place so no detail gets lost. Good information management leads to better care.

Caregivers should start a care planner or care binder, which includes information on all facets of care. This can help caregivers stay organized, keeping much-needed personal and medical information available for quick access. It can also help centralize communication among all the formal and informal caregivers by providing a place for the care team to leave important messages for each other. The care planner or care binder can go with the caregiver on physician visits so medication information may be updated on the spot or on visits to Long-Term Care Homes to record findings while they are still fresh in the caregiver's mind.

17.11 Compassionate Care Benefit Program

In January 2004, the federal government launched the Compassionate Care Benefit Program under the Employment Insurance Program. The program will pay up to six weeks of special benefits to a person who has to be absent from work to provide care or support to a gravely ill family member at risk of dying within 26 weeks. Unemployed persons on EI can also ask for this type of benefits. There are certain conditions that must be met.

This program is particularly beneficial to individuals with a short-term need or rapidly changing condition, for whom purchase is impractical. Equipment is rented to those in need of a specific item, whether it is the result of injury, illness, aging or permanent disability. This innovative program accepts donations of used equipment in good repair. Equipment includes such items as manual and electric wheelchairs, scooters, crutches, walkers, lifting equipment, bath aids and home aids.

17.14 A Caregiver's Credo

(Feel free to reproduce the credo and put it on your refrigerator to remind you to care for yourself).

1. Try to set limits around your caregiving – a process which doesn't happen overnight.
2. Realize that you operate on two levels – intellectual and emotional – and that they don't always coincide.
3. Learn to be an advocate for your care receiver and for yourself.
4. Remember that other caregivers are your best source of unconditional support.
5. Admit when you need help. Don't be a martyr.
6. Remember that you are the expert on the person needing care: outsiders can only offer advice. If you disagree with a suggestion made to you, work with others to find solutions that will work. Remember, caregiving is a two-way street.
7. Be assertive. Demand answers from everyone – physicians, professionals and suppliers of products and services.
8. Ask questions constantly. "I don't know" is a legitimate starting point from which to begin gaining the knowledge and finding the answers you need.
9. Consider that love may be doing what care receivers need, not always what they want.
10. Maintain your own health and lifestyle, friendships and activities. Remember what Shakespeare said: Self-love is not so vile a sin as self-neglect.

Tips for Using the Telephone, Internet Sources and E-mail

Many people are unfamiliar or have difficulty with using voice-mail, E-mail and Internet technologies. Here are some tips to help you use these sources to find out more about programs and services described in this guide.

Telephone

What do I need to know about using voice mail or automated voice response (AVR) systems?

Many government offices (health, income security), transportation companies (airlines, bus, highways), and even doctor's offices use AVRs. The following are some suggestions that can help you practice using AVRs until you become comfortable with them. Many AVR services are toll-free (1-800-numbers), or part of local exchanges, so there is no cost to you to practice.

Have a pencil and paper handy to jot down the various options offered and which buttons to press. Make note of the information you need when you hear it.

- Take your time to listen to all the options before choosing one. This can take several minutes.
- Take your time to press the number of the one you want.
- If you press the wrong number, return to the main menu and start over or hang up and call back.
- Usually, there is a number you can press to speak to someone in person.

What telephone services are available for persons with special needs?

Trouble hearing

Your telephone company can rent you a handset to attach to your phone that increases the volume. Teletypewriter (TTY) and signalling device services are also available for the deaf.

Visually impaired

You can obtain a large number pad for the phone. If you cannot read the phone book numbers, you may be eligible for free directory assistance services. Contact your telephone company for more information.

Speech and motion disabilities

Your telephone company can tell you how to access special services.

Internet

What is the Internet?

The Internet is a world-wide resource base of information that you can access through a computer via an Internet service provider such as your telephone or cable company, or an Internet/computer business. Many public libraries and some seniors' centres make Internet services available to you at no charge.

What services can I find on the Internet?

You can find information on almost any topic by searching on the Internet. Once you sign on using a registered name and password, you will be offered search options. Just type in what you're looking for in the briefest terms, and the search engine direct you to many Web sites where you can explore further.

Or, if you have the address for a particular Web site, just type it in the address line and press Enter.

Are there guidelines for finding information on the Internet?

There is little regulation about what can or cannot be put on the Internet, so you must be careful to obtain reputable information. Particularly if you are looking for health-related information it's important to find trustworthy Web sites. Web sites should include the author's name, professional standing and contact information. Never use information you find on the Internet as a substitute for professional advice.

Where can I learn how to use the Internet?

Your public library may offer computer training to help you learn to use email and the Internet. Many community colleges and university extension divisions offer computer classes specifically designed for older adults. You can ask your local seniors' centre to set up workshops or courses on using computers. As well, numerous manuals, books and magazines are available that can provide opportunities for you to learn.

See page 148 of this guide for more information on computer training opportunities.

E-mail

Electronic mail, or E-mail, allows you to send or receive messages almost instantly to others via the Internet. Both parties need access to a computer, modem and telephone line or cable connection, as well as to a software program to set up an E-mail system.

You can buy E-mail software when you buy the service to connect your computer to the Internet. This is usually offered as a subscription service for a monthly fee, like your telephone or cable television service. Alternatively, if you do not have a computer with Internet capacity, but do have access to one (e.g., through your public library), you can subscribe to free E-mail services on the Internet. www.hotmail.com and www.yahoo.com are two Internet sites that provide free E-mail. You can sign on and choose your own username and password to ensure that no one else has access to your E-mail account.

The information above was adapted from Making the Telephone Work for You and Using Computers for E-mail and the Internet. These brochures were produced by the Seniors' Education Centre, University of Regina as part of the project Everyday Technologies and Older Adults: Friend or Foe? sponsored by the Nova Scotia Centre on Aging of Mount St. Vincent University. Funding was provided by Health Canada's Population Health Fund.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. As a retiree, what key programs and services should I be aware of?

The Ontario government is bundling information and services around key life events, such as “Getting Ready to Retire”. Each bundle brings together in one place everything on the subject from across government jurisdictions and ministerial lines. From this site, you can find information on things you need to know and quick links to forms you might need including, OAS, CPP, International Benefits, Veterans Pension, GAINS, Ontario Drug Benefits, Housing and other resources.

For information, visit the “Life Events” section at the Government of Ontario Web site at www.ontario.ca or one of over 50 Government Information Centres around the province, or call the Citizens’ Inquiry Bureau at 1-800-267-8097. For the GIC nearest you, see the Directory, Appendix 3.

Income Security

Human Resources and Social Development Canada administers two federal income security programs: Old Age Security (which includes the Guaranteed Income Supplement and the Allowance) and the Canada Pension Plan. For information, see pages 75-79.

The Government of Ontario administers the Guaranteed Annual Income System, which ensures a guaranteed minimum income for Ontario senior citizens by providing monthly payments to qualifying pensioners. For information, see page 81.

Drug Benefits

Once you turn 65 years of age, as long as you have a valid Ontario Health Card, you are automatically entitled to receive benefits under the Ontario Drug Benefit program. For information, see page 24.

2. Where do I go if I need home care or want to find out about nursing homes in my community?

There are 14 Community Care Access Centres (CCACs) in the province that provide simplified access to community-based long-term health care services including determining eligibility and arranging for a range of visiting health and personal support services (e.g. home care) in people’s homes and arranging admissions to long-term care facilities (nursing homes/homes for the aged). For more information on Community Care Access Centres, see page 48.

3. I'm a senior with limited income:

A. What financial assistance is available to me?

If you have little or no income besides your Old Age Security (OAS) basic pension, you might be eligible to receive a monthly Guaranteed Income Supplement (GIS). The amount of this extra payment is based on your income and that of your spouse or common-law partner. You may also be eligible for the Allowance/ Allowance for the Survivor. This monthly allowance is designed to recognize the difficult circumstances faced by many survivors and by couples living on a single pension. For more information on OAS and GIS, see page 75-76.

The Government of Ontario administers the Guaranteed Annual Income System (GAINS), which ensures a guaranteed minimum income for Ontario senior citizens by providing monthly payments to qualifying pensioners. For more information, see page 81.

B. I need help managing my finances/debt, where can I get help?

If your finances are causing you concern or you are beginning to experience financial difficulty, contact a credit counselor. A credit counselor will carry out a full financial assessment to obtain a clear picture of your financial situation and will explore alternatives with you. Your counselor will help you with money management skills and discuss strategies for dealing with debt. You may also want to contact your own financial institution to learn how they can help you. For more information, see page 87 on the Life Event Bundle "Managing Your Debt."

C. How can I find an affordable place to live?

There are a variety of accommodation options for older adults, depending on your financial and health situation. For information, see page 56.

Social housing is any housing where the owner receives a subsidy from the municipality or a cost-shared subsidy from the federal government to provide rent geared-to-income units (RGI units). Owners may be private landlords with rent supplement units, municipalities who own public housing or non-profit/co-operative corporations who own housing projects. Some non-profit housing providers have a legislated mandate to house seniors (those over the age of 65). For more information, see page 60.

4. Someone close to me has just passed away. What steps do I have to take, and whom do I notify?

On page 124 you will find detailed information on What to Do When Someone Dies, including how to go about making funeral arrangements and the organizations that you may need to notify about the death.

5. I need to have dental work done, but I don't have private insurance to help cover the cost. What can I do?

Several universities and colleges have dental clinics open to the public. Services vary according to the clinic. Fees are generally less than what private practitioners charge. Contact clinics individually to determine services, fees and availability of appointments. For a list of university and college dental clinics, see Directory, Appendix 3.

Your local Community Information Centre (CIC) may also be able to identify options for dental care services in your area. See page 12 of this guide for more information on CICs.

6. I'm a new immigrant to Ontario, what services are available to help me get settled?

Information on Canadian immigration or citizenship is available through Citizenship and Immigration Canada. Also, community agencies across the province provide services to help newcomers adjust to their new lives in Ontario and become active members of their communities. For more information, see pages 112-113.

7. Where can I learn more about Property and Personal Care Powers of Attorney?

Information about Powers of Attorney and how to obtain a Power of Attorney Kit can be found on page 121. For information about Advanced Care Planning, see page 122.

8. What can I do if I believe that my friend's attorney is mismanaging her property or making personal care decisions for her that aren't what she would want?

If your friend is mentally capable, speak to your friend about your concerns. Your friend can revoke either or both of the powers of attorney if she believes that her attorney is not acting appropriately in the way that she wants.

If your friend is not mentally capable, you or one of your friend's relatives can apply to the court to become her Guardian of property and/or the person. A Guardianship order of the court takes priority over the power of attorney. The court order of guardianship gives authority to the named guardian to make decisions for property and/or personal care for the incapable person.

Also, if your friend is at serious risk of harm either in respect to her property or person, you can contact the Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee (OPGT) and ask that they conduct a guardianship investigation.

The Public Guardian and Trustee's information brochures may also assist you. See page 120 for information on the Office of the Public Guardian and Trustee and the services they offer.

9. Where can I learn more about Discrimination against Older Persons because of Age and Ageism?

The Ontario Human Rights Commission has conducted extensive research and consultation on ageism and age discrimination of older Ontarians. Refer to the Ontario Human Rights Commission on page 119 for more information.

10. How do I contact my Member of Provincial Parliament (MPP)?
