

DESIGNATION OF A PROPERTY AS A PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE BY A PERSONAL TRUST

Use this form for the 2002 and later taxation years to designate a property as a trust's principal residence and to calculate the capital gain for the year if the trust:

- disposed of, or if we consider it to have disposed of, the principal residence of the trust or any part of it; or granted someone an option to buy the principal residence of the trust or any part of it.

If the trust disposed of, or if we consider it to have disposed of, a property for which the trust filed Form 94-115, Election to Report a Capital Gain on Property Owned by a Personal Trust at the End of February 22, 1994, use this form to calculate the capital gain if:

- the property was the trust's principal residence for 1994; or the trust is designating the property in this form as the trust's principal residence for any taxation year.

If the trust designated the property as its principal residence and the trust filed Form 94-115 for that property, the trust may be entitled to a reduction as a result of the capital gains election. To calculate this reduction, use Form T1079-WS, Principal Residence Worksheet. You can get this form from your tax services office or on our Web site at: www.cra.gc.ca

Attach one copy of this form to the T3 Trust Income Tax and Information Return, for the year in which the disposition or deemed disposition of the property, or the granting of an option to acquire the property, occurred.

If the trust designated the property as its principal residence for all the years in which the trust owned it, there is no capital gain.

Designation by a personal trust

For the purpose of this form, the acquisition date is the date on which the trust last acquired or reacquired the property, or December 31, 1971, whichever is later. However, if the trust filed Form 94-115, we do not consider the trust to have disposed of and immediately reacquired the property as a result of the election.

Note: If the trust designated the property as its principal residence for the purpose of the election, the trust has to include those previously designated taxation years as part of its principal residence designation.

Description of designated property:

I, (print name), designate the property described above as having been the trust's principal residence for the following taxation years ending after the acquisition date:

A (specify the taxation years after 1971 and before 1982)

B (specify the taxation years after 1981)

I confirm that the trust did not designate any other property as the trust's principal residence. I also confirm that none of the following designated any other property for the calendar year ending in the year as a principal residence: a specified beneficiary of the trust; a person who throughout those years was the spouse or common-law partner of a specified beneficiary...

I also confirm that no partnership or corporation (other than a registered charity) held a beneficial interest in the trust at any time in the years the trust designated the property as a principal residence.

General Information

To qualify as the principal residence for a taxation year, the trust's property must be:

- a) a housing unit, a leasehold interest in a housing unit, or a share of the capital stock of a co-operative housing corporation that the trust acquired only to acquire the right to inhabit a housing unit the corporation owned;
- b) owned by the trust, jointly with another person or otherwise (which includes sole ownership, joint tenancy, tenancy-in-common, and co-ownership (for example, in Quebec)) at any time in the taxation year;
- c) ordinarily inhabited (that is, the housing unit) by a specified beneficiary of the trust or by the current or former spouse, the current or former common-law partner, or a child of a specified beneficiary at any time in the calendar year which has ended in the taxation year of the trust; and
- d) designated as the trust's only principal residence for that taxation year.

A person referred to in c) above cannot designate another housing unit or leasehold interest except a spouse or common-law partner of the specified beneficiary who, throughout the year, lived apart from the beneficiary, and separated from the beneficiary according to a judicial separation or written separation agreement, or a child of the specified beneficiary who was married, in a common-law relationship, or aged 18 or older.

For a specified beneficiary who, throughout the year, was under 18, unmarried, and not in a common-law relationship, no other property can be designated by his or her mother, father, or any of his or her brothers and sisters unless they were 18 or over, married, or in a common-law relationship in the year.

If the trust has made, or is making an election under subsection 45(2) or 45(3) of the Income Tax Act, it can designate the property to be its principal residence for up to four more years, even though the housing unit was not ordinarily inhabited during those years by one of the persons mentioned above. If the trust meets certain conditions, the four year limitation can be extended indefinitely for taxation years in which the ordinarily inhabited rule was not met because of a relocation of the place of employment of either a specified beneficiary or the spouse or common-law partner of a specified beneficiary. For more information on these elections, see the Capital Gains guide.

If the trust distributed the property to a beneficiary on a section 107(2) rollover basis, in certain circumstances subsection 107(2.01) may allow the trust to elect to have disposed of the property at fair market value immediately before this distribution to use the principal residence exemption.

If a trust has distributed a property to a beneficiary on a subsection 107(2) rollover basis to satisfy all or any part of the beneficiary's capital interest in the trust, and if the beneficiary disposes of the property after May 9, 1985, to claim the principal residence exemption, the beneficiary is considered to have owned the property since the trust last acquired it. This deemed-ownership provision does not apply if a post-1971 spousal or common-law partner, joint spousal or common-law partner, or alter ego trust distributed the property to a person other than the relevant spouse, common-law partner, or settlor when the spouse, common-law partner, or settlor is alive or on the day that person dies, if that day was after December 20, 1991.

For more information, see Interpretation Bulletin IT-120, Principal Residence, and the chapter called "Principal Residence" in the guide called Capital Gains.

Definitions

Common-law partner – A common-law partner is a person who, at the time, lived and had a relationship with a person of the same or opposite sex to whom any of the following applies. He or she:

- is the natural or adoptive parent (legal or in fact) of that person's child;
- has been living with, and having a relationship with, that person for a continuous period of at least one year; or
- lived with that person for a continuous period of at least one year, and is living with that person again.

All these situations include any period of separation due to a breakdown in the common-law partnership of less than 90 days.

Specified beneficiary – A specified beneficiary of a trust for the year is a beneficiary who had a beneficial interest in the trust for the calendar year which has ended in the taxation year of the trust, and ordinarily inhabited the housing unit or had a current or former spouse, a current or former common-law partner, or a child who ordinarily inhabited the housing unit in the calendar year which has ended in the taxation year of the trust. If the housing unit was not ordinarily inhabited by a particular beneficiary of a personal trust or by that beneficiary's current or former spouse, current or former common-law partner, or child, that beneficiary can nevertheless still fall within the definition of a "specified beneficiary" of the trust for a particular taxation year of the trust if, in the calendar year ending in the trust's taxation year, that beneficiary had a beneficial interest in the trust and also the trust was entitled to designate the property as its principal residence for the year by reason of a subsection 45(2) or 45(3) election.

Spouse – The term spouse applies only to a legally married person.

Information you need to calculate the capital gain

Note: If the trust was not a resident of Canada during the entire period of ownership of the designated property, contact your tax services office. The period of non-residence may reduce or eliminate the availability of the principal residence exemption.
