Crown Employees Grievance Settlement Board

Executive Summary

This business plan of the Grievance Settlement Board (GSB) presents its strategy to fulfill its legislative mandate, to ensure the highest possible level of customer service, and to set standards of excellence in relation to the Board's overall efficiency, economy and effectiveness. The GSB is classified as an adjudicative agency accountable to the legislature through the Minister of Labour, Training and Skills Development. It is one of the Public Service Appeal Boards, the other being the Public Service Grievance Board (PSGB). The GSB has a signed Memorandum of Understanding that sets out the roles and responsibilities and the accountability and reporting relationship between the GSB and the Minister of Labour, Training and Skills Development.

The Chair of the GSB is a part-time position appointed by Order in Council. The GSB maintains a roster of part-time Mediator-Arbitrators. The Registrar reports to the Chair and is directly responsible for all administrative matters and the day-to-day operation of the Board. The Chair and the Registrar are jointly responsible for policy matters.

The GSB has a partnership agreement with its client group to fully implement the requirements of the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act. Some of the aspects of its operations are decided at Governance Council meetings. The Chair and the Registrar are accountable to the client group regarding GSB administration and policy issues.

The GSB is viewed by its clientele to have integrity and neutrality. The GSB's integrity is preserved by its physical location, separate from other government agencies other than the PSGB and by the fact that the GSB utilizes the services of third party neutrals who are prominent and well respected in the private sector labour relations community.

The GSB is seeking to further aid its clientele to develop a constructive relationship in matters related to labour relations in the public sector. The GSB provides expertise in dispute resolution and adjudication through the supply of services, research material and jurisprudence relevant to the public sector. When third party intervention is needed, the GSB provides mediation or in the alternative, diverse, expeditious, and inexpensive methods of adjudication and dispute resolution.

The overall objective of the GSB is to provide dispute resolution services and improve labour relations within the Ontario Public Service. This promotes the harmony and stability in the workplace that are vital for a prosperous and productive economy. The GSB educates its clientele on the interpretation of collective agreements by providing timely, clear, concise decisions. The GSB also provides advice and guidance to the parties in relation to various dispute resolution methods.

The Crown Employees Grievance Settlement Board is funded as a budget item of the Ministry of Labour, Training and Skills Development. The Crown employers and the trade unions representing Crown employees each share the costs of the GSB with the Crown employers paying one half and the trade unions paying the other half. The GSB has consistently recovered all of its expenditures since 1996. The GSB staff provides services to the PSGB and expenditures made on behalf of the PSGB are recovered and refunded to the GSB.

The GSB is linked to the government's priority: to promote jobs and economic growth by providing efficient and cost-effective resolution of disputes within the OPS, which contributes to a modern, efficient and effective workplace.
